CAR CREW IS ACCUSED OF ROBBING AGED MAN

Alfred Burrows, a Well Known East Ender, Says He Was Held Up While a Passenger.

COMPELLED BY THREATS TO GIVE UP CASH

Alfred Burrows, aged 61, a well known brick layer, who has been a resident of this city for the past 14 years, and who during that period has made numerous friends and proved himself to be an honorable and upright man, has made information at police headquarters of an alleged robbery committed on last Wednesday evening between the hours of 9 and 10 o'clock, while he was riding to his home in the East End on a street car. Mr. Burrows lives on Dry Run, in the East End, with his daughter, Mrs. Heckathorn. A News Review reporter saw him there today and he related the following story:

"You can see by my general appearance that I am a man of advanced age. I am not the man I once was and it is due to my failing in strength that the story which I am about to tell you is not different. I am a brick layer by trade and as strong a union man as lives. Last Wednesday evening I was not feeling well, but had been informed that a meeting of my union was to be held and decided to go down town and attend. I was at the meeting and paid my monthly dues. At its conclusion I walked down to Second street with several of my friends and when a car came along I bade them good night and stepped aboard.

"Usually I carry but a small amount of money in my pockets. I generally try to have loose change when I get on a street car, and thought I had a dime when I got on at this particular time, but when the conductor came for my fare I reached for the dime and discovered that it was a penny. I then reached for a leather wallet in my inside vest pocket and took from it a $5 bill. This I handed to the conductor and he gave me my change.

"Instead of replacing the change in my wallet I put it into my trousers pocket and thought nothing of the transaction. There were quite a number on the car when I was seated, but they dropped off at intervals all along

INTEREST GROWS FROM DAY TO DAY

OVER 20,000 VOTES CAST

The close of the first week of the News Review's organized labor coupon contest has shown that a wonderful interest has been taken in it from the start, and that this interest has been increasing from day to day. When the count was made for the announcement of the vote today more than 20,000 had been cast, and there are thousands of the "series A" ballots yet in the hands of the contestants and their friends.

The number of actual workers for the contestants is increasing every day. Every night they carry on the work of gathering up the coupons, which are to be filled out and voted for their favorite. These workers are inspired by friendship or the ties of close kinship with the contestants. "Save your coupons for me" is an expression heard on all sides.

The coupons are being saved in nearly every home in the city and even in the neighboring towns the interest is general and the coupons are being stored up. The two out-of-town candidates so far announced have received quite a large vote. There is not the slightest feeling of animosity between the contestants in spite of the fact that there is considerable rivalry, and the friendly feeling promises to exist throughout.

That the News Review is the popular paper of this city and neighborhood is clearly shown by the wide interest taken in its voting contest. Commendations of its plan to give two people of the city connected with organized labor pleasant summer trips can be heard on every side.

The contest is open to all who can comply with the conditions printed upon another page, and those who wish to contest can enter at any time. Save the coupons from each and every paper and vote early and often.

This is the way the votes stand:

AMPLE MONEY IS BACK OF IT

That there is something more than mere talk for speculative purposes behind the Lake & River road is clearly proved by the fact that Cleveland banks have underwritten bonds of the French railway lines for about $2,000,000. It is said that about $3,000,000 of Cleveland money will be invested in this road, and it is expected that it will be applied at once towards constructing the road from Sandusky toward the Ohio river. Rights of way are now being secured along that route.

"The line is to proceed from Sandusky Harbor southward through Ohio to East Liverpool, and then on to Beaver, where connection will be made with the Pittsburg & Lake Erie for the desired entrance into Pittsburg. This will at once put the French lines in position to handle lake and river coal, and also ore from the lakes to the furnaces of the Mahoning valley and the Pittsburg district.

"After the line from Sandusky to Beaver has been completed plans will be made to connect up the French lines east and west with the Nickel Plate and the Pitfsburg & Lake Erie, thus forming another road from Pittsburg to Chicago. It is said this will not interfere in any way with the existing contract between the Pittsburg & Lake Erie and the Erie railroad."

Philadelphia, March 21.—(Special.)—The tug Pilot was sunk by the steamer Winifred in the Delaware river today, five members of the crew were drowned.

EAST END MAN THROWN IN AIR BY FREIGHT TRAIN.

Engine Was Moving Slowly Or He Would Probably Have Been Killed.

Orville McKinnon, a potter living in the East End, was seriously injured yesterday evening about 5 o'clock by being hit with a freight train near the Globe pottery. The freight was just leaving the switch and was proceeding slowly, which probably accounts for the fact that he was not killed.

McKinnon came near being struck by the passenger train going east and compelled the train to stop to get him off the track. The whistle was blown repeatedly, but he failed to hear it. As soon as the passenger train was past him, McKinnon again stepped on the track, but was caught in a few moments by the freight and thrown in the air. He landed to one side of the track and a number of bystanders rushed to him and carried him into the office of the Globe pottery. The patrol wagon was summoned and McKinnon was taken to the office of Dr. Marshall, where an examination revealed the fact that he was not seriously inured. The patrol wagon then took him to his home in Dixonville, ust beyond the city limits. When he left the patrol he was able to walk into the house with the assistance of two friends. It is thought he will be out again as usual in a few days.

NOTICE IS SERVED UPON THE RAILROAD

C. & P. Agrees to Suspend Work on the City's West End Property.

Mayor Davidson has served notice on the C. & P. railroad that all work on the two unnamed alleys and Washington street in the west end of the city must cease until it is determined whether or not the railroad company is encroaching upon city property.

City Engineer Kelly, on behalf of the mayor, made a communication by telephone to Engineer of Maintenance of Way Wood, Wellsville. Engineer Wood stated that the work would be ordered stopped at once, but it is doubtful whether this will be done. It is the usual rule of railroad companies to go ahead with such work and listen to orders afterward. Then the location of the two unnamed alleys is so obscure that an officer in serving an injunction would need the services of the engineer in determining if the railroad company had been encroaching upon a city highway.

There is some doubt as to the authority of the mayor to take action upon an injunction from the common pleas court.

STRIKE COMMISSION REPORT PUBLISHED

Washington, March 21.—(Special)—The report of the anthrocite coal strike commission made public today, recommends a general increase in wages of ten per cent and some decreases of time; fixes the mirimum wage and sliding scales; suggests settlement of all disputes by arbitration; provides against discrimination by either operators or miners on account of membership or nonmembership in unions, and provides awards made shall continue in force until March 31, 1906.

The commission declined to make an award in the matter of recognition of the union.

THE LATEST LIFE ELIXIR

WHEN IS A MAN DEAD?

Sometimes He May Survive After the Heart Has Ceased to Beat—Dr. Crile Writes of His Series of Experiments.

Cleveland, March 21.—The application of Dr. George W. Crile's discovery of adrenalin as a modern "elixir of life," is attracting wide attention in the east, where it is believed it will be the means of saving the lives of countless persons who die from what is known as "heart failure."

This phase of the situation has not been discussed up to the present time by physicians and surgeons of this city, but according to eastern newspapers there is every possibility that Dr. Crile's discovery may be applied to cover cases of this character.

The announcement of Dr. Crile's discovery was made some weeks ago when it was shown that he had successfully experimented on dogs, and had kept a dog that had been decapitated, alive for ten hours and thirty minutes by injecting systematically solutions of adrenalin into the veins of the animal. It was contended at this time that what could be accomplished with a dog could be accomplished with a human being, and that the discovery meant that in the future, surgeons would be able to deal effectively with cases of surgical shock, suffocation, and shock by electricity. It was stated that practically the only case that could not be successfully treated would be where tissues were either diseased or destroyed.

The discovery renewed the discussion regarding the spark of human life. "Is a man dead when the heart ceases to beat?" was a most pertinent question asked of a number of physicians. In each case they replied that in view of Dr. Crile's experiments indicated that in some cases the spark of life must be present in the body even after the heart had ceased to beat. This, they said, was especially true in cases where death had apparently come as the result of suffocation or from electrical or surgical shock.

In the east, the newspapers have gone a step farther. They have obtained statements which couple Dr. Crile's discovery with that of Dr. Sajous, of Philadelphia. The latter made the startling statement that a person need never be ill if he kept the pituitary body in its normal condition. He pointed out that elixir of life was in certain ductless glands just above the kidneys, and that so long as these performed their functions properly, such things as tuberculosis, heart disease, etc., would be out of the question. It was further intimated that Dr. Crile's discovery, together with that of Dr. Sajous, meant that in time, death could only come through a destruction of tissue. It was also declared that Drs. Crile and Sajous were the successors of Dr. Brown-Sequard, of Paris, who startled the world a few years ago with his announcement that he had discovered the elixir of life. This discovery failed to come up to expectations, but it is believed that Dr. Crile and Dr. Sajous have been working on the same general principle.

"In shock the essential phenomenon is a diminution of the blood pressure. Since there are no demonstrable lesions (or burstings of the sac) in fatal cases, and no later effects in those that recover, we will assume exhaustion, rather than structural lesions, to be the cause of this fall in vitality.

"It must, then, be an exhaustion of the cardiac muscle, of the cardiac centers, of the blood vessels, of the vasomotor system, those sympathetic nerves which are spread out over the vital organs and have so much to do with the heart and the stomach and 'the way we feel.' Their center is, of course, the medulla oblongata, that little part of the spinal cord above the cord proper leading to and connecting it with the brain.

"The heart cannot be at fault, for the heart as an organ it noted for the large amount of labor it can perform without fatigue. In shock, on account of the diminished blood pressure, there is even less work for the heart muscle to do than in the normal state. In a series of experiments after the animal had been reduced to a degree of shock presumably fatal, the blood pressure was, by special means, raised much higher than normal. The heart then performed its normal function. There was then no material fatigue of the heart muscle."

BRUTAL ASSAULT BY THREE MEN

LISBON BARTENDER WAYLAID AND BADLY BEATEN.

Refusal to Sell Liquor to Another the Supposed Cause of Attack.

Lisbon, March 21. — (Special.) — William Geller, a bartender at the East End saloon, in this town, was brutally assaulted by three men last night and badly used up. One of his assailants was since arrested and the extent of Geller's injuries are not known, but a large pool of blood in the street at the scene of the fracas indicates that it was a vicious affair.

The story is that Tommy Griffith is the man who committed the assault and that he had two companions, Eddie Garwood and Frank Downer. Geller seems to have offended Griffith by refusing to sell him whisky when in toxicated. One of these occasions was said to have been but yesterday afternoon and last night Griffith and his companions laid in wait for Geller at North Beaver street. They were seen during the evening at the electric light plant and later were seen going up the street in a shadow near the place of assault. They met Geller and asked him why he wouldn't sell them anything. Then he struck Geller, who fell in a heap in the street and his assailants are said to have jumped on him and kicked him. When they thought they had inflicted severe enough punishment Griffith and his companions started to leave the scene when Geller drew a revolver and fired.

Griffith picked up a couple of brick bats and started with the avowed intention of finishing his victim, when Mack Reed happened along and restrained him. The four men left. Neighbors were aroused by the altercation. Geller's condition is not regarded as serious this morning, although he was badly cut and bruised, especially about the head and face.

MAYOR DOES NOT PROPOSE TO ACT AS THE JUDGE

The Railroad, if Working Sunday, Does So on Its Own Responsibility.

Application has been made to Mayor Davidson by the C. & P. contractors for permission to work tomorrow on the railroad bridge that spans Dry Run in the East End. The recent high water got in behind the stone retaining walls and the entire structure is threatened with collapse unless the damage is repaired before heavy rains set in. The contractors have had a large force of men doing this repair work for a number of days, but it is impossible for them to get the bridge in shape to withstand the elements before the arrival of Sunday.

The law is very stringent against doing work of this nature on Sunday unless absolutely necessary. Mayor Davidson does not propose to be the judge on this point, although he will not interfere with the work, believing it to be necessary. The contractors must take the responsibility.

Last Sunday a resident of the East End made complaint about Sunday work on railroad construction.

THE DATE FIXED

Wheeling, March 21.—A man in the employ of the Wheeling Traction company as a minor official made the statement in Bridgeport last night that the company would start April 1 on the construction of the St. Clairsville line. They operate from Wheeling Creek to Pasco under the name of the Wheeling and Western and so far they have never announced what route they would take from Pasco to the county seat.

A party of surveyors have been at work on the survey for several days and the man who made the statement quoted above said they were getting ready to commence work. It is pretty generally believed that they will go via Barton rather than over the route of the National pike over the Big hill. Barton people will petition the county commissioners to give them the new right of way.

AN INTERESTING FIGHT FOR TROLLEY FRANCHISE OVER IN HANCOCK COUNTY

County Court Hears the Rival Applicants and Refuses to Sanction the Plans of Either.

In refusing to grant a charter to either of the applying concerns for an electric railway to Congo the county court at New Cumberland yesterday deprived the residents of the county of one of the greatest improvements that could be added to the neighboring district.

Propositions galore have been made to the county by different projecting companies and in all preceding cases the action taken was in substance the same as that of yesterday, differing only in the fact that the former applications upon being turned down were responded to with an explanation. Those who applied yesterday were all of East Liverpool, C. A. Smith and J. E. McDonald, representing a company, wanted a franchise from Chester to Congo, and Joseph G. Lee and W. E. Wells, representing another company of capitalists, asked for a franchise from a point opposite the west end of Fourth street, this city, to the land known as the Newell tract.

This latter application it can be seen was for but little more than a mile. Both applications were unceremoniously rejected.

The Smith and McDonald people agreed to furnish a bona fide bond securing the building of the road within 18 months and the application was made without asking for an exclusive grant. They expressed themselves as being favorable to a competing line, and were willing to construct the line along any route that might be designed by the court. Why this proposition was rejected can be accounted for only by conjecture. The attorneys for the applicants asked for a reason for the refusal, but no answer was made. In like manner the Lee and Wells application was refused. They also wanted some reason, but the court evaded answering, and both combinations were compelled to return home without the knowledge of where they had fallen short.

FUND FOR MRS. LAIRD IS AGAIN INCREASED

Substantial Donations Received Swell the Total to $279, With More to Come.

A substantial boost was given the fund for Mrs. Neil Laird today and the total amount now reaches $279.40. The cash contributions reported since last published are as follows:

Cash	$ 1 00
Old end K., T. & K. pottery employes	3 25
Standard pottery employes	19 50

It is expected that tonight the total will reach nearly or quite $300, as several potteries have not yet reported anything where it was said that money would be raised.

AACCINATION WAR ON

Superintendent Charged With Permitting Pupils to Attend School Who Ignored Health Law.

Warren, March 21.—Superintendent of Schools W. L. Macowan appeared before Magistrate Meacham yesterday to answer a charge preferred by anti-vaccipationists of permitting Howard Trusler, a high school student to attend school without holding a certificate of vaccination. The vaccination question has been before the public for several months and considerable bad feeling has been engendered by a strict construction of the law on the part of the board of education.

This was a test case and every point was bitterly contested. T. L. Hampson represented the prosecution and D. L. Ball and W. E. Rice the defendant. The decision of the magistrate was reserved until tonight, but an appeal will be taken no matter what the decision may be.

Fell Dead While Laughing.

Upper Sandusky, March 21.—Nicholas Kettle and his son-in-law, Henry Thomas, were setting fence posts. While they were working they laughed and joked. Without warning Thomas fell over dead in the midst of a laugh. He had never been troubled with any heart affection.

A YOUNG MAN'S HALLUCINATIONS

HIS CASE A VERY SAD ONE

Barney Carr, a well known young potter, has been causing his friends and the police no end of uneasiness in the past few days owing to his queer actions and it is feared that unless he is taken into custody some harm will befall him. Since the first of the year the young man has been showing signs of insanity, and the dread malady has been growing worse of late.

Young Carr has a hallucination that he is a brakeman and has been spending a great deal of time along the railroad track. Every time a freight train passes he runs along beside the cars, catching at the steps as if trying to climb aboard. After the train has passed he pursues the caboose for quite a distance. Some of the freight trains travel through the city at a high rate of speed and the hallucination is likely to cause fatal results.

An officer came across him late in the night a short time ago and asked him why he did not go to bed. "I must go," he replied, "for I have to take out my run in the morning." Several small boys have been teasing him, a dangerous undertaking, with his mind in its present condition. It is stated that he threatened to strike with bricks two lads who had been tormenting him.

Carr was sent to the infirmary about two weeks ago by the township trustees, but was released from that institution the early part of this week. Upon his return to this city he told that he had been confined in the Lisbon jail and had made his escape by assaulting the turnkey with a poker. Bloodhounds that were placed upon his trail were killed after a desperate encounter. Since his return he has been roaming about the street and his friends have noticed that his condition has grown steadily worse. Carr was a popular young fellow before seized with this mental derangement and his friends will probably ask that he be taken into custody before some harm comes to him. It is thought that a few months of the proper sort of treatment would cure the malady whereas if he is permitted to run at large he may become a complete maniac.

THE LATEST LIFE ELIXIR

Sometimes He May Survive After the Heart Has Ceased to Beat—Dr. Crile Writes of His Series of Experiments.

Cleveland, March 21.—The application of Dr. George W. Crile's discovery of adrenalin as a modern "elixir of life," is attracting wide attention in the east, where it is believed it will be the means of saving the lives of countless persons who die from what is known as "heart failure."

This phase of the situation has not been discussed up to the present time by physicians and surgeons of this city, but according to eastern newspapers there is every possibility that Dr. Crile's discovery may be applied to cover cases of this character.

The announcement of Dr. Crile's discovery was made some weeks ago when it was shown that he had successfully experimented on dogs, and had kept a dog that had been decapitated, alive for ten hours and thirty minutes by injecting systematically solutions of adrenalin into the veins of the animal. It was contended at this time that what could be accomplished with a dog could be accomplished with a human being, and that the discovery meant that in the future, surgeons would be able to deal effectively with cases of surgical shock, suffocation, and shock by electricity. It was stated that practically the only case that could not be successfully treated would be where tissues were either diseased or destroyed.

The discovery renewed the discussion regarding the spark of human life. "Is a man dead when the heart ceases to beat?" was a most pertinent question asked of a number of physicians. In each case they replied that in view of Dr. Crile's experiments indicated that in some cases the spark of life must be present in the body even after the heart had ceased to beat. This, they said, was especially true in cases where death had apparently come as the result of suffocation or from electrical or surgical shock.

In the east, the newspapers have gone a step farther. They have obtained statements which couple Dr. Crile's discovery with that of Dr. Sajous, of Philadelphia. The latter made the startling statement that a person need never be ill if he kept the pituitary body in its normal condition. He pointed out that elixir of life was in certain ductless glands just above the kidneys, and that so long as these performed their functions properly, such things as tuberculosis, heart disease, etc., would be out of the question. It was further intimated that Dr. Crile's discovery, together with that of Dr. Sajous, meant that in time, death could only come through a destruction of tissue. It was also declared that Drs. Crile and Sajous were the successors of Dr. Brown-Sequard, of Paris, who startled the world a few years ago with his announcement that he had discovered the elixir of life. This discovery failed to come up to expectations, but it is believed that Dr. Crile and Dr. Sajous have been working on the same general principle.

"In shock the essential phenomenon is a diminution of the blood pressure. Since there are no demonstrable lesions (or burstings of the sac) in fatal cases, and no later effects in those that recover, we will assume exhaustion, rather than structural lesions, to be the cause of this fall in vitality.

"It must, then, be an exhaustion of the cardiac muscle, of the cardiac centers, of the blood vessels, of the vasomotor system, those sympathetic nerves which are spread out over the vital organs and have so much to do with the heart and the stomach and 'the way we feel.' Their center is, of course, the medulla oblongata, that little part of the spinal cord above the cord proper leading to and connecting it with the brain.

"The heart cannot be at fault, for the heart as an organ it noted for the large amount of labor it can perform without fatigue. In shock, on account of the diminished blood pressure, there is even less work for the heart muscle to do than in the normal state. In a series of experiments after the animal had been reduced to a degree of shock presumably fatal, the blood pressure was, by special means, raised much higher than normal. The heart then performed its normal function. There was then no material fatigue of the heart muscle."

BRUTAL ASSAULT BY THREE MEN

Refusal to Sell Liquor to Another the Supposed Cause of Attack.

Lisbon, March 21. — (Special.) — William Geller, a bartender at the East End saloon, in this town, was brutally assaulted by three men last night and badly used up. One of his assailants was since arrested and the extent of Geller's injuries are not known, but a large pool of blood in the street at the scene of the fracas indicates that it was a vicious affair.

The story is that Tommy Griffith is the man who committed the assault and that he had two companions, Eddie Garwood and Frank Downer. Geller seems to have offended Griffith by refusing to sell him whisky when intoxicated. One of these occasions was said to have been but yesterday afternoon and last night Griffith and his companions laid in wait for Geller at North Beaver street. They were seen during the evening at the electric light plant and later were seen going up the street in a shadow near the place of assault. They met Geller and asked him why he wouldn't sell them anything. Then he struck Geller, who fell in a heap in the street and his assailants are said to have jumped on him and kicked him. When they thought they had inflicted severe enough punishment Griffith and his companions started to leave the scene when Geller drew a revolver and fired.

Griffith picked up a couple of brick bats and started with the avowed intention of finishing his victim, when Mack Reed happened along and restrained him. The four men left. Neighbors were aroused by the altercation. Geller's condition is not regarded as serious this morning, although he was badly cut and bruised, especially about the head and face.

MAYOR DOES NOT PROPOSE TO ACT AS THE JUDGE

The Railroad, if Working Sunday, Does So on Its Own Responsibility.

Application has been made to Mayor Davidson by the C. & P. contractors for permission to work tomorrow on the railroad bridge that spans Dry Run in the East End. The recent high water got in behind the stone retaining walls and the entire structure is threatened with collapse unless the damage is repaired before heavy rains set in. The contractors have had a large force of men doing this repair work for a number of days, but it is impossible for them to get the bridge in shape to withstand the elements before the arrival of Sunday.

The law is very stringent against doing work of this nature on Sunday unless absolutely necessary. Mayor Davidson does not propose to be the judge on this point, although he will not interfere with the work, believing it to be necessary. The contractors must take the responsibility.

Last Sunday a resident of the East End made complaint about Sunday work on railroad construction.

THE DATE FIXED

Wheeling, March 21.—A man in the employ of the Wheeling Traction company as a minor official made the statement in Bridgeport last night that the company would start April 1 on the construction of the St. Clairsville line. They operate from Wheeling Creek to Pasco under the name of the Wheeling and Western and so far they have never announced what route they would take from Pasco to the county seat.

A party of surveyors have been at work on the survey for several days and the man who made the statement quoted above said they were getting ready to commence work. It is pretty generally beheved that they will go via Barton rather than over the route of the National pike over the Big hill. Barton people will petition the county commissioners to give them the new right of way.

AN INTERESTING FIGHT FOR TROLLEY FRANCHISE OVER IN HANCOCK COUNTY

County Court Hears the Rival Applicants and Refuses to Sanction the Plans of Either.

In refusing to grant a charter to either of the applying concerns for an electric railway to Congo the county court at New Cumberland yesterday deprived the residents of the county of one of the greatest improvements that could be added to the neighboring district.

Propositions galore have been made to the county by different projecting companies and in all preceding cases the action taken was in substance the same as that of yesterday, differing only in the fact that the former applications upon being turned down were responded to with an explanation. Those who applied yesterday were all of East Liverpool, C. A. Smith and J. E. McDonald, representing a company, wanted a franchise from Chester to Congo, and Joseph G. Lee and W. E. Wells, representing another company of capitalists, asked for a franchise from a point opposite the west end of Fourth street, this city, to the land known as the Newell tract.

This latter application it can be seen was for but little more than a mile. Both applications were unceremoniously rejected.

The Smith and McDonald people agreed to furnish a bona fide bond securing the building of the road within 18 months and the application was made without asking for an exclusive grant. They expressed themselves as being favorable to a competing line, and were willing to construct the line along any route that might be designed by the court. Why this proposition was rejected can be accounted for only by conjecture. The attorneys for the applicants asked for a reason for the refusal, but no answer was made. In like manner the Lee and Wells application was refused. They also wanted some reason, but the court evaded answering, and both combinations were compelled to return home without the knowledge of where they had fallen short.

FUND FOR MRS. LAIRD IS AGAIN INCREASED

Substantial Donations Received Swell the Total to $279, With More to Come.

A substantial boost was given the fund for Mrs. Neil Laird today and the total amount now reaches $279.40. The cash contributions reported since last published are as follows:

Cash	$ 1 00
Standard pottery employes	19 50

It is expected that tonight the total will reach nearly or quite $300, as several potteries have not yet reported anything where it was said that money would be raised.

AACCINATION WAR ON

Superintendent Charged With Permitting Pupils to Attend School Who Ignored Health Law.

Warren, March 21.—Superintendent of Schools W. L. Macowan appeared before Magistrate Meacham yesterday to answer a charge preferred by anti-vaccipationists of permitting Howard Trusler, a high school student to attend school without holding a certificate of vaccination. The vaccination question has been before the public for several months and considerable bad feeling has been engendered by a strict construction of the law on the part of the board of education.

This was a test case and every point was bitterly contested. T. L. Hampson represented the prosecution and D. L. Ball and W. E. Rice the defendant. The decision of the magistrate was reserved until tonight, but an appeal will be taken no matter what the decision may be.

Fell Dead While Laughing.

Upper Sandusky, March 21.—Nicholas Kettle and his son-in-law, Henry Thomas, were setting fence posts. While they were working they laughed and joked. Without warning Thomas fell over dead in the midst of a laugh. He had never been troubled with any heart affection.

A YOUNG MAN'S HALLUCINATIONS

HIS CASE A VERY SAD ONE

Barney Carr, a well known young potter, has been causing his friends and the police no end of uneasiness in the past few days owing to his queer actions and it is feared that unless he is taken into custody some harm will befall him. Since the first of the year the young man has been showing signs of insanity, and the dread malady has been growing worse of late.

Young Carr has a hallucination that he is a brakeman and has been spending a great deal of time along the railroad track. Every time a freight train passes he runs along beside the cars, catching at the steps as if trying to climb aboard. After the train has passed he pursues the caboose for quite a distance. Some of the freight trains travel through the city at a high rate of speed and the hallucination is likely to cause fatal results.

An officer came across him late in the night a short time ago and asked him why he did not go to bed. "I must go," he replied, "for I have to take out my run in the morning." Several small boys have been teasing him, a dangerous undertaking, with his mind in its present condition. It is stated that he threatened to strike with bricks two lads who had been tormenting him.

Carr was sent to the infirmary about two weeks ago by the township trustees, but was released from that institution the early part of this week. Upon his return to this city he told that he had been confined in the Lisbon jail and had made his escape by assaulting the turnkey with a poker. Bloodhounds that were placed upon his trail were killed after a desperate encounter. Since his return he has been roaming about the street and his friends have noticed that his condition has grown steadily worse. Carr was a popular young fellow before seized with this mental derangement and his friends will probably ask that he be taken into custody before some harm comes to him. It is thought that a few months of the proper sort of treatment would cure the malady whereas if he is permitted to run at large he may become a complete maniac.

CAR CREW IS ACCUSED OF ROBBING AGED MAN

COMPELLED BY THREATS TO GIVE UP CASH

Alfred Burrows, aged 61, a well known brick layer, who has been a resident of this city for the past 14 years, and who during that period has made numerous friends and proved himself to be an honorable and upright man, has made information at police headquarters of an alleged robbery committed on last Wednesday evening between the hours of 9 and 10 o'clock, while he was riding to his home in the East End on a street car. Mr. Burrows lives on Dry Run, in the East End, with his daughter, Mrs. Heckathorn. A News Review reporter saw him there today and he related the following story:

"You can see by my general appearance that I am a man of advanced age. I am not the man I once was and it is due to my failing in strength that the story which I am about to tell you is not different. I am a brick layer by trade and as strong a union man as lives. Last Wednesday evening I was not feeling well, but had been informed that a meeting of my union was to be held and decided to go down town and attend. I was at the meeting and paid my monthly dues. At its conclusion I walked down to Second street with several of my friends and when a car came along I bade them good night and stepped aboard.

"Usually I carry but a small amount of money in my pockets. I generally try to have loose change when I get on a street car, and thought I had a dime when I got on at this particular time, but when the conductor came for my fare I reached for the dime and discovered that it was a penny. I then reached for a leather wallet in my inside vest pocket and took from it a $5 bill. This I handed to the conductor and he gave me my change.

"Instead of replacing the change in my wallet I put it into my trousers pocket and thought nothing of the transaction. There were quite a number on the car when I was seated, but they dropped off at intervals all along

INTEREST GROWS FROM DAY TO DAY

OVER 20,000 VOTES CAST

The close of the first week of the News Review's organized labor coupon contest has shown that a wonderful interest has been taken in it from the start, and that this interest has been increasing from day to day. When the count was made for the announcement of the vote today more than 20,000 had been cast, and there are thousands of the "series A" ballots yet in the hands of the contestants and their friends.

The number of actual workers for the contestants is increasing every day. Every night they carry on the work of gathering up the coupons, which are to be filled out and voted for their favorite. These workers are inspired by friendship or the ties of close kinship with the contestants. "Save your coupons for me" is an expression heard on all sides.

The coupons are being saved in nearly every home in the city and even in the neighboring towns the interest is general and the coupons are being stored up. The two out-of-town candidates so far announced have received quite a large vote. There is not the slightest feeling of animosity between the contestants in spite of the fact that there is considerable rivalry, and the friendly feeling promises to exist throughout.

That the News Review is the popular paper of this city and neighborhood is clearly shown by the wide interest taken in its voting contest. Commendations of its plan to give two people of the city connected with organized labor pleasant summer trips can be heard on every side.

The contest is open to all who can comply with the conditions printed upon another page, and those who wish to contest can enter at any time. Save the coupons from each and every paper and vote early and often.

This is the way the votes stand:

That there is something more than mere talk for speculative purposes behind the Lake & River road is clearly proved by the fact that Cleveland banks have underwritten bonds of the French railway lines for about $2,000,000. It is said that about $3,000,000 of Cleveland money will be invested in this road, and it is expected that it will be applied at once towards constructing the road from Sandusky toward the Ohio river. Rights of way are now being secured along that route.

"The line is to proceed from Sandusky Harbor southward through Ohio to East Liverpool, and then on to Beaver, where connection will be made with the Pittsburg & Lake Erie for the desired entrance into Pittsburg. This will at once put the French lines in position to handle lake and river coal, and also ore from the lakes to the furnaces of the Mahoning valley and the Pittsburg district.

"After the line from Sandusky to Beaver has been completed plans will be made to connect up the French lines east and west with the Nickel Plate and the Pittsburg & Lake Erie, thus forming another road from Pittsburg to Chicago. It is said this will not interfere in any way with the existing contract between the Pittsburg & Lake Erie and the Erie railroad."

THE BOAT SUNK AND CREW DROWNED

Fog was the cause of the collision.

Engine Was Moving Slowly Or He Would Probably Have Been Killed.

Orville McKinnon, a potter living in the East End, was seriously injured yesterday evening about 5 o'clock by being hit with a freight train near the Globe pottery. The freight was just leaving the switch and was proceeding slowly, which probably accounts for the fact that he was not killed.

McKinnon came near being struck by the passenger train going east and compelled the train to stop to get him off the track. The whistle was blown repeatedly, but he failed to hear it. As soon as the passenger train was past him, McKinnon again stepped on the track, but was caught in a few moments by the freight and thrown in the air. He landed to one side of the track and a number of bystanders rushed to him and carried him into the office of the Globe pottery. The patrol wagon was summoned and McKinnon was taken to the office of Dr. Marshall, where an examination revealed the fact that he was not seriously inured. The patrol wagon then took him to his home in Dixonville, ust beyond the city limits. When he left the patrol he was able to walk into the house with the assistance of two friends. It is thought he will be out again as usual in a few days.

NOTICE IS SERVED UPON THE RAILROAD

C. & P. Agrees to Suspend Work on the City's West End Property.

Mayor Davidson has served notice on the C. & P. railroad that all work on the two unnamed alleys and Washington street in the west end of the city must cease until it is determined whether or not the railroad company is encroaching upon city property.

City Engineer Kelly, on behalf of the mayor, made a communication by telephone to Engineer of Maintenance of Way Wood, Wellsville. Engineer Wood stated that the work would be ordered stopped at once, but it is doubtful whether this will be done. It is the usual rule of railroad companies to go ahead with such work and listen to orders afterward. Then the location of the two unnamed alleys is so obscure that an officer in serving an injunction would need the services of the engineer in determining if the railroad company had been encroaching upon a city highway.

There is some doubt as to the authority of the mayor to take action upon an injunction from the common pleas court.

STRIKE COMMISSION REPORT PUBLISHED

Washington, March 21.—(Special)—The report of the anthrocite coal strike commission made public today, recommends a general increase in wages of ten per cent and some decreases of time; fixes the minimum wage and sliding scales; suggests settlement of all disputes by arbitration; provides against discrimination by either operators or miners on account of membership or nonmembership in unions, and provides awards made shall continue in force until March 31, 1906.

The commission declined to make an award in the matter of recognition of the union.

Warren, March 21.—Superintendent of Schools W. L. Macowan appeared before Magistrate Meacham yesterday to answer a charge preferred by anti-vaccipationists of permitting Howard Trusler, a high school student to attend school without holding a certificate of vaccination. The vaccination question has been before the public for several months and considerable bad feeling has been engendered by a strict construction of the law on the part of the board of education.

This was a test case and every point was bitterly contested. T. L. Hampson represented the prosecution and D. L. Ball and W. E. Rice the defendant. The decision of the magistrate was reserved until tonight, but an appeal will be taken no matter what the decision may be.

Fell Dead While Laughing.

Upper Sandusky, March 21.—Nicholas Kettle and his son-in-law, Henry Thomas, were setting fence posts. While they were working they laughed and joked. Without warning Thomas fell over dead in the midst of a laugh. He had never been troubled with any heart affection.

A YOUNG MAN'S HALLUCINATIONS

HIS CASE A VERY SAD ONE

Barney Carr, a well known young potter, has been causing his friends and the police no end of uneasiness in the past few days owing to his queer actions and it is feared that unless he is taken into custody some harm will befall him. Since the first of the year the young man has been showing signs of insanity, and the dread malady has been growing worse of late.

Young Carr has a hallucination that he is a brakeman and has been spending a great deal of time along the railroad track. Every time a freight train passes he runs along beside the cars, catching at the steps as if trying to climb aboard. After the train has passed he pursues the caboose for quite a distance. Some of the freight trains travel through the city at a high rate of speed and the hallucination is likely to cause fatal results.

An officer came across him late in the night a short time ago and asked him why he did not go to bed. "I must go," he replied, "for I have to take out my run in the morning." Several small boys have been teasing him, a dangerous undertaking, with his mind in its present condition. It is stated that he threatened to strike with bricks two lads who had been tormenting him.

Carr was sent to the infirmary about two weeks ago by the township trustees, but was released from that institution the early part of this week. Upon his return to this city he told that he had been confined in the Lisbon jail and had made his escape by assaulting the turnkey with a poker. Bloodhounds that were placed upon his trail were killed after a desperate encounter. Since his return he has been roaming about the street and his friends have noticed that his condition has grown steadily worse. Carr was a popular young fellow before seized with this mental derangement and his friends will probably ask that he be taken into custody before some harm comes to him. It is thought that a few months of the proper sort of treatment would cure the malady whereas if he is permitted to run at large he may become a complete maniac.

WITH THE WORKMEN IN THE CLAY PLANTS

SCARCITY OF HOUSES.

The situation in Salineville concerning homes for the workmen is not improving, says the Salineville Banner. As soon as the building season opens up it is thought that many new dwellings will be erected. Local contractors have closed but few contracts yet, but say that conditions warrant the belief that many new homes will be built this summer, providing water can be placed on the new additions. Grandview would rapidly build up if lot owners were supplied with city water, but they do not care to take the risk of erecting a dwelling on the hill if no guarantee can be given that water will be supplied. Exactly the same conditions exist in the Ottumwa addition and unless water is placed to the convenience of prospective users but little building will be done. Not a single day passes that some one does not inquire about a dwelling and on every hand can be heard the one complaint, why don't some one build homes for the incoming workmen. The situation has assumed a serious aspect and unless some one comes to the relief the town cannot go forward as it should.

PEORIA NOTES.

Peoria, March 21.—The pottery here is running along about the same, the clay hands loafing half time on account of the slip house. Almost every day there is a new crew that don't understand the work and we believe the firm would make out better if they would try and get an experienced hand to take hold of the clay making.

Rob Mitchell is also working out his notice to take charge of the dipping and placing at Monmouth, Ill.

Joe Kutch, the other printer, is putting in his time printing and running the tinting machine.

W. W. Rhoads, for seven years secretary of local No. 27, is a candidate for alderman on the Republican ticket and we wish him success.

CARROLLTON NOTES.

The contract for the lumber work on the Carrollton plant was to be let yesterday, but the successful bidder could not be learned. Charles Albright, of Sebring, one of the promoters of the plant, was at Carrollton to see what progress had been made on the building. Fifteen men are now employed on the work and this number will be doubled within a short time. The five kilns have been marked out and the bricklayers are to commence work Monday. The Carrollton Brick company is to furnish the brick to be used in the building work and 60 carloads, or 400,000, will be required. A certificate of incorporation has been filed in Delaware for the Carrollton Pottery company, the capital stock being $125.000.

TWO KILNS DRAWN.

Two bisque kilns have been drawn at the Derry plant and it is expected to be in full swing by the first of May. The dippers will start to work next Tuesday and John Boulton, who is to have charge of this department, will report for work on the 24th. It is expected to draw the first glost kiln about the first of April. A. L. Young, who is to be the art director of the plant, has been hard at work on the preliminary measures necessary to get his department in operation, although he still has some time to spare before he will have the ware to work on. He is now engaging operatives from among the best in the business and will go to Derry again soon to consult with the owners.

THREE REINSTATED.

Packers' local No. 25 held another interesting and important meeting last night. The matter of clearing up the present difficulty among the packers and the adoption of the piece scale is one of grave moment and is occupying the attention of nearly every member. The delegates from the local to the Trades and Labor Council reported that the council had referred the matter to the grievance committee, to report at the next meeting. Three members were reinstated last night and two were obligated.

NO. 9'S MEETING.

The proposition to take stock in the co-operative store was acted upon favorably last evening by Kilnmen's local No. 9. Three shares of $10 each were taken, this being the limit for any individual or local. The kilnmen had a very interesting meeting, and it was well attended. This is the fourth local to subscribe to the co-operative stock.

MR. NEAL ILL.

Thomas Neal, president of No. 9, and one of the leading contestants in the News Review's organized labor coupon contest, was taken suddenly ill last night with an attack of grip. His condition is not regarded as serious, but he will be compelled to remain indoors for several days.

AMONG THE WORKMEN.

Sam Leighton, the dishmaker, has returned to the Dresden.

A new jigger, to be used for the present on nut bowls, has been installed at the Dresden.

D. F. Bowman, engineer at the Oliver, Sebring, has returned from a three weeks' visit in Indiana cities.

Frank Pumphrey has resigned as night watchman at the Salineville plant and James Robbins has succeeded him.

Owing to repairs that are being made to the kilns at the Sebring eight jiggermen have been laid off until Monday.

Fred Pennington, the well known packer, has the offer of the shed at Crooksville, but it is not likely that he will accept.

Thomas Manypenny, jiggerman at the Sebring, was called to Wellsville a few days ago by the serious illness of his father, Alexander Manypenny.

Harry Farmer, packer at McNicol's, who has been in ill-health for some time, has taken a situation at Akron, in the hope that the change will benefit him.

Isaac Phillips, engineer at the Salineville plant, has been off duty the past week owing to the illness of two of his sisters, and John Burgett has been running his engine.

PAINFULLY INJURED AT A SERENADE

Father of a Young Groom Victim of An Exploding Shot Gun.

Salem, March 21.—While inspecting the progress of a "belling" at his home Thursday night, Frank Harris, who resides three miles south of Salem, was struck in the leg by a piece of metal which flew from a shot gun, and was painfully injured.

A few days ago Harris' son, Harvey, was married. The young man took his bride to his father's home Thursday and in the evening a reception was held. The affair was largely attended. While part of the crowd was in the house the balance remained outside and made "night hideous" with all sorts of infernal noises.

One of the noise producing devices, extensively employed during the progress of the outside demonstration, was a shotgun. This weapon had been frequently fired with heavy charges, Frank Harris, the father, went to the door to see how the boys were getting along. Just as he appeared the shot gun exploded and pieces of the metal flew in all directions, one striking him.

MONEY IN A RAT HOLE

Thieves Hid the Old Man's Cash There, But It Has Been Recovered.

Moundsville, W. Va., March 21.—Eighty dollars was found hidden in a rat hole in the county jail by Marshal Lutes, of McMechen, who had received a tip that the money had been secreted there by two chicken thieves who are serving time.

A week ago John Groves was placed in jail on the charge of drunkenness and he had on his person $80. When he sobered up and looked for the money in his pocket with which to pay the fine it was not there. The chicken thieves were suspected of robbing him and were searched, but nothing discovered. A confederate gave the thing away and the old man's coin was returned.

ADD SCHOOL.. .. ..

Sixth Street School.

Miss Effie Knowles, teacher of the first grade, is gratified with the improvement in attendance which has been made during the last week in her school. Yesterday afternoon Miss Knowles gave the children some paper cutting work to do, and some of the designs which were made in blue and yellow paper are very pretty and will make a striking decoration.

Miss Martha Caliebe's second grade pupils are doing remarkably well in their music. They are taking up the two part music, the boys singing the alto and the girls the soprano, and this work, which is often difficult for children so young, is made a source of pleasure to the girls and boys of this room. Miss Caleibe has very good spelling work in all of her classes, for a friendly rivalry and contest is going on among the children. Each pupil who succeeds in getting 100 four times, is given a gold heart, and each one is now striving to see who will get the largest number of hearts.

Friday afternoon always finds the children in Miss Caliebe's school doing some kind of special work which is instructive and at the same time a pleasure and diversion for them. Last Friday the children were given paper cutting, and each Friday afternoon Miss Cadiebe plans something of this kind of work for the little ones.

The scholars of Miss Croft's fifth grade have been doing some clay modeling which is a credit to any school. Some of the children made grapes, some leaves, or apples. Several of the children displayed their originality and ingenuity in the making of the clay into a calendar for the month of March. Another unique model is that of a tiny wash tub and wash board.

Miss Roach has been giving the pupils of her sixth grade an excellent review in all of the branches which she teaches in her school. After the examinations are over Miss Roach is planning to have the pupils of her school do some extra drawing work. The attendance in this room is always excellent, averaging about 90 per cent, but the children are working still harder to have their average approach as far as possible the 100 per cent mark this month.

West End School.

Miss Faulk, who teaches the first grade, is very much pleased with the reading and spelling work which the children of her school are doing. Recently they have been having some special work in reading, and with this work are doing quite a little drawing. Very often the time on Friday afternoon is devoted to a general review, except when there is other special work planned.

In the third grade, which is taught by Miss Lowrie, the pupils are manifesting great interest in their language work. They have been reproducing stories taken from the readers.

A contest in spelling between the classes of the school, in which the average grade of the entire class is taken to determine which class has the leadership, and other methods are bringing good results in work.

Prof. Herbert Johnson, principal of the West End building, has been spending the time during the past week having review work preparatory to the examinations. This review is always a great help to the children and much appreciated by them.

STRONGEST EVIDENCE OF FAITH

Will Reed Guarantees That Hyomei Will Cure the Worst Case of Catarrh in East Liverpool.

When one of the most reputable concerns in East Liverpool guarantees that a medicine will effect a cure or he will refund the money, it speaks volumes as to the merit of that remedy. It is in this way that Will Reed is selling Hyomei, the treatment that has made so many remarkable cures of both acute and chronic cases of catarrh in East Liverpool and vicinity.

Hyomei is not a pill nor is it a liquid that has to be taken with a tablespoon or winegiass. Just breathe it by the aid of an inhaler that comes in every outfit and benefit will be seen from the first treatment.

It destroys all germ life in the air passages and lungs and enriches and purifies the blood with additional ozone. It cures catarrh of the head and throat, or of the stomach, liver and kidneys. Wherever mucous membrane contains catarrhal germs, there Hyomei will do its work of healing. When using this treatment, the air you breathe will be found like that on the mountains high above the sea level, where grow balsamic trees and plants which make the air pure by giving off volatile antiseptic fragrance that is healing to the respiratory organs.

Remember that if Hyomei does not cure you, Will Reed will refund your money. This is a good time to cure catarrh by this natural method and prevent catarrhal colds that are so common at this season.

NOTICE TO CLEAN UP

By authority of and in compliance with the requirements of Section 107 of the Codified Ordinances of the City of East Liverpool, Ohio, I, Frank Dickey, City Commissioner, hereby give notice to the owners or occupants of lots to remove all filth, rubbish and other obstructions from the sidewalks, gutters, and one-half the width of the street or alley adjoining his or her premises, on or before

THURSDAY, THE 16th DAY OF APRIL, 1903.

If any owner or occupant of any lot of premises shall neglect or refuse to remove such rubbish or obstructions within the time specified, the City Commissioner will proceed to remove the same at the cost and expense of the owner or occupant of the property.

ADD SCHOOL.. .. ..

Sixth Street School.

Miss Effie Knowles, teacher of the first grade, is gratified with the improvement in attendance which has been made during the last week in her school. Yesterday afternoon Miss Knowles gave the children some paper cutting work to do, and some of the designs which were made in blue and yellow paper are very pretty and will make a striking decoration.

Miss Martha Caliebe's second grade pupils are doing remarkably well in their music. They are taking up the two part music, the boys singing the alto and the girls the soprano, and this work, which is often difficult for children so young, is made a source of pleasure to the girls and boys of this room. Miss Caliebe has very good spelling work in all of her classes, for a friendly rivalry and contest is going on among the children. Each pupil who succeeds in getting 100 four times, is given a gold heart, and each one is now striving to see who will get the largest number of hearts.

Friday afternoon always finds the children in Miss Caliebe's school doing some kind of special work which is instructive and at the same time a pleasure and diversion for them. Last Friday the children were given paper cutting, and each Friday afternoon Miss Cadiebe plans something of this kind of work for the little ones.

The scholars of Miss Croft's fifth grade have been doing some clay modeling which is a credit to any school. Some of the children made grapes, some leaves, or apples. Several of the children displayed their originality and ingenuity in the making of the clay into a calendar for the month of March. Another unique model is that of a tiny wash tub and wash board.

Miss Roach has been giving the pupils of her sixth grade an excellent review in all of the branches which she teaches in her school. After the examinations are over Miss Roach is planning to have the pupils of her school do some extra drawing work. The attendance in this room is always excellent, averaging about 90 per cent, but the children are working still harder to have their average approach as far as possible the 100 per cent mark this month.

West End School.

Miss Faulk, who teaches the first grade, is very much pleased with the reading and spelling work which the children of her school are doing. Recently they have been having some special work in reading, and with this work are doing quite a little drawing. Very often the time on Friday afternoon is devoted to a general review, except when there is other special work planned.

In the third grade, which is taught by Miss Lowrie, the pupils are manifesting great interest in their language work. They have been reproducing stories taken from the readers.

A contest in spelling between the classes of the school, in which the average grade of the entire class is taken to determine which class has the leadership, and other methods are bringing good results in work.

Prof. Herbert Johnson, principal of the West End building, has been spending the time during the past week having review work preparatory to the examinations. This review is always a great help to the children and much appreciated by them.

Will Reed Guarantees That Hyomei Will Cure the Worst Case of Catarrh in East Liverpool.

When one of the most reputable concerns in East Liverpool guarantees that a medicine will effect a cure or he will refund the money, it speaks volumes as to the merit of that remedy. It is in this way that Will Reed is selling Hyomei, the treatment that has made so many remarkable cures of both acute and chronic cases of catarrh in East Liverpool and vicinity.

Hyomei is not a pill nor is it a liquid that has to be taken with a tablespoon or winegiass. Just breathe it by the aid of an inhaler that comes in every outfit and benefit will be seen from the first treatment.

It destroys all germ life in the air passages and lungs and enriches and purifies the blood with additional ozone. It cures catarrh of the head and throat, or of the stomach, liver and kidneys. Wherever mucous membrane contains catarrhal germs, there Hyomei will do its work of healing. When using this treatment, the air you breathe will be found like that on the mountains high above the sea level, where grow balsamic trees and plants which make the air pure by giving off volatile antiseptic fragrance that is healing to the respiratory organs.

Remember that if Hyomei does not cure you, Will Reed will refund your money. This is a good time to cure catarrh by this natural method and prevent catarrhal colds that are so common at this season.

WITH THE WORKMEN IN THE CLAY PLANTS

SCARCITY OF HOUSES.

The situation in Salineville concerning homes for the workmen is not improving, says the Salineville Banner. As soon as the building season opens up it is thought that many new dwellings will be erected. Local contractors have closed but few contracts yet, but say that conditions warrant the belief that many new homes will be built this summer, providing water can be placed on the new additions. Grandview would rapidly build up if lot owners were supplied with city water, but they do not care to take the risk of erecting a dwelling on the hill if no guarantee can be given that water will be supplied. Exactly the same conditions exist in the Ottumwa addition and unless water is placed to the convenience of prospective users but little building will be done. Not a single day passes that some one does not inquire about a dwelling and on every hand can be heard the one complaint, why don't some one build homes for the incoming workmen. The situation has assumed a serious aspect and unless some one comes to the relief the town cannot go forward as it should.

PEORIA NOTES.

Peoria, March 21.—The pottery here is running along about the same, the clay hands loafing half time on account of the slip house. Almost every day there is a new crew that don't understand the work and we believe the firm would make out better if they would try and get an experienced hand to take hold of the clay making.

Rob Mitchell is also working out his notice to take charge of the dipping and placing at Monmouth, Ill.

Joe Kutch, the other printer, is putting in his time printing and running the tinting machine.

W. W. Rhoads, for seven years secretary of local No. 27, is a candidate for alderman on the Republican ticket and we wish him success.

CARROLLTON NOTES.

The contract for the lumber work on the Carrollton plant was to be let yesterday, but the successful bidder could not be learned. Charles Albright, of Sebring, one of the promoters of the plant, was at Carrollton to see what progress had been made on the building. Fifteen men are now employed on the work and this number will be doubled within a short time. The five kilns have been marked out and the bricklayers are to commence work Monday. The Carrollton Brick company is to furnish the brick to be used in the building work and 60 carloads, or 400,000, will be required. A certificate of incorporation has been filed in Delaware for the Carrollton Pottery company, the capital stock being $125.000.

TWO KILNS DRAWN.

Two bisque kilns have been drawn at the Derry plant and it is expected to be in full swing by the first of May. The dippers will start to work next Tuesday and John Boulton, who is to have charge of this department, will report for work on the 24th. It is expected to draw the first glost kiln about the first of April. A. L. Young, who is to be the art director of the plant, has been hard at work on the preliminary measures necessary to get his department in operation, although he still has some time to spare before he will have the ware to work on. He is now engaging operatives from among the best in the business and will go to Derry again soon to consult with the owners.

THREE REINSTATED.

Packers' local No. 25 held another interesting and important meeting last night. The matter of clearing up the present difficulty among the packers and the adoption of the piece scale is one of grave moment and is occupying the attention of nearly every member. The delegates from the local to the Trades and Labor Council reported that the council had referred the matter to the grievance committee, to report at the next meeting. Three members were reinstated last night and two were obligated.

NO. 9'S MEETING.

The proposition to take stock in the co-operative store was acted upon favorably last evening by Kilnmen's local No. 9. Three shares of $10 each were taken, this being the limit for any individual or local. The kilnmen had a very interesting meeting, and it was well attended. This is the fourth local to subscribe to the co-operative stock.

MR. NEAL ILL.

Thomas Neal, president of No. 9, and one of the leading contestants in the News Review's organized labor coupon contest, was taken suddenly ill last night with an attack of grip. His condition is not regarded as serious, but he will be compelled to remain indoors for several days.

AMONG THE WORKMEN.

Sam Leighton, the dishmaker, has returned to the Dresden.

A new jigger, to be used for the present on nut bowls, has been installed at the Dresden.

D. F. Bowman, engineer at the Oliver, Sebring, has returned from a three weeks' visit in Indiana cities.

Frank Pumphrey has resigned as night watchman at the Salineville plant and James Robbins has succeeded him.

Owing to repairs that are being made to the kilns at the Sebring eight jiggermen have been laid off until Monday.

Fred Pennington, the well known packer, has the offer of the shed at Crooksville, but it is not likely that he will accept.

Thomas Manypenny, jiggerman at the Sebring, was called to Wellsville a few days ago by the serious illness of his father, Alexander Manypenny.

Harry Farmer, packer at McNicol's, who has been in ill-health for some time, has taken a situation at Akron, in the hope that the change will benefit him.

Isaac Phillips, engineer at the Salineville plant, has been off duty the past week owing to the illness of two of his sisters, and John Burgett has been running his engine.

PAINFULLY INJURED AT A SERENADE

Father of a Young Groom Victim of An Exploding Shot Gun.

Salem, March 21.—While inspecting the progress of a "belling" at his home Thursday night, Frank Harris, who resides three miles south of Salem, was struck in the leg by a piece of metal which flew from a shot gun, and was painfully injured.

A few days ago Harris' son, Harvey, was married. The young man took his bride to his father's home Thursday and in the evening a reception was held. The affair was largely attended. While part of the crowd was in the house the balance remained outside and made "night hideous" with all sorts of infernal noises.

One of the noise producing devices, extensively employed during the progress of the outside demonstration, was a shotgun. This weapon had been frequently fired with heavy charges, Frank Harris, the father, went to the door to see how the boys were getting along. Just as he appeared the shot gun exploded and pieces of the metal flew in all directions, one striking him.

MONEY IN A RAT HOLE

Thieves Hid the Old Man's Cash There, But It Has Been Recovered.

Moundsville, W. Va., March 21.—Eighty dollars was found hidden in a rat hole in the county jail by Marshal Lutes, of McMechen, who had received a tip that the money had been secreted there by two chicken thieves who are serving time.

A week ago John Groves was placed in jail on the charge of drunkenness and he had on his person $80. When he sobered up and looked for the money in his pocket with which to pay the fine it was not there. The chicken thieves were suspected of robbing him and were searched, but nothing discovered. A confederate gave the thing away and the old man's coin was returned.

EAST END

AN EARLIER CAR

A number of the employes of the potteries and other industries in the upper end of town would like very much to see an earlier car put on in the morning. The first car to arrive at Dry Run does not get there until 7 o'clock. The men would like exceedingly well to be at their benches at that time, and a movement is on foot among them to request the management of the East Liverpool line to give a service of at least half an hour earlier.

The movement will also meet with the mechanics engaged in the construction of the many houses about Dry Run. It is thought the street car company will act promptly on the request when it puts its new schedule in effect.

Ben Hur Social.

A large crowd gathered at the social meeting of Pan American Court, Tribe of Ben Hur, last night. The evening was one of much enjoyment and the supper which was partaken of by those present was pronounced excellent. A large number were in attendance from other courts, and Chief Hall, of Crockery City Court, was awarded the prize for being the greatest eater.

Brick Works Resume.

The East Liverpool brick works, near the power house, has resumed work after the enforced idleness resulting from the two bad landslides which recently occurred. The large quantity of earth and rock has been removed and the hillside has been placed in a condition that guarantees a repetition of the trouble not happening again.

EAST END AFFAIRS.

Miss Della Richmond, of High street, who has been ill with typhoid fever, is much improved.

Extensive preparations are being made by Hoyt court in the East End for their trip tonight to Sappho court at Toronto.

Samuel Calhoon has laid off work on account of a sprained wrist, which resulted from engaging in a friendly boxing contest.

M. F. Howard and family, of Jamestown, has returned to their home, after visiting at the home of his brother, R. C. Howard, of the East End.

Rev. D. W. McQuiston will preach in the Second U. P. church tomorrow morning. The subject will be "Reason Insufficient to Account for the Word of God."

A Prisoner in Her House.

Mrs. W. H. Layha, of 1001 Agnes avenue, Kansas City, Mo., has for several years been troubled with severe hoarseness and at times a hard cough, which she says, "Would keep me in doors for days. I was prescribed for by physicians with no noticeable results. A friend gave me a part of a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy with instructions to closely follow the directions and I wish to state that after the first day I could notice a decided change for the better, and at this time after using it for two weeks, have no hesitation in saying I realize that I am entirely cured. From this time on Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will be in my house constantly." This remedy is for sale by Alvin H. Bulger.

MARIETTA TEAM NOT IN THE GAME

Y. M. C. A. Basket Ball Five Downed the Collegians With Ease and Dispatch.

The Marietta basket ball team may know the game, and it was generaly supposed that they did after the local Y. M. C. A. boys returned from their city several weeks ago chalked up with two defeats, but there is not one of the 300 who saw the game last evening that will labor under the deception longer. It was a runaway from the start. At no time did the visitors have a possible chance for victory, and had it not been for a referee calling numerous fouls on technical points, the boys from the college town would have gone to their little beds last night with a score corresponding with the number in the team.

In the history of the Y. M. C. A. as large a crowd has never witnessed a game. Not only was every seat in the two galleries filled, but the aisles were crowded and the corridor leading out to the street was packed. A merry bunch of youngsters with fog horns and cow bells caused a din that grated on the ears, but the boys were there to help their champions on to victory, and no objection was made.

The first half resulted in a score of 17 to 4, and in it the locals did some of the best playing of their lives. Some of the goals were sensational, and though it might be credited to luck they made such plays quite regularly. In the second half the visitors succeeded in landing two goals and four fouls, but little good it did them. The score:

Y. M. C. A.—Allison and Bloor, forwards; Rigby, center; Watkin and Pope, guards.

August Herrman's Stand.

President August Herrman, of the Cincinnati club, says that the Reds will not pla yin New York if the National League club insists on playing either George Davis or Ed. Delehanty. On this statement a great story of trouble in the National League and between the two leagues has been builded, but President Herrman does not believe that there will be any trouble.

Eddie Poole Goes South.

Eddie Poole, the base ball player, left Malvern, Ohio, for Augusta, Ga., where he will train for the season with the Cincinnati Reds. Poole has been taking care of himself this winter and should start on the regular spring training in fair condition. Before he started Poole and his wife were entertained at the Lewton house by a number of their neighbors.

SIMPLE WAY TO CURE DYSPEPSIA

"Take a Mi-o-na Tablet After Each Meal," Says Druggist Will Reed.

With Mi-o-na there is no bother of guessing at the dose or using so many spoonfuls or anything of that kind. This valuable remedy for the cure of dyspepsia is in tablet form and is the simplest way to cure the disease.

"Just take one Mi-o-na tablet after each meal," says Druggist Will Reed. This remarkable remedy is not a mere digestive; it mingles with the food, and is readily assimilated to the system. It aids digestion and regulates and strengthens the whole digestive tract, so that after its use for a short time healthy and natural action is restored to the stomach and bowels.

Mi-o-na may properly be termed a flesh-forming food, as when it is used, every part of the body fills out with solid flesh and all the outlines become beautiful and symmetrical.

Mi-o-na is not an ordinary pepsin preparation to simply aid digestion, weakening the organs, but it is a scientific remedy that gives health and strength, firm muscle and pure blood.

No one runs the slightest risk in purchasing it, for Druggist Will Reed will give his personal guarantee with every package he sells to refund the money if it does not cure.

THE POPULAR COUNTY CLERK OF THE CITY OF SAN FRANCISCO.

HON. WILLIAM A. DEANE, OF SAN FRANCISCO.

Hon. Wm. A. Deane, Clerk of the city and county of San Francisco, was Chief Deputy in the office of his predecessor during the latter part of his term. He is a Native Son, having been born and raised in the city of San Francisco, and has for many years been prominently identified with the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, as well as other fraternal organizations. He is an exceptionally popular young man, socially and politically also, as evidenced by the ballots cast at the late election, he having defeated his opponent for the office of County Clerk by nearly 8,000 votes.

In a letter written January 28, 1899, from San Francisco, to Dr. Hartman, Mr. Deane has the following to say of Peruna:

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Gentlemen:—"I would not be without Peruna, as I have found it to be the best remedy for catarrhal complaints that I have ever used. I have tried most all of the so-called catarrh remedies advertised, and can conscientiously say that of all the remedies for catarrhal complaints recommended to me none have been so beneficial as Peruna."—WILLIAM A. DEANE.

CATARRH assumes different phases in different seasons of the year. There is, therefore, four quite well-marked varieties of catarrh. Winter catarrh, spring catarrh, summer catarrh, and autumn catarrh. In each of these varieties different organs seem to be the principal seat of the catarrh.

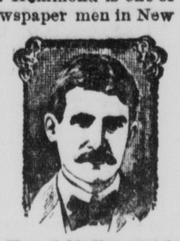
In the winter the catarrh is more frequent in the head, throat and respiratory organs. In the spring the catarrh seems to chiefly affect the stomach and nervous system. In the summer the bowels suffer the oftenest; while in the autumn the liver and kidneys seem to be particularly subject to the ravages of catarrh.

Of course it is not meant by this that catarrh is absolutely confined to these parts of the body during the season to which we have assigned them. Catarrh may attack any organ in any season of the year, but the liabilities are so much greater for catarrh to attack particulr organs in certain seasons that these four distinct varieties have become recognized.

Mr. Robert Douglas, Homeopathic Specialist, cor. 6th and F Sts., N. W., Washington, D. C., in a recent letter to the Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, O., has the following to say concerning their noted catarrh remedy, Peruna:

"I have been a practicing physician for some years, during which time I have administered Peruna to a number of my patients for colds, catarrh and general debility with great benefit to them. I have paid particular attention to its effects, and I have absolute confidence in its curative qualities, and have no hesitation in giving it a most emphatic endorsement."

Hon. Clement M. Hammond is one of the best known newspaper men in New York City. He was for years editor of one of the principal papers in Hartford, Conn., later was prominently connected with the New York Recorder and New York World. He has traveled extensively and is known all over the United States for his talent as a newspaper man. Writing to The Peruna Medicine Co., he says:



Hon. C. M. Hammond

"For about six years I have had trouble every fall and winter with my voice. At times it has extended to my bronchial tubes and lungs. I think all this trouble came from whooping cough, which I had when I was about twelve years old, and which left me with catarrh. Since I have taken Peruna, my voice has been clearer than in over two years, all of which I am willing to testify to." Mr. Hammond's address is "The Arlington," 64 Montague street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Peruna is an internal remedy—a scientific remedy for catarrh. It cures catarrh wherever located. Its cures last. Peruna gives strength by stopping waste. By saving the mucus it enriches the blood. By cleansing the mucous membranes it preserves the vital forces.

No remedy can possibly supply the place of Peruna. Insist upon having Peruna. Take no other remedy. There is no substitute for this catarrh medicine. Send for a free book on catarrh. Address the Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Bert Shewell, while at work in a ..... near Sebring, killed 15 snakes in one day.

Custer Phillips, aged 15, killed 55 snakes on a vacant lot in Akron and some got away.

Rev. W. H. Vincent, D. D., has been installed as pastor of the Third U. P. church at Youngstown.

Two Mexican war veterans are living in Stark county—John Freer, of Alliance, and 'Squire John R. Walter, of Massillon.

Steubenville council has yet failed to settle the salary question. It is proposed to let the mayor's salary remain at $1,000 a year.

The building of a new trolley line from Martin's Ferry to Steubenville has caused a boom in real estate. L. A. Rolf, of Wheeling, has optioned a tract at Steubenville on which it is proposed to lay out a new town.

George E. Sebring is leasing a number of sections in Smith township, Mahoning county, for a term of five years for the exclusive right to hunt, shoot and kill game. He stocks the leased land each year with Kansas quail.

A private car containing General Manager Robert Blickensdorfer, of the W. & L. E., and Chief Engineer J. W. Patterson, of the Wabash, ran away on the W. & L. E. track at Steubenville and did considerable damage before it was stopped by the bumper.

Don't fool with a cold, no one can tell what the end may be. Pneumonia, catarrh, chronic bronchitis and consumption invariably result from neglected colds. Nothing can be compared with Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as a quick cure for colds and influenza, and by its use these diseases may be avoided. For sale by Alvin H. Bulger.

EAST END

AN EARLIER CAR

A number of the employes of the potteries and other industries in the upper end of town would like very much to see an earlier car put on in the morning. The first car to arrive at Dry Run does not get there until 7 o'clock. The men would like exceedingly well to be at their benches at that time, and a movement is on foot among them to request the management of the East Liverpool line to give a service of at least half an hour earlier.

The movement will also meet with the mechanics engaged in the construction of the many houses about Dry Run. It is thought the street car company will act promptly on the request when it puts its new schedule in effect.

Ben Hur Social.

A large crowd gathered at the social meeting of Pan American Court, Tribe of Ben Hur, last night. The evening was one of much enjoyment and the supper which was partaken of by those present was pronounced excellent. A large number were in attendance from other courts, and Chief Hall, of Crockery City Court, was awarded the prize for being the greatest eater.

Brick Works Resume.

The East Liverpool brick works, near the power house, has resumed work after the enforced idleness resulting from the two bad landslides which recently occurred. The large quantity of earth and rock has been removed and the hillside has been placed in a condition that guarantees a repetition of the trouble not happening again.

EAST END AFFAIRS.

Miss Della Richmond, of High street, who has been ill with typhoid fever, is much improved.

Extensive preparations are being made by Hoyt court in the East End for their trip tonight to Sappho court at Toronto.

Samuel Calhoon has laid off work on account of a sprained wrist, which resulted from engaging in a friendly boxing contest.

M. F. Howard and family, of Jamestown, has returned to their home, after visiting at the home of his brother, R. C. Howard, of the East End.

Rev. D. W. McQuiston will preach in the Second U. P. church tomorrow morning. The subject will be "Reason Insufficient to Account for the Word of God."

SIMPLE WAY TO CURE DYSPEPSIA

"Take a Mi-o-na Tablet After Each Meal," Says Druggist Will Reed.

With Mi-o-na there is no bother of guessing at the dose or using so many spoonfuls or anything of that kind. This valuable remedy for the cure of dyspepsia is in tablet form and is the simplest way to cure the disease.

"Just take one Mi-o-na tablet after each meal," says Druggist Will Reed. This remarkable remedy is not a mere digestive; it mingles with the food, and is readily assimilated to the system. It aids digestion and regulates and strengthens the whole digestive tract, so that after its use for a short time healthy and natural action is restored to the stomach and bowels.

Mi-o-na may properly be termed a flesh-forming food, as when it is used, every part of the body fills out with solid flesh and all the outlines become beautiful and symmetrical.

Mi-o-na is not an ordinary pepsin preparation to simply aid digestion, weakening the organs, but it is a scientific remedy that gives health and strength, firm muscle and pure blood.

No one runs the slightest risk in purchasing it, for Druggist Will Reed will give his personal guarantee with every package he sells to refund the money if it does not cure.

THE POPULAR COUNTY CLERK OF THE CITY OF SAN FRANCISCO.

HON. WILLIAM A. DEANE, OF SAN FRANCISCO.

Hon. Wm. A. Deane, Clerk of the city and county of San Francisco, was Chief Deputy in the office of his predecessor during the latter part of his term. He is a Native Son, having been born and raised in the city of San Francisco, and has for many years been prominently identified with the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, as well as other fraternal organizations. He is an exceptionally popular young man, socially and politically also, as evidenced by the ballots cast at the late election, he having defeated his opponent for the office of County Clerk by nearly 8,000 votes.

In a letter written January 28, 1899, from San Francisco, to Dr. Hartman, Mr. Deane has the following to say of Peruna:

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Gentlemen:—"I would not be without Peruna, as I have found it to be the best remedy for catarrhal complaints that I have ever used. I have tried most all of the so-called catarrh remedies advertised, and can conscientiously say that of all the remedies for catarrhal complaints recommended to me none have been so beneficial as Peruna."—WILLIAM A. DEANE.

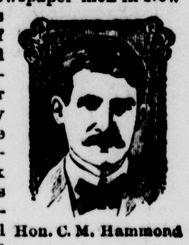
CATARRH assumes different phases in different seasons of the year. There is, therefore, four quite well-marked varieties of catarrh. Winter catarrh, spring catarrh, summer catarrh, and autumn catarrh. In each of these varieties different organs seem to be the principal seat of the catarrh.

In the winter the catarrh is more frequent in the head, throat and respiratory organs. In the spring the catarrh seems to chiefly affect the stomach and nervous system. In the summer the bowels suffer the oftenest; while in the autumn the liver and kidneys seem to be particularly subject to the ravages of catarrh.

Of course it is not meant by this that catarrh is absolutely confined to these parts of the body during the season to which we have assigned them. Catarrh may attack any organ in any season of the year, but the liabilities are so much greater for catarrh to attack particular organs in certain seasons that these four distinct varieties have become recognized.

Mr. Robert Douglas, Homeopathic Specialist, cor. 6th and F Sts., N. W., Washington, D. C., in a recent letter to the Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, O., has the following to say concerning their noted catarrh remedy, Peruna:

"I have been a practicing physician for some years, during which time I have administered Peruna to a number of my patients for colds, catarrh and general debility with great benefit to them. I have paid particular attention to its effects, and I have absolute confidence in its curative qualities, and have no hesitation in giving it a most emphatic endorsement."



Hon. C. M. Hammond

Hon. Clement M. Hammond is one of the best known newspaper men in New York City. He was for years editor of one of the principal papers in Hartford, Conn., later was prominently connected with the New York Recorder and New York World. He has traveled extensively and is known all over the United States for his talent as a newspaper man. Writing to The Peruna Medicine Co., he says:

"For about six years I have had trouble every fall and winter with my voice. At times it has extended to my bronchial tubes and lungs. I think all this trouble came from whooping cough, which I had when I was about twelve years old, and which left me with catarrh. Since I have taken Peruna, my voice has been clearer than in over two years, all of which I am willing to testify to." Mr. Hammond's address is "The Arlington," 64 Montague street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Peruna is an internal remedy—a scientific remedy for catarrh. It cures catarrh wherever located. It cures last. Peruna gives strength by stopping waste. By saving the mucus it enriches the blood. By cleansing the mucous membranes it preserves the vital forces.

No remedy can possibly supply the place of Peruna. Insist upon having Peruna. Take no other remedy. There is no substitute for this catarrh medicine. Send for a free book on catarrh. Address the Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Don't fool with a cold, no one can tell what the end may be. Pneumonia, catarrh, chronic bronchitis and consumption invariably result from neglected colds. Nothing can be compared with Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as a quick cure for colds and influenza, and by its use these diseases may be avoided. For sale by Alvin H. Bulger.

EAST END

AN EARLIER CAR

A number of the employes of the potteries and other industries in the upper end of town would like very much to see an earlier car put on in the morning. The first car to arrive at Dry Run does not get there until 7 o'clock. The men would like exceedingly well to be at their benches at that time, and a movement is on foot among them to request the management of the East Liverpool line to give a service of at least half an hour earlier.

The movement will also meet with the mechanics engaged in the construction of the many houses about Dry Run. It is thought the street car company will act promptly on the request when it puts its new schedule in effect.

Ben Hur Social.

A large crowd gathered at the social meeting of Pan American Court, Tribe of Ben Hur, last night. The evening was one of much enjoyment and the supper which was partaken of by those present was pronounced excellent. A large number were in attendance from other courts, and Chief Hall, of Crockery City Court, was awarded the prize for being the greatest eater.

Brick Works Resume.

The East Liverpool brick works, near the power house, has resumed work after the enforced idleness resulting from the two bad landslides which recently occurred. The large quantity of earth and rock has been removed and the hillside has been placed in a condition that guarantees a repetition of the trouble not happening again.

Rev. D. W. McQuiston will preach in the Second U. P. church tomorrow morning. The subject will be "Reason Insufficient to Account for the Word of God."

A Prisoner in Her House.

Mrs. W. H. Layha, of 1001 Agnes avenue, Kansas City, Mo., has for several years been troubled with severe hoarseness and at times a hard cough, which she says, "Would keep me in doors for days. I was prescribed for by physicians with no noticeable results. A friend gave me a part of a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy with instructions to closely follow the directions and I wish to state that after the first day I could notice a decided change for the better, and at this time after using it for two weeks, have no hesitation in saying I realize that I am entirely cured. From this time on Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will be in my house constantly." This remedy is for sale by Alvin H. Bulger.

REALM OF SPORTS

MARIETTA TEAM NOT IN THE GAME

Y. M. C. A. Basket Ball Five Downed the Collegians With Ease and Dispatch.

The Marietta basket ball team may know the game, and it was generaly supposed that they did after the local Y. M. C. A. boys returned from their city several weeks ago chalked up with two defeats, but there is not one of the 300 who saw the game last evening that will labor under the deception longer. It was a runaway from the start. At no time did the visitors have a possible chance for victory, and had it not been for a referee calling numerous fouls on technical points, the boys from the college town would have gone to their little beds last night with a score corresponding with the number in the team.

In the history of the Y. M. C. A. as large a crowd has never witnessed a game. Not only was every seat in the two galleries filled, but the aisles were crowded and the corridor leading out to the street was packed. A merry bunch of youngsters with fog horns and cow bells caused a din that grated on the ears, but the boys were there to help their champions on to victory, and no objection was made.

The first half resulted in a score of 17 to 4, and in it the locals did some of the best playing of their lives. Some of the goals were sensational, and though it might be credited to luck they made such plays quite regularly. In the second half the visitors succeeded in landing two goals and four fouls, but little good it did them. The score:

Y. M. C. A.—Allison and Bloor, forwards; Rigby, center; Watkin and Pope, guards.

August Herrman's Stand.

President August Herrman, of the Cincinnati club, says that the Reds will not pla yin New York if the National League club insists on playing either George Davis or Ed. Delehanty. On this statement a great story of trouble in the National League and between the two leagues has been builded, but President Herrman does not believe that there will be any trouble.

Eddie Poole Goes South.

Eddie Poole, the base ball player, left Malvern, Ohio, for Augusta, Ga., where he will train for the season with the Cincinnati Reds. Poole has been taking care of himself this winter and should start on the regular spring training in fair condition. Before he started Poole and his wife were entertained at the Lewton house by a number of their neighbors.

SIMPLE WAY TO CURE DYSPEPSIA

"Take a Mi-o-na Tablet After Each Meal," Says Druggist Will Reed.

With Mi-o-na there is no bother of guessing at the dose or using so many spoonfuls or anything of that kind. This valuable remedy for the cure of dyspepsia is in tablet form and is the simplest way to cure the disease.

"Just take one Mi-o-na tablet after each meal," says Druggist Will Reed. This remarkable remedy is not a mere digestive; it mingles with the food, and is readily assimilated to the system. It aids digestion and regulates and strengthens the whole digestive tract, so that after its use for a short time healthy and natural action is restored to the stomach and bowels.

Mi-o-na may properly be termed a flesh-forming food, as when it is used, every part of the body fills out with solid flesh and all the outlines become beautiful and symmetrical.

Mi-o-na is not an ordinary pepsin preparation to simply aid digestion, weakening the organs, but it is a scientific remedy that gives health and strength, firm muscle and pure blood.

No one runs the slightest risk in purchasing it, for Druggist Will Reed will give his personal guarantee with every package he sells to refund the money if it does not cure.

THE POPULAR COUNTY CLERK OF THE CITY OF SAN FRANCISCO.

HON. WILLIAM A. DEANE, OF SAN FRANCISCO.

Hon. Wm. A. Deane, Clerk of the city and county of San Francisco, was Chief Deputy in the office of his predecessor during the latter part of his term. He is a Native Son, having been born and raised in the city of San Francisco, and has for many years been prominently identified with the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, as well as other fraternal organizations. He is an exceptionally popular young man, socially and politically also, as evidenced by the ballots cast at the late election, he having defeated his opponent for the office of County Clerk by nearly 8,000 votes.

In a letter written January 28, 1899, from San Francisco, to Dr. Hartman, Mr. Deane has the following to say of Peruna:

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Gentlemen:—"I would not be without Peruna, as I have found it to be the best remedy for catarrhal complaints that I have ever used. I have tried most all of the so-called catarrh remedies advertised, and can conscientiously say that of all the remedies for catarrhal complaints recommended to me none have been so beneficial as Peruna."—WILLIAM A. DEANE.

CATARRH assumes different phases in different seasons of the year. There is, therefore, four quite well-marked varieties of catarrh. Winter catarrh, spring catarrh, summer catarrh, and autumn catarrh. In each of these varieties different organs seem to be the principal seat of the catarrh.

In the winter the catarrh is more frequent in the head, throat and respiratory organs. In the spring the catarrh seems to chiefly affect the stomach and nervous system. In the summer the bowels suffer the oftenest; while in the autumn the liver and kidneys seem to be particularly subject to the ravages of catarrh.

Of course it is not meant by this that catarrh is absolutely confined to these parts of the body during the season to which we have assigned them. Catarrh may attack any organ in any season of the year, but the liabilities are so much greater for catarrh to attack particulr organs in certain seasons that these four distinct varieties have become recognized.

Mr. Robert Douglas, Homeopathic Specialist, cor. 6th and F Sts., N. W., Washington, D. C., in a recent letter to the Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, O., has the following to say concerning their noted catarrh remedy, Peruna:

"I have been a practicing physician for some years, during which time I have administered Peruna to a number of my patients for colds, catarrh and general debility with great benefit to them. I have paid particular attention to its effects, and I have absolute confidence in its curative qualities, and have no hesitation in giving it a most emphatic endorsement."

Hon. Clement M. Hammond is one of the best known newspaper men in New York City. He was for years editor of one of the principal papers in Hartford, Conn., later was prominently connected with the New York Recorder and New York World. He has traveled extensively and is known all over the United States for his talent as a newspaper man. Writing to The Peruna Medicine Co., he says:

Hon. C. M. Hammond

"For about six years I have had trouble every fall and winter with my voice. At times it has extended to my bronchial tubes and lungs. I think all this trouble came from whooping cough, which I had when I was about twelve years old, and which left me with catarrh. Since I have taken Peruna, my voice has been clearer than in over two years, all of which I am willing to testify to." Mr. Hammond's address is "The Arlington," 64 Montague street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Peruna is an internal remedy—a scientific remedy for catarrh. It cures catarrh wherever located. It cures last. Peruna gives strength by stopping waste. By saving the mucus it enriches the blood. By cleansing the mucous membranes it preserves the vital forces.

No remedy can possibly supply the place of Peruna. Insist upon having Peruna. Take no other remedy. There is no substitute for this catarrh medicine. Send for a free book on catarrh. Address the Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

For more than half a century the construction of an isthmian waterway has been one of the aspirations of the American people. This desire has now become fact. The work will be taken up where the French company left it, and it will be pursued with a vigor unknown in the days of that corporation and with resources far beyond those at that company's command. As a national enterprise, it will be prosecuted with all practicable speed to the end. No possible lack of funds can stand in the way of the finishing of the task, for there will be no such lack. All the science and skill which money can enlist will be at the service of the builders of the canal. To the whole world and to America especially the canal will be of immeasurable benefit.

The consensus of all opinion worth having is that to make a thorough test of the municipal code passed by Republicans, Republicans should be elected to office.

It now depends on Colombia when Uncle Sam's men shall begin digging the ditch for the isthmian canal. If Colombia were as shrewd in looking after her own interests as her northern neighbors the delay would be short. Unfortunately she isn't; still the inception of the great work cannot be postponed long.

The Hancock county court is in such a state of hesitation over the question of granting a franchise for a street railway from Chester down the river as to suggest the possibility that its members are afraid of the cars.

In just one week the Republicans of Columbiana county will nominate the ticket that will be elected. The party was never more united and earnest or in better shape for a sweeping victory.

"How to Make Money" is the title of a new book. The writer of it may not be able to draw a check for 30 cents, but that is no argument that the volume is not interesting reading, just the same.

It must pain David Hill to notice how frequently he is being overlooked by Democrats who get to discussing the question of a candidate in 1904.

The prudent business man advertises in the paper whose circulation is a known quantity. The News Review never hides its circulation figures.

Ex-Mayor Ames, of Minneapolis, says the newspapers are to blame for his present troubles. This is quite a compliment to the press.

Bryan still finds it easier to talk than to get listeners.

March still has time to make a lion-like exit.

OBITUARY

Peter Sweeney.

Salineville, March 21.—(Special.)—At his home this morning Peter Sweeney, aged 28, died. Tuesday he underwent an operation for appendicitis and never fully rallied from the shock. For several days past he had suffered from inflammation of the parts affected. He was born and lived all his life in Salineville, where he had a host of friends. He was prominent in Catholic circles and also was a member of the Nulli Secundus club. Last evening his fever was high and a period of restlessness began and continued until he lapsed into unconsciousness, in which condition he remained to the end. He was a faithful member of St. Patrick's church and was a regular attendant. The arrangements for the funeral have not yet been completed, but it will probably take place Monday morning. Interment will be made in St. Patrick's cemetery.

Mrs. William Davison.

Mary, the wife of William Davison, of 214 Thompson avenue, died yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock, after an illness of one week, from typhoid fever. The body will be taken to Hamilton, Canada, this afternoon, where the funeral services will be held and the interment made. Mrs. Davison was born in Hamilton 30 years ago and came to this city just one year ago with her husband, who was employed at the Thompson pottery as a sticker-up. Besides her husband, two children, Doris, aged 6 years, and Dorothy, aged four weeks, survive her. She was a devout member of the Catholic church and the funeral services will be held in St. Joseph church in Hamilton.

William Stuckman.

TWO PRIZES GIVEN TO DOCTOR MAX

R. L. EDMONSTON'S ANIMAL CARRIED OFF PROUD HONORS.

R. L. Edmonston's dog, Dr. Max, known and admired by nearly every man, woman and child in the city, has demonstrated that he is most worthy of any admiration and the fond caresses that are awarded him. In the dog show at Uhrichsville yesterday he was awarded two first prizes, and considering the fact that he was up against the best dogs in the country, his owner certainly has room for pride.

Dr. Max is six years old. In color he is black, white and ticked. His present owner purchased him from Dr. G. B. Smith, of Wooster, four years ago, and though he knew that the animal was superior in many ways, he was not of the opinion that he was the best in the country. When the dog was entered in the show at Pittsburg a few weeks ago it was by the earnest solicitation of Mr. Edmonston's friends. At this show the dog won first prize in the novice and second in the limit.

Had it not been that Mr. Edmonston did not know how to show his dog Dr. Max would have carried off first prize in both. The judge stated at the time that had the dog been shown properly that he would have won over the victorious animal, Canadian Dexter. On the following week in the show at Coshocton Dr. Max could not enter the novice and that he received second in limit and open was due to the fact that the same judge that had presided in Pittsburg was there and he could not very well differ in his decision. At Uhrichsville another judge was in charge and he without hesitation gave Dr. Max first place, turning down Canadian Dexter.

The many friends of Mr. Edmonston are elated over the success of the favorite animal, and the members of the East Liverpool Gun club are arranging to give a stag social in honor of the victor. Dr. Max arrived home this morning, looking fine.

THE MINING SCALE AT SALINEVILLE

Salineville, March 21.—(Special)—Committeemen representing the miners of the different mines in the vicinity of Salineville met the operators of mines in convention yesterday to arrange the scale in this district for the ensuing year. The circumstances demand that a separate scale be signed for each sub-district. The miners sent committeemen from each department of the mines. Representatives of the Sterling Mining company, the O. & P. coal company, the Big Vein Coal company, Strabley's mine and Kirk & Vassey met the miners and Vice President Tetlow here.

It is not thought that any trouble will be had in having the operators sign the scale, although the O. & P. Coal company refused to sign the scale with the miners at its mines at Amsterdam a few days ago. The Slope mine, which has been suspended from the union for some time, was invited to meet with the rest of the miners at the convention.

Three sessions were held before an agreement could be reached. In the evening session the scale was agreed upon and will be signed soon. All the mines operated in this district was represented except the Big Vein Coal company. The miners are well pleased to have the scale made up. It is now thought that work will be better that it has been for the past two months.

RUMMAGE SALE

The ladies of the Hospital association, who are interested in a spring rummage sale have delayed opening because they were unable to secure a suitable place. Yesterday Dr. G. P. Ikirt donated the use of a store room in the block on Sixth street, where it was held for several weeks about a year ago. The room has been given to the ladies for a week and perhaps longer. They have a number of things to start with and expect to open for business this afternoon.

All those who have anything either useful or ornamental to contribute will greatly aid this commendable enterprise by sending at once to the salesroom on Sixth street.

PECULIAR BURIAL CAUSE OF TALK

Men Engaged Said They Were Burying a Do, But a Witness Saw a Man's Foot.

Pittsburg, March 21.—The residents of Kennedy township, near McKee's Rocks, are discussing a somewhat peculiar burial that took place yesterday afternoon.

According to the statement of an eyewitness, about 12:30 yesterday an undertaker's wagon, accompanied by four men, went up the Pine Hollow road, stopping at the distance of about 1,000 feet from the property of Andrew Clever. The men took from the wagon an undertaker's basket, carrying it to one of the fields, where they began to dig a hole.

Mrs. Sarah McCartney, who resides near, and her son Thomas saw the wagon stop and wondered at its presence in that particular place. Thomas went to the men and inquired their reason for making the hole. He states the reply he received was that they were about to bury a dog. A hole about five feet in length and about two feet in depth was excavated, and the contents of the basket interred.

According to Mrs. McCartney's son, it was not a dog, but what had the appearance of a man's body, that was interred, and Thomas states that although the body appeared to be wrapped in a brown cloth or coat, yet he saw one of the feet which happened to become exposed.

Mrs. McCartney about the same time states she went down to the wagon to see whose it was, and ascertained that it belonged to R. H. Clever, McKee's Rocks, who is a relative of the owner of the field. When Mr. Clever was seen this morning, however, he denied that he had been in the vicinity yesterday or that he had interred any one yesterday.

A TEACHER'S SUIT FOR HIS SALARY

He Was Engaged For Five Years and Discharged At the End of One.

Canton March 21.—Judge Donahue, in a rather extended opinion, reversed the lower court in its finding upon the case of Rolandus G. Walker against the board of education of Canton. Walker's attorneys, Welty & Albaugh, had interposed a demurrer to the answer of the board of education, and in the principal features of it the common pleas court overruled the demurrer. The circuit court reversed the lower court and ordered the demurrer sustained. The principal point in dispute was as to whether or not the board of education had a right to hire a teacher for two years and the circuit judges were of the opinion that it could.

Prof. Walker, some years ago, was hired by the board of education for a term of two years. A number of other teachers had similar contracts. A new board being elected, it repudiated these contracts and several teachers were let go at the end of the first year. Walker brought suit for the second year's salary and the case has been in court ever since. It is understood that if Walker is successful, others will also bring suit.

NEW TRACTION LINE IN SOUTHERN OHIO

Winmington, Del., March 21.—The Marietta, Woodsfield & Barnesville Railway company was incorporated here yesterday. It is capitalized at $200,000. Incorporators are: R. Merydith, F. M. Robinson, and M. H. Hait, all of Marietta. The railway, which is to be operated by electricity, is to run through Washington, Monroe and Belmont counties, connecting with the Bellaire, Zanesville & Cincinnati at Woodsfield, the Baltimore & Ohio at Barnesville, and the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern at Marietta.

It will open up new territory in the Ohio valley.

BIG COAL OPERATIONS NEAR WELLSBURG

Begun at the Beech Bottom Coal Tract, With Three Companies in the Field.

Wellsburg, W. Va., March 21.—The Beech Bottom Coal company started operations at Beech Bottom yesterday afternoon. The little village situated near Wellsburg already contains three coal companies that are working in fierce opposition. The names of these companies are the Wiota Coal company, the Wellsburg Coal company and the Beech Bottom Coal company.

At present there are four engineers on the ground, and the contracts have been let for the erection of about 50 tenement houses. Negotiations are under way for the building of a $55,000 coal tipple, and when it is done it will be one of the most improved and up-to-date in this section of the country.

These mines are to be opened on the ground fomerly owned by the Dairy people, that is situated just above the Bayne farm. Up to this time 2,220 acres of the best coal land in that vicinity has been taken up by the Beech Bottom Coal people, and it is thought that before long there will be many more acres purchased for this company to operate on.

The Beech Bottom Coal company is a new one that has been formed in Wellsburg, and that is where the main offices will be located. The company has been chartered with a capital of $250,000, with Messrs. Hough and Erbeck at the head of it. Many capitalists of Wellsburg and other towns of that vicinity are interested in the scheme.

The Wiota and Wellsburg Coal companies have been in operation for years and have been doing a very good business. The Beech Bottom company has been formed for quite a while, but yesterday was the first day that any active work was done on the opening up of the mines. It is the intention to have everything as modern and as up-to-date in the way of machinery as possible. Railroad switches have been connected up with the Pewiky and a competent corps of engineers are on the ground already with surveyors and others making arrangements for the tipple and other parts of the outside gearing that goes with mining.

Under Southern Skies.

William A. Brady's production, "Under Southern Skies," the coming attraction under the auspices of the opera house ushers, promises to be the best production of the season. The company is an excellent one and a thoroughly enjoyable performance may be looked for.

The stage hands will donate a nice percentage of the gross receipts for the benefit of the Thomas Jefferson memorial fund. The performance has received high praise in other cities. The Salem News says: "A large crowd witnessed the performance given by the "Under Southern Skies" company at the opera house last night. The play gave good satisfaction. The scenery and costuming were fine. A special feature was the singing of old plantation melodies, with some new up-to-date medleys by the Imperial quartet of colored people."

If you tire of buckwheat, try Mrs. Austin's famous Pancake flour for a change. Made from the great food cereals.

TEN PIECES OF SHEET MUSIC FOR $1.00.
Is This Old Music?
NO!

10 pieces of copyright music, latest popular pieces of the day, for $1.00.

Why, you ask, do we make this offer, do we buy this music so cheap that we can afford to sell it 10 pieces for $1.00.

NO!

The reason, in order to keep up to date we have standing orders with the leading publishers for from 1 to 10 copies of each new issue. These are sent us soon as they are off the press. In 10 years we have accumulated more music than our limited space will allow, our shelves are running over. We must make more room or reduce our stock. We decide to sell 10 pieces for $1.00, or sent prepaid to any address for $1.10.

This music we have in stock and will not include the last copy of any one piece. Our clerks will not be allowed to play over music in this offer. We will ,however, allow you to select three pieces that we have in stock, we will give you seven more either instrumental or vocal of our own selection, copyright music Ordinarily these 10 pieces would cost you at least $2.50.

While this offer is not something for nothing it is very close to it. Offer for 30 days only.

TWELVE PAGES.

For more than half a century the construction of an isthmian waterway has been one of the aspirations of the American people. This desire has now become fact. The work will be taken up where the French company left it, and it will be pursued with a vigor unknown in the days of that corporation and with resources far beyond those at that company's command. As a national enterprise, it will be prosecuted with all practicable speed to the end. No possible lack of funds can stand in the way of the finishing of the task, for there will be no such lack. All the science and skill which money can enlist will be at the service of the builders of the canal. To the whole world and to America especially the canal will be of immeasurable benefit.

The consensus of all opinion worth having is that to make a thorough test of the municipal code passed by Republicans, Republicans should be elected to office.

It now depends on Colombia when Uncle Sam's men shall begin digging the ditch for the isthmian canal. If Colombia were as shrewd in looking after her own interests as her northern neighbors the delay would be short. Unfortunately she isn't; still the inception of the great work cannot be postponed long.

The Hancock county court is in such a state of hesitation over the question of granting a franchise for a street railway from Chester down the river as to suggest the possibility that its members are afraid of the cars.

In just one week the Republicans of Columbiana county will nominate the ticket that will be elected. The party was never more united and earnest or in better shape for a sweeping victory.

"How to Make Money" is the title of a new book. The writer of it may not be able to draw a check for 30 cents, but that is no argument that the volume is not interesting reading, just the same.

It must pain David Hill to notice how frequently he is being overlooked by Democrats who get to discussing the question of a candidate in 1904.

The prudent business man advertises in the paper whose circulation is a known quantity. The News Review never hides its circulation figures.

Ex-Mayor Ames, of Minneapolis, says the newspapers are to blame for his present troubles. This is quite a compliment to the press.

Bryan still finds it easier to talk than to get listeners.

March still has time to make a lion-like exit.

OBITUARY

Peter Sweeney.

Salineville, March 21.—(Special.)—At his home this morning Peter Sweeney, aged 28, died. Tuesday he underwent an operation for appendicitis and never fully rallied from the shock. For several days past he had suffered from inflammation of the parts affected. He was born and lived all his life in Salineville, where he had a host of friends. He was prominent in Catholic circles and also was a member of the Nulli Secundus club. Last evening his fever was high and a period of restlessness began and continued until he lapsed into unconsciousness, in which condition he remained to the end. He was a faithful member of St. Patrick's church and was a regular attendant. The arrangements for the funeral have not yet been completed, but it will probably take place Monday morning. Interment will be made in St. Patrick's cemetery.

Mrs. William Davison.

Mary, the wife of William Davison, of 214 Thompson avenue, died yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock, after an illness of one week, from typhoid fever. The body will be taken to Hamilton, Canada, this afternoon, where the funeral services will be held and the interment made. Mrs. Davison was born in Hamilton 30 years ago and came to this city just one year ago with her husband, who was employed at the Thompson pottery as a sticker-up. Besides her husband, two children, Doris, aged 6 years, and Dorothy, aged four weeks, survive her. She was a devout member of the Catholic church and the funeral services will be held in St. Joseph church in Hamilton.

William Stuckman.

TWO PRIZES GIVEN TO DOCTOR MAX

R. L. EDMONSTON'S ANIMAL CARRIED OFF PROUD HONORS.

R. L. Edmonston's dog, Dr. Max, known and admired by nearly every man, woman and child in the city, has demonstrated that he is most worthy of any admiration and the fond caresses that are awarded him. In the dog show at Uhrichsville yesterday he was awarded two first prizes, and considering the fact that he was up against the best dogs in the country, his owner certainly has room for pride.

Dr. Max is six years old. In color he is black, white and ticked. His present owner purchased him from Dr. G. B. Smith, of Wooster, four years ago, and though he knew that the animal was superior in many ways, he was not of the opinion that he was the best in the country. When the dog was entered in the show at Pittsburg a few weeks ago it was by the earnest solicitation of Mr. Edmonston's friends. At this show the dog won first prize in the novice and second in the limit.

Had it not been that Mr. Edmonston did not know how to show his dog Dr. Max would have carried off first prize in both. The judge stated at the time that had the dog been shown properly that he would have won over the victorious animal, Canadian Dexter. On the following week in the show at Coshocton Dr. Max could not enter the novice and that he received second in limit and open was due to the fact that the same judge that had presided in Pittsburg was there and he could not very well differ in his decision. At Uhrichsville another judge was in charge and he without hesitation gave Dr. Max first place, turning down Canadian Dexter.

The many friends of Mr. Edmonston are elated over the success of the favorite animal, and the members of the East Liverpool Gun club are arranging to give a stag social in honor of the victor. Dr. Max arrived home this morning, looking fine.

THE MINING SCALE AT SALINEVILLE

Salineville, March 21.—(Special)—Committeemen representing the miners of the different mines in the vicinity of Salineville met the operators of mines in convention yesterday to arrange the scale in this district for the ensuing year. The circumstances demand that a separate scale be signed for each sub-district. The miners sent committeemen from each department of the mines. Representatives of the Sterling Mining company, the O. & P. coal company, the Big Vein Coal company, Strabley's mine and Kirk & Vassey met the miners and Vice President Totlow here.

It is not thought that any trouble will be had in having the operators sign the scale, although the O. & P. Coal company refused to sign the scale with the miners at its mines at Amsterdam a few days ago. The Slope mine, which has been suspended from the union for some time, was invited to meet with the rest of the miners at the convention.

Three sessions were held before an agreement could be reached. In the evening ssion the scale was agreed upon and will be signed soon. All the mines operated in this district was represented except the Big Vein Coal company. The miners are well pleased to have the scale made up. It is now thought that work will be better that it has been for the past two months.

RUMMAGE SALE

The ladies of the Hospital association, who are interested in a spring rummage sale have delayed opening because they were unable to secure a suitable place. Yesterday Dr. G. P. Ikirt donated the use of a store room in the block on Sixth street, where it was held for several weeks about a year ago. The room has been given to the ladies for a week and perhaps longer. They have a number of things to start with and expect to open for business this afternoon.

All those who have anything either useful or ornamental to contribute will greatly aid this commendable enterprise by sending at once to the salesroom on Sixth street.

PECULIAR BURIAL CAUSE OF TALK

Men Engaged Said They Were Burying a Do, But a Witness Saw a Man's Foot.

Pittsburg, March 21.—The residents of Kennedy township, near McKee's Rocks, are discussing a somewhat peculiar burial that took place yesterday afternoon.

According to the statement of an eyewitness, about 12:30 yesterday an undertaker's wagon, accompanied by four men, went up the Pine Hollow road, stopping at the distance of about 1,000 feet from the property of Andrew Clever. The men took from the wagon an undertaker's basket, carrying it to one of the fields, where they began to dig a hole.

Mrs. Sarah McCartney, who resides near, and her son Thomas saw the wagon stop and wondered at its presence in that particular place. Thomas went to the men and inquired their reason for making the hole. He states the reply he received was that they were about to bury a dog. A hole about five feet in length and about two feet in depth was excavated, and the contents of the basket interred.

According to Mrs. McCartney's son, it was not a dog, but what had the appearance of a man's body, that was interred, and Thomas states that although the body appeared to be wrapped in a brown cloth or coat, yet he saw one of the feet which happened to become exposed.

Mrs. McCartney about the same time states she went down to the wagon to see whose it was, and ascertained that it belonged to R. H. Clever, McKee's Rocks, who is a relative of the owner of the field. When Mr. Clever was seen this morning, however, he denied that he had been in the vicinity yesterday or that he had interred any one yesterday.

A TEACHER'S SUIT FOR HIS SALARY

He Was Engaged For Five Years and Discharged At the End of One.

Canton March 21.—Judge Donahue, in a rather extended opinion, reversed the lower court in its finding upon the case of Rolandus G. Walker against the board of education of Canton. Walker's attorneys, Welty & Albaugh, had interposed a demurrer to the answer of the board of education, and in the principal features of it the common pleas court overruled the demurrer. The circuit court reversed the lower court and ordered the demurrer sustained. The principal point in dispute was as to whether or not the board of education had a right to hire a teacher for two years and the circuit judges were of the opinion that it could.

Prof. Walker, some years ago, was hired by the board of education for a term of two years. A number of other teachers had similar contracts. A new board being elected, it repudiated these contracts and several teachers were let go at the end of the first year. Walker brought suit for the second year's salary and the case has been in court ever since. It is understood that if Walker is successful, others will also bring suit.

NEW TRACTION LINE IN SOUTHERN OHIO

Winmington, Del., March 21.—The Marietta, Woodsfield & Barnesville Railway company was incorporated here yesterday. It is capitalized at $200,000. Incorporators are: R. Merydith, F. M. Robinson, and M. H. Hait, all of Marietta. The railway, which is to be operated by electricity, is to run through Washington, Monroe and Belmont counties, connecting with the Bellaire, Zanesville & Cincinnati at Woodsfield, the Baltimore & Ohio at Barnesville, and the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern at Marietta.

It will open up new territory in the Ohio valley.

BIG COAL OPERATIONS NEAR WELLSBURG

Wellsburg, W. Va., March 21.—The Beech Bottom Coal company started operations at Beech Bottom yesterday afternoon. The little village situated near Wellsburg already contains three coal companies that are working in fierce opposition. The names of these companies are the Wiota Coal company, the Wellsburg Coal company and the Beech Bottom Coal company.

At present there are four engineers on the ground, and the contracts have been let for the erection of about 50 tenement houses. Negotiations are under way for the building of a $55,000 coal tipple, and when it is done it will be one of the most improved and up-to-date in this section of the country.

These mines are to be opened on the ground fomerly owned by the Dairy people, that is situated just above the Bayne farm. Up to this time 2,229 acres of the best coal land in that vicinity has been taken up by the Beech Bottom Coal people, and it is thought that before long there will be many more acres purchased for this company to operate on.

The Beech Bottom Coal company is a new one that has been formed in Wellsburg, and that is where the main offices will be located. The company has been chartered with a capital of $250,000, with Messrs. Hough and Erbeck at the head of it. Many capitalists of Wellsburg and other towns of that vicinity are interested in the scheme.

The Wiota and Wellsburg Coal companies have been in operation for years and have been doing a very good business. The Beech Bottom company has been formed for quite a while, but yesterday was the first day that any active work was done on the opening up of the mines. It is the intention to have everything as modern and as up-to-date in the way of machinery as possible. Railroad switches have been connected up with the Pewiky and a competent corps of engineers are on the ground already with surveyors and others making arrangements for the tipple and other parts of the outside gearing that goes with mining.

Under Southern Skies.

William A. Brady's production, "Under Southern Skies," the coming attraction under the auspices of the opera house ushers, promises to be the best production of the season. The company is an excellent one and a thoroughly enjoyable performance may be looked for.

The stage hands will donate a nice percentage of the gross receipts for the benefit of the Thomas Jefferson memorial fund. The performance has received high praise in other cities. The Salem News says: "A large crowd witnessed the performance given by the "Under Southern Skies" company at the opera house last night. The play gave good satisfaction. The scenery and costuming were fine. A special feature was the singing of old plantation melodies, with some new up-to-date medleys by the Imperial quartet of colored people."

If you tire of buckwheat, try Mrs. Austin's famous Pancake flour for a change. Made from the great food cereals.

TEN PIECES OF SHEET MUSIC FOR $1.00.

Is This Old Music?
NO!

10 pieces of copyright music, latest popular pieces of the day, for $1.00.

Why, you ask, do we make this offer, do we buy this music so cheap that we can afford to sell it 10 pieces for $1.00.

NO!

The reason, in order to keep up to date we have standing orders with the leading publishers for from 1 to 10 copies of each new issue. These are sent us soon as they are off the press. In 10 years we have accumulated more music than our limited space will allow, our shelves are running over. We must make more room or reduce our stock. We decide to sell 10 pieces for $1.00, or sent prepaid to any address for $1.10.

This music we have in stock and will not include the last copy of any one piece. Our clerks will not be allowed to play over music in this offer. We will, however, allow you to select three pieces that we have in stock, we will give you seven more either instrumental or vocal of our own selection, copyright music Ordinarily these 10 pieces would cost you at least $2.50.

While this offer is not something for nothing it is very close to it. Offer for 30 days only.

The Slope mine, which has been suspended from the union for some time, was invited to meet with the rest of the miners at the convention.

Three sessions were held before an agreement could be reached. In the evening sssion the scale was agreed upon and will be signed soon. All the mines operated in this district was represented except the Big Vein Coal company. The miners are well pleased to have the scale made up. It is now thought that work will be better that it has been for the past two months.

RUMMAGE SALE

The ladies of the Hospital association, who are interested in a spring rummage sale have delayed opening because they were unable to secure a suitable place. Yesterday Dr. G. P. Ikirt donated the use of a store room in the block on Sixth street, where it was held for several weeks about a year ago. The room has been given to the ladies for a week and perhaps longer. They have a number of things to start with and expect to open for business this afternoon.

All those who have anything either useful or ornamental to contribute will greatly aid this commendable enterprise by sending at once to the salesroom on Sixth street.

PECULIAR BURIAL CAUSE OF TALK

Men Engaged Said They Were Burying a Do, But a Witness Saw a Man's Foot.

Pittsburg, March 21.—The residents of Kennedy township, near McKee's Rocks, are discussing a somewhat peculiar burial that took place yesterday afternoon.

According to the statement of an eyewitness, about 12:30 yesterday an undertaker's wagon, accompanied by four men, went up the Pine Hollow road, stopping at the distance of about 1,000 feet from the property of Andrew Clever. The men took from the wagon an undertaker's basket, carrying it to one of the fields, where they began to dig a hole.

Mrs. Sarah McCartney, who resides near, and her son Thomas saw the wagon stop and wondered at its presence in that particular place. Thomas went to the men and inquired their reason for making the hole. He states the reply he received was that they were about to bury a dog. A hole about five feet in length and about two feet in depth was excavated, and the contents of the basket interred.

According to Mrs. McCartney's son, it was not a dog, but what had the appearance of a man's body, that was interred, and Thomas states that although the body appeared to be wrapped in a brown cloth or coat, yet he saw one of the feet which happened to become exposed.

Mrs. McCartney about the same time states she went down to the wagon to see whose it was, and ascertained that it belonged to R. H. Clever, McKee's Rocks, who is a relative of the owner of the field. When Mr. Clever was seen this morning, however, he denied that he had been in the vicinity yesterday or that he had interred any one yesterday.

A TEACHER'S SUIT FOR HIS SALARY

He Was Engaged For Five Years and Discharged At the End of One.

Canton March 21.—Judge Donahue, in a rather extended opinion, reversed the lower court in its finding upon the case of Rolandus G. Walker against the board of education of Canton. Walker's attorneys, Welty & Albaugh, had interposed a demurrer to the answer of the board of education, and in the principal features of it the common pleas court overruled the demurrer. The circuit court reversed the lower court and ordered the demurrer sustained. The principal point in dispute was as to whether or not the board of education had a right to hire a teacher for two years and the circuit judges were of the opinion that it could.

Prof. Walker, some years ago, was hired by the board of education for a term of two years. A number of other teachers had similar contracts. A new board being elected, it repudiated these contracts and several teachers were let go at the end of the first year. Walker brought suit for the second year's salary and the case has been in court ever since. It is understood that if Walker is successful, others will also bring suit.

NEW TRACTION LINE IN SOUTHERN OHIO

Winmington, Del., March 21.—The Marietta, Woodsfield & Barnesville Railway company was incorporated here yesterday. It is capitalized at $200,000. Incorporators are: R. Merydith, F. M. Robinson, and M. H. Hait, all of Marietta. The railway, which is to be operated by electricity, is to run through Washington, Monroe and Belmont counties, connecting with the Bellaire, Zanesville & Cincinnati at Woodsfield, the Baltimore & Ohio at Barnesville, and the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern at Marietta.

It will open up new territory in the Ohio valley.

BIG COAL OPERATIONS NEAR WELLSBURG

Wellsburg, W. Va., March 21.—The Beech Bottom Coal company started operations at Beech Bottom yesterday afternoon. The little village situated near Wellsburg already contains three coal companies that are working in fierce opposition. The names of these companies are the Wiota Coal company, the Wellsburg Coal company and the Beech Bottom Coal company.

At present there are four engineers on the ground, and the contracts have been let for the erection of about 50 tenement houses. Negotiations are under way for the building of a $55,000 coal tipple, and when it is done it will be one of the most improved and up-to-date in this section of the country.

These mines are to be opened on the ground fomerly owned by the Dairy people, that is situated just above the Bayne farm. Up to this time 2,220 acres of the best coal land in that vicinity has been taken up by the Beech Bottom Coal people, and it is thought that before long there will be many more acres purchased for this company to operate on.

The Beech Bottom Coal company is a new one that has been formed in Wellsburg, and that is where the main offices will be located. The company has been chartered with a capital of $250,000, with Messrs. Hough and Erbeck at the head of it. Many capitalists of Wellsburg and other towns of that vicinity are interested in the scheme.

The Wiota and Wellsburg Coal companies have been in operation for years and have been doing a very good business. The Beech Bottom company has been formed for quite a while, but yesterday was the first day that any active work was done on the opening up of the mines. It is the intention to have everything as modern and as up-to-date in the way of machinery as possible. Railroad switches have been connected up with the Pewiky and a competent corps of engineers are on the ground already with surveyors and others making arrangements for the tipple and other parts of the outside gearing that goes with mining.

Under Southern Skies.

William A. Brady's production, "Under Southern Skies," the coming attraction under the auspices of the opera house ushers, promises to be the best production of the season. The company is an excellent one and a thoroughly enjoyable performance may be looked for.

The stage hands will donate a nice percentage of the gross receipts for the benefit of the Thomas Jefferson memorial fund. The performance has received high praise in other cities. The Salem News says: "A large crowd witnessed the performance given by the "Under Southern Skies" company at the opera house last night. The play gave good satisfaction. The scenery and costuming were fine. A special feature was the singing of old plantation melodies, with some new up-to-date medleys by the Imperial quartet of colored people."

TEN PIECES OF SHEET MUSIC FOR $1.00.

Is This Old Music?

NO!

10 pieces of copyright music, latest popular pieces of the day, for $1.00.

Why, you ask, do we make this offer, do we buy this music so cheap that we can afford to sell it 10 pieces for $1.00.

NO!

The reason, in order to keep up to date we have standing orders with the leading publishers for from 1 to 10 copies of each new issue. These are sent us soon as they are off the press. In 10 years we have accumulated more music than our limited space will allow, our shelves are running over. We must make more room or reduce our stock. We decide to sell 10 pieces for $1.00, or sent prepaid to any address for $1.10.

This music we have in stock and will not include the last copy of any one piece. Our clerks will not be allowed to play over music in this offer. We will, however, allow you to select three pieces that we have in stock, we will give you seven more either instrumental or vocal of our own selection, copyright music Ordinarily these 10 pieces would cost you at least $2.50.

While this offer is not something for nothing it is very close to it.

Offer for 30 days only.

WELLSVILLE

FIGHT IN PROSPECT

West End Residents Propose to Resist Reported C. & P. Plans.

From present indications the West End of Wellsville in the near future will be the scene of a warmly contested battle between the officials of the C. & P. road and the residents of the western side of Nevada street. The railroad company has bought up all the property on the eastern side of this street for the purpose of laying more tracks for switching purposes. It does not mean, it is said, to move the buildings, but take most of the back yards. It will rent all the houses much cheaper than they have heretofore been rented. The people on the other side of the street are very indignant over the matter, as they claim, if these additional tracks are permitted to be laid, their property will not be worth more than one-half of its present value. All the property holders are thinking seriously of making up a purse sufficient to engage legal advisers and have this matter fought to a finish.

Should the railroad company begin work without a settlement of some kind being made it will find that these people are in earnest. The crossing at Eighteenth street will be guarded day and night and when the company tries to cross this street operations will have to be suspended until the Nevada residents can, in a measure be satisfied. The company has been very quiet in all its movements in that vicinity and no doubt meant to get the work started before anything was said, but the people learned of it and are ready to fight the company to a standstill.

AN IMPORTANT DEAL

In Real Estate, Which Seems to Assure a Fine Business Building.

A real estate deal was consummated a few days ago in which the property of Joshua Holliday, at Third and Coal streets, was sold to Aattorney Frank L. Wells. It is stated upon the best authority that this deal was made in the interests of E. E. Whitacre, who now owns a large business block in the same square and only a few feet away. It is known that Mr. Wells acts as attorney for Mr. Whitacre, and it is also known that Mr. Whitacre is particularly interested in this property. It is stated that Mr. Whitacre will erect a three-story brick business block of the most modern style on the land in question.

Neither Mr. Whitacre nor Mr. Wells when approached upon the subject had anything to say. If this report proves correct Third street will have two of the finest buildings in Wellsville, as the one now occupied by Mr. Whitacre and other offices is one of the most modern in this city.

Twentieth Cetury Club Affairs.

CHESTER COUNCIL ACTS ON BOND ISSUE QUESTION.

Other Matters Of Interest Taken Up and Considered Last Night.

Chester council last evening took up as its first business the reports of committees. Chairman Cunningham, of the street committee, reported that the culvert on Fairview street and the approach to the bridge at Second street had been repaired, also that a storm sewer had been put in on Sixth street, and that the household goods that had been declared an obstruction on Railroad street had been removed.

A representative of Risinger Bros. was present and submitted a proposal for taking care of the street lamps of the town. The proposition was that his concern would take care of the lamps to the number of 25, at a rate of $3 per month and give the lamps daily attendance. They also proposed to furnish 10 additional lights at the same price as the first 15 had been furnished. The price asked for the care of the lights was considered too high by the members of council, and the town may possibly assume the responsibility of the street lighting. On motion the matter was deferred until the next meeting.

The bonds of the town sergeant and the street commissioner have not yet been filed, and Sergeant Allison stated that he would file a bond as requested at the next meeting. Street Commissioner Allison informed council that he would file a personal bond, but would not file a trust company's surety, and a motion was made in effect that in case the street commissioner did not comply with the requirements of council, that his office be declared vacant by the next meeting, which carried. The bond ordinance, which was deferred from the previous meeting, was brought up, and on call of roll was adopted.

The amount of the bonds is to be $22,000, in denominations of $1,000 each to be numbered consecutively from 1 to 22, and run with 5 per cent interest per annum until 1937, made payable at the First National bank of East Liverpool. The bonds can be redeemed at any period after the year 1913. A certificate of $200 must accompany all bids for the bonds. The date of the election was also set, which will be on Tuesday, April 7.

The city property committee was instructed to fix up the town hall at an expense not to exceed $30, after which the council adjourned.

A SURPRISE IS SPRUNG

Regarding the construction of the proposed steel bridge at First street, some peculiar developments have been brought to light. Mr. Maxwell reported to council that the county court having decided not to join in any appropriation for that purpose, that the only proposition now before the council was that of the Pennsylvania Railroad company. It came as a surprise when the members of council were made aware of the fact, that they had all along been making arrangements for the construction of a bridge on private property. The approaches to the bridge and the bridge itself belonging to John Shrader.

The dangerous condition of the floor of the bridge has made it necessary for some immediate action in regard to placing it in safer condition. The heavy traffic from out the country in different directions has made the use of the bridge very essential, and it is thought that after the meeting which will be arranged between the committee, which has been appointed, and Mr. Shrader, that a new floor will be put down, as the foundation and upright timbers of the structure are in good condition.

CHARGED WITH THEFT

Sheridan Reese, aged 15, living at Congo, was arrested this morning by Constable Allison, who went there and brought the boy before Justice A. G. Pugh. The boy was charged with stealing a skiff from the beach in front of the residence of Allen E. McDonald, and belonging to him. The boy admitted taking the skiff, in company with his sister, but stated that he had asked for the loan of the boat from the lady of the house.

When the lad became aware that proceedings would be instituted against him he returned the boat to where it had formerly been left. Mr. McDonald has been frequently annoyed by parties purloining different articles, and was apparently satisfied when his property was returned. He was lenient in prosecuting the case. At the request of Mr. McDonald the case was dismissed, after the boy received a reprimand from the Justice.

SETTLED WITHOUT TRIAL

Damage Suit of the Conkles for Injuries Adjusted Amicably.

The suit for damages which was entered in the circuit court and set for hearing on next Monday was amicably adjusted at New Cumberland. The case was that of Jennie M. Conkle and Samuel M. Conkle for damages sustained on the evening of August 13, 1902, when the phaeton in which the Conkle family of Hookstown were returning to their home, was struck by a Rock Springs car, Mr. Conkle was thrown from the phaeton and Miss Conkle slightly injured. The vehicle was badly wrecked.

The case was settled by the attorneys in the case, Mr. Conkle and daughter being recompensed in a satisfactory manner.

A Panhandle Presbytery.

A movement is on foot for the formation of a Wheeling presbytery of the Presbyterian church. The presbytery will include the Panhandle district, which now belongs to the Washington presbytery. At a meeting of the Presbyterian ministers of northern West Virginia in Wheeling this week, a committee was appointed to draft an overture to be presented at the meeting of the Washington presbytery at Washington, Pa., April 13. It is argued that there are enough Presbyterian churches and communicants in the territory proposed to be embraced for a new presbytery.

Strike Nearing a Crisis.

Pittsburg, March 21.—The situation in the strike at the new Wabash bridge is nearing a crisis. Officers of the bridge company state that they will speedily start work on the contract and the members of the union who are invoking the strike declare that they will win a victory. In the company's temporary boarding house more than 50 non-union workmen are quartered, under the protection of the police. With these men and additional recruits the company expects to begin operations. Around the camp representatives of the strikers hold constant vigil and are using the utmost means to induce the non-union workers to desert.

Schwab Arrives in Pittsburg.

CAR CREW IS ACCUSED OF ROBBING AGED MAN

the line and by the time Columbian park was reached I was the only passenger aboard. When the car reached a rather dark point on the long stretch above the park, the motorman turned off the power and he and the conductor simultaneously started toward me. The motorman carried the handle of the controller and while he had it raised above my head the conductor said, in a voice full of determination: 'Shell out, old man, or we will shell it for you.'

"What was I to do? There they were, two big, stout and healthy men against me, an old man who in his younger years was an athlete, but now, as is the case with all men of my age, growing weak. I could do nothing but take the money from my pocket and hand it over to them. After I had done this they grabbed me by the shoulders and threw me off the car. I then started to walk home and reached there after a hard trip through the muddy bottom. I got my shoes covered with mud when I crossed the valley over which there is a trestle.

"When I arrived home I did not say anything to my daughter or her husband about the experience until the following morning. I studied over the matter during the night and the first thing in the morning I went down town to tell my son, who is a plumber at Washington and Third streets, the particulars. He thought it was one of the most cowardly deeds ever perpetrated, and at once advised me to report it at central police station. I did so, and was advised to have a talk with the superintendent of the railway. I then went up to the power house but could not find Mr. Healy and have not been able to talk with him since.

"There is one thing that I am positively going to do. I have an attorney and he will push the matter as I direct. The money that was taken from me must be refunded, every cent of it, and if it is possible for me to have the motorman and conductor apprehended, I will insist that the laws of Ohio be invoked. I know that I can identify the men if they are brought before me, especially the motorman, who threatened to strike me with the heavy brass instrument."

Superintendent Thomas of the street railway, when questioned in regard to the story of Mr. Burrows, made the following statement: "Mr. Burrows has not seen any official around the power house. If he will substantiate his tale and give us any line on which to work, so that we can run down the case, we will put forth our best efforts to land the men. The company would not tolerate such actions for a moment and would be only too glad to apprehend the guilty parties. As the case now stands we have absolutely nothing to work on and connot do a thing."

DOCTOR'S REVOLVER PUT THEM TO FLIGHT

Footpads Who Tried to Hold Up Dr. J. H. Davis Tackled the Wrong Customer.

Dr. J. H. Davis has reported another unsuccessful attempt on the part of two men to hold him up and secure his valuables. Yesterday evening he received a telephone call from Smith's Ferry and went there to see a patient. He remained until after 9 o'clock and started to walk to the terminus of the street car line in the East End. When he reached a lonely spot near the end of the street car tracks he was confronted by two men who demanded that he give them money, at the same time threatening to beat his brains out. The footpads were armed with heavy pick handles.

As soon as their demand was uttered Dr. Davis pulled a revolver from his pocket and threatened to shoot if they did not make tracks at once. Both men fled in the darkness without further parley. A car was approaching at that time and the doctor boarded it and came down town in safety. Dr. Davis had several dollars on his person, as well as a handsome gold watch and other valuables. The men, who were evidently tramps, were above the ordinary height and were rather stout. The one who did the talking wore a black slouch hat and a badly torn overcoat.

CREMATED IN BAD HOTEL FIRE

Traveling Man Burned to Death and Several Seriously Injured in Burning Building.

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 21.—By the careless throwing down of a lighted match by a guest in his room a fire was started which practically destroyed the Clarenden hotel, at Canal and Bridge streets, with its contents, entailing a total loss estimated at between $75,000 and $100,000 and causing the loss of one life and the more or less serious injury of several persons.

The dead: William G. Hawkins, traveling man of Bay City, Mich.; body discovered after the fire had been extinguished.

Peter Sternberg went to his room on the second floor and after igniting the gas threw the lighted match among a lot of his silk goods, which immediately took fire. He made a desperate effort to extinguish the flames, being severely burned, before he rushed out and gave the alarm. The flames spread through the four story brick building with great rapidity, and by the time the fire department got to work flames were bursting from nearly every window. A panic ensued among those in the upper stories and a number of thrilling rescues were made by the firemen. After about an hour's work the firemen gained control of the flames, but the big building had been badly gutted.

Entertained by Members of the Press.

New York, March 21.—Ex-Governor Francis, of Missouri, president of the St. Louis exposition, was entertained at the University club by Hamilton Wright Mabie, Richard Watson Gilder and other well-known editors. Mr. Francis later was dined by the New York Press club.

WELLSVILLE

From present indications the West End of Wellsville in the near future will be the scene of a warmly contested battle between the officials of the C. & P. road and the residents of the western side of Nevada street. The railroad company has bought up all the property on the eastern side of this street for the purpose of laying more tracks for switching purposes. It does not mean, it is said, to move the buildings, but take most of the back yards. It will rent all the houses much cheaper than they have heretofore been rented. The people on the other side of the street are very indignant over the matter, as they claim, if these additional tracks are permitted to be laid, their property will not be worth more than one-half of its present value. All the property holders are thinking seriously of making up a purse sufficient to engage legal advisers and have this matter fought to a finish.

Should the railroad company begin work without a settlement of some kind being made it will find that these people are in earnest. The crossing at Eighteenth street will be guarded day and night and when the company tries to cross this street operations will have to be suspended until the Nevada residents can, in a measure be satisfied. The company has been very quiet in all its movements in that vicinity and no doubt meant to get the work started before anything was said, but the people learned of it and are ready to fight the company to a standstill.

AN IMPORTANT DEAL

A real estate deal was consummated a few days ago in which the property of Joshua Holliday, at Third and Coal streets, was sold to Aattorney Frank L. Wells. It is stated upon the best authority that this deal was made in the interests of E. E. Whitacre, who now owns a large business block in the same square and only a few feet away. It is known that Mr. Wells acts as attorney for Mr. Whitacre, and it is also known that Mr. Whitacre is particularly interested in this property. It is stated that Mr. Whitacre will erect a three-story brick business block of the most modern style on the land in question.

Neither Mr. Whitacre nor Mr. Wells when approached upon the subject had anything to say. If this report proves correct Third street will have two of the finest buildings in Wellsville, as the one now occupied by Mr. Whitacre and other offices is one of the most modern in this city.

CHESTER COUNCIL ACTS ON BOND ISSUE QUESTION.

Other Matters Of Interest Taken Up and Considered Last Night.

Chester council last evening took up as its first business the reports of committees. Chairman Cunningham, of the street committee, reported that the culvert on Fairview street and the approach to the bridge at Second street had been repaired, also that a storm sewer had been put in on Sixth street, and that the household goods that had been declared an obstruction on Railroad street had been removed.

A representative of Risinger Bros. was present and submitted a proposal for taking care of the street lamps of the town. The proposition was that his concern would take care of the lamps to the number of 25, at a rate of $3 per month and give the lamps daily attendance. They also proposed to furnish 10 additional lights at the same price as the first 15 had been furnished. The price asked for the care of the lights was considered too high by the members of council, and the town may possibly assume the responsibility of the street lighting. On motion the matter was deferred until the next meeting.

The bonds of the town sergeant and the street commissioner have not yet been filed, and Sergeant Allison stated that he would file a bond as requested at the next meeting. Street Commissioner Allison informed council that he would file a personal bond, but would not file a trust company's surety, and a motion was made in effect that in case the street commissioner did not comply with the requirements of council, that his office be declared vacant by the next meeting, which carried. The bond ordinance, which was deferred from the previous meeting, was brought up, and on call of roll was adopted.

The amount of the bonds is to be $22,000, in denominations of $1,000 each to be numbered consecutively from 1 to 22, and run with 5 per cent interest per annum until 1937, made payable at the First National bank of East Liverpool. The bonds can be redeemed at any period after the year 1913. A certificate of $200 must accompany all bids for the bonds. The date of the election was also set, which will be on Tuesday, April 7.

The city property committee was instructed to fix up the town hall at an expense not to exceed $30, after which the council adjourned.

A SURPRISE IS SPRUNG

Regarding the construction of the proposed steel bridge at First street, some peculiar developments have been brought to light. Mr. Maxwell reported to council that the county court having decided not to join in any appropriation for that purpose, that the only proposition now before the council was that of the Pennsylvania Railroad company. It came as a surprise when the members of council were made aware of the fact, that they had all along been making arrangements for the construction of a bridge on private property. The approaches to the bridge and the bridge itself belonging to John Shrader.

The dangerous condition of the floor of the bridge has made it necessary for some immediate action in regard to placing it in safer condition. The heavy traffic from out the country in different directions has made the use of the bridge very essential, and it is thought that after the meeting which will be arranged between the committee, which has been appointed, and Mr. Shrader, that a new floor will be put down, as the foundation and upright timbers of the structure are in good condition.

CHARGED WITH THEFT

Sheridan Reese, aged 15, living at Congo, was arrested this morning by Constable Allison, who went there and brought the boy before Justice A. G. Pugh. The boy was charged with stealing a skiff from the beach in front of the residence of Allen E. McDonald, and belonging to him. The boy admitted taking the skiff, in company with his sister, but stated that he had asked for the loan of the boat from the lady of the house.

When the lad became aware that proceedings would be instituted against him he returned the boat to where it had formerly been left. Mr. McDonald has been frequently annoyed by parties purloining different articles, and was apparently satisfied when his property was returned. He was lenient in prosecuting the case. At the request of Mr. McDonald the case was dismissed, after the boy received a reprimand from the Justice.

SETTLED WITHOUT TRIAL

Damage Suit of the Conkles for Injuries Adjusted Amicably.

The suit for damages which was entered in the circuit court and set for hearing on next Monday was amicably adjusted at New Cumberland. The case was that of Jennie M. Conkle and Samuel M. Conkle for damages sustained on the evening of August 13, 1902, when the phaeton in which the Conkle family of Hookstown were returning to their home, was struck by a Rock Springs car. Mr. Conkle was thrown from the phaeton and Miss Conkle slightly injured. The vehicle was badly wrecked.

The case was settled by the attorneys in the case, Mr. Conkle and daughter being recompensed in a satisfactory manner.

A Panhandle Presbytery.

A movement is on foot for the formation of a Wheeling presbytery of the Presbyterian church. The presbytery will include the Panhandle district, which now belongs to the Washington presbytery. At a meeting of the Presbyterian ministers of northern West Virginia in Wheeling this week, a committee was appointed to draft an overture to be presented at the meeting of the Washington presbytery at Washington, Pa., April 13. It is argued that there are enough Presbyterian churches and communicants in the territory proposed to be embraced for a new presbytery.

Strike Nearing a Crisis.

Pittsburg, March 21.—The situation in the strike at the new Wabash bridge is nearing a crisis. Officers of the bridge company state that they will speedily start work on the contract and the members of the union who are invoking the strike declare that they will win a victory. In the company's temporary boarding house more than 50 non-union workmen are quartered, under the protection of the police. With these men and additional recruits the company expects to begin operations. Around the camp representatives of the strikers hold constant vigil and are using the utmost means to induce the non-union workers to desert.

Schwab Arrives in Pittsburg.

CAR CREW IS ACCUSED OF ROBBING AGED MAN

the line and by the time Columbian park was reached I was the only passenger aboard. When the car reached a rather dark point on the long stretch above the park, the motorman turned off the power and he and the conductor simultaneously started toward me. The motorman carried the handle of the controller and while he had it raised above my head the conductor said, in a voice full of determination: 'Shell out, old man, or we will shell it for you.'

"What was I to do? There they were, two big, stout and healthy men against me, an old man who in his younger years was an athlete, but now, as is the case with all men of my age, growing weak. I could do nothing but take the money from my pocket and hand it over to them. After I had done this they grabbed me by the shoulders and threw me off the car. I then started to walk home and reached there after a hard trip through the muddy bottom. I got my shoes covered with mud when I crossed the valley over which there is a trestle.

"When I arrived home I did not say anything to my daughter or her husband about the experience until the following morning. I studied over the matter during the night and the first thing in the morning I went down town to tell my son, who is a plumber at Washington and Third streets, the particulars. He thought it was one of the most cowardly deeds ever perpetrated, and at once advised me to report it at central police station. I did so, and was advised to have a talk with the superintendent of the railway. I then went up to the power house but could not find Mr. Healy and have not been able to talk with him since.

"There is one thing that I am positively going to do. I have an attorney and he will push the matter as I direct. The money that was taken from me must be refunded, every cent of it, and if it is possible for me to have the motorman and conductor apprehended, I will insist that the laws of Ohio be invoked. I know that I can identify the men if they are brought before me, especially the motorman, who threatened to strike me with the heavy brass instrument."

Superintendent Thomas of the street railway, when questioned in regard to the story of Mr. Burrows, made the following statement: "Mr. Burrows has not seen any official around the power house. If he will substantiate his tale and give us any line on which to work, so that we can run down the case, we will put forth our best efforts to land the men. The company would not tolerate such actions for a moment and would be only too glad to apprehend the guilty parties. As the case now stands we have absolutely nothing to work on and connot do a thing."

DOCTOR'S REVOLVER PUT THEM TO FLIGHT

Dr. J. H. Davis has reported another unsuccessful attempt on the part of two men to hold him up and secure his valuables. Yesterday evening he received a telephone call from Smith's Ferry and went there to see a patient. He remained until after 9 o'clock and started to walk to the terminus of the street car line in the East End. When he reached a lonely spot near the end of the street car tracks he was confronted by two men who demanded that he give them money, at the same time threatening to beat his brains out. The footpads were armed with heavy pick handles.

As soon as their demand was uttered Dr. Davis pulled a revolver from his pocket and threatened to shoot if they did not make tracks at once. Both men fled in the darkness without further parley. A car was approaching at that time and the doctor boarded it and came down town in safety. Dr. Davis had several dollars on his person, as well as a handsome gold watch and other valuables. The men, who were evidently tramps, were above the ordinary height and were rather stout. The one who did the talking wore a black slouch hat and a badly torn overcoat.

CREMATED IN BAD HOTEL FIRE

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 21.—By the careless throwing down of a lighted match by a guest in his room a fire was started which practically destroyed the Clarenden hotel, at Canal and Bridge streets, with its contents, entailing a total loss estimated at between $75,000 and $100,000 and causing the loss of one life and the more or less serious injury of several persons.

The dead: William G. Hawkins, traveling man of Bay City, Mich.; body discovered after the fire had been extinguished.

Peter Sternberg went to his room on the second floor and after igniting the gas threw the lighted match among a lot of his silk goods, which immediately took fire. He made a desperate effort to extinguish the flames, being severely burned, before he rushed out and gave the alarm. The flames spread through the four story brick building with great rapidity, and by the time the fire department got to work flames were bursting from nearly every window. A panic ensued among those in the upper stories and a number of thrilling rescues were made by the firemen. After about an hour's work the firemen gained control of the flames, but the big building had been badly gutted.

Neither Mr. Whitacre nor Mr. Wells when approached upon the subject had anything to say. If this report proves correct Third street will have two of the finest buildings in Wellsville, as the one now occupied by Mr. Whitacre and other offices is one of the most modern in this city.

CHESTER COUNCIL ACTS ON BOND ISSUE QUESTION.

Other Matters Of Interest Taken Up and Considered Last Night.

Chester council last evening took up as its first business the reports of committees. Chairman Cunningham, of the street committee, reported that the culvert on Fairview street and the approach to the bridge at Second street had been repaired, also that a storm sewer had been put in on Sixth street, and that the household goods that had been declared an obstruction on Railroad street had been removed.

A representative of Risinger Bros. was present and submitted a proposal for taking care of the street lamps of the town. The proposition was that his concern would take care of the lamps to the number of 25, at a rate of $3 per month and give the lamps daily attendance. They also proposed to furnish 10 additional lights at the same price as the first 15 had been furnished. The price asked for the care of the lights was considered too high by the members of council, and the town may possibly assume the responsibility of the street lighting. On motion the matter was deferred until the next meeting.

The bonds of the town sergeant and the street commissioner have not yet been filed, and Sergeant Allison stated that he would file a bond as requested at the next meeting. Street Commissioner Allison informed council that he would file a personal bond, but would not file a trust company's surety, and a motion was made in effect that in case the street commissioner did not comply with the requirements of council, that his office be declared vacant by the next meeting, which carried. The bond ordinance, which was deferred from the previous meeting, was brought up, and on call of roll was adopted.

The amount of the bonds is to be $22,000, in denominations of $1,000 each to be numbered consecutively from 1 to 22, and run with 5 per cent interest per annum until 1937, made payable at the First National bank of East Liverpool. The bonds can be redeemed at any period after the year 1913. A certificate of $200 must accompany all bids for the bonds. The date of the election was also set, which will be on Tuesday, April 7.

The city property committee was instructed to fix up the town hall at an expense not to exceed $30, after which the council adjourned.

A SURPRISE IS SPRUNG

Regarding the construction of the proposed steel bridge at First street, some peculiar developments have been brought to light. Mr. Maxwell reported to council that the county court having decided not to join in any appropriation for that purpose, that the only proposition now before the council was that of the Pennsylvania Railroad company. It came as a surprise when the members of council were made aware of the fact, that they had all along been making arrangements for the construction of a bridge on private property. The approaches to the bridge and the bridge itself belonging to John Shrader.

The dangerous condition of the floor of the bridge has made it necessary for some immediate action in regard to placing it in safer condition. The heavy traffic from out the country in different directions has made the use of the bridge very essential, and it is thought that after the meeting which will be arranged between the committee, which has been appointed, and Mr. Shrader, that a new floor will be put down, as the foundation and upright timbers of the structure are in good condition.

THE RISINGER PORCH LAMP IS NOW READY

It produces a 900 candle power light; it is perfectly storm proof; a touch of the chain turns on the light; it is a handsome fixture and a credit to the veranda or vestibule of any residence.

While it is smaller and much different in design from our street lamp, it is made on the same principle, these lamps having proved themselves wind proof when all others have failed.

Your residence will not be complete or fully up to date without one of our porch lamps.

CHARGED WITH THEFT

Sheridan Reese, aged 15, living at Congo, was arrested this morning by Constable Allison, who went there and brought the boy before Justice A. G. Pugh. The boy was charged with stealing a skiff from the beach in front of the residence of Allen E. McDonald, and belonging to him. The boy admitted taking the skiff, in company with his sister, but stated that he had asked for the loan of the boat from the lady of the house.

When the lad became aware that proceedings would be instituted against him he returned the boat to where it had formerly been left. Mr. McDonald has been frequently annoyed by parties purloining different articles, and was apparently satisfied when his property was returned. He was lenient in prosecuting the case. At the request of Mr. McDonald the case was dismissed, after the boy received a reprimand from the Justice.

SETTLED WITHOUT TRIAL

The suit for damages which was entered in the circuit court and set for hearing on next Monday was amicably adjusted at New Cumberland. The case was that of Jennie M. Conkle and Samuel M. Conkle for damages sustained on the evening of August 13, 1902, when the phaeton in which the Conkle family of Hookstown were returning to their home, was struck by a Rock Springs car, Mr. Conkle was thrown from the phaeton and Miss Conkle slightly injured. The vehicle was badly wrecked.

The case was settled by the attorneys in the case, Mr. Conkle and daughter being recompensed in a satisfactory manner.

A Panhandle Presbytery.

A movement is on foot for the formation of a Wheeling presbytery of the Presbyterian church. The presbytery will include the Panhandle district, which now belongs to the Washington presbytery. At a meeting of the Presbyterian ministers of northern West Virginia in Wheeling this week, a committee was appointed to draft an overture to be presented at the meeting of the Washington presbytery at Washington, Pa., April 13. It is argued that there are enough Presbyterian churches and communicants in the territory proposed to be embraced for a new presbytery.

Strike Nearing a Crisis.

Pittsburg, March 21.—The situation in the strike at the new Wabash bridge is nearing a crisis. Officers of the bridge company state that they will speedily start work on the contract and the members of the union who are invoking the strike declare that they will win a victory. In the company's temporary boarding house more than 50 non-union workmen are quartered, under the protection of the police. With these men and additional recruits the company expects to begin operations. Around the camp representatives of the strikers hold constant vigil and are using the utmost means to induce the non-union workers to desert.

Schwab Arrives in Pittsburg.

the line and by the time Columbian park was reached I was the only passenger aboard. When the car reached a rather dark point on the long stretch above the park, the motorman turned off the power and he and the conductor simultaneously started toward me. The motorman carried the handle of the controller and while he had it raised above my head the conductor said, in a voice full of determination: 'Shell out, old man, or we will shell it for you.'

"What was I to do? There they were, two big, stout and healthy men against me, an old man who in his younger years was an athlete, but now, as is the case with all men of my age, growing weak. I could do nothing but take the money from my pocket and hand it over to them. After I had done this they grabbed me by the shoulders and threw me off the car. I then started to walk home and reached there after a hard trip through the muddy bottom. I got my shoes covered with mud when I crossed the valley over which there is a trestle.

"When I arrived home I did not say anything to my daughter or her husband about the experience until the following morning. I studied over the matter during the night and the first thing in the morning I went down town to tell my son, who is a plumber at Washington and Third streets, the particulars. He thought it was one of the most cowardly deeds ever perpetrated, and at once advised me to report it at central police station. I did so, and was advised to have a talk with the superintendent of the railway. I then went up to the power house but could not find Mr. Healy and have not been able to talk with him since.

"There is one thing that I am positively going to do. I have an attorney and he will push the matter as I direct. The money that was taken from me must be refunded, every cent of it, and if it is possible for me to have the motorman and conductor apprehended, I will insist that the laws of Ohio be invoked. I know that I can identify the men if they are brought before me, especially the moterman, who threatened to strike me with the heavy brass instrument."

Superintendent Thomas of the street railway, when questioned in regard to the story of Mr. Burrows, made the following statement: "Mr. Burrows has not seen any official around the power house. If he will substantiate his tale and give us any line on which to work, so that we can run down the case, we will put forth our best efforts to land the men. The company would not tolerate such actions for a moment and would be only too glad to apprehend the guilty parties. As the case now stands we have absolutely nothing to work on and connot do a thing."

DOCTOR'S REVOLVER PUT THEM TO FLIGHT

Dr. J. H. Davis has reported another unsuccessful attempt on the part of two men to hold him up and secure his valuables. Yesterday evening he received a telephone call from Smith's Ferry and went there to see a patient. He remained until after 9 o'clock and started to walk to the terminus of the street car line in the East End. When he reached a lonely spot near the end of the street car tracks he was confronted by two men who demanded that he give them money, at the same time threatening to beat his brains out. The footpads were armed with heavy pick handles.

As soon as their demand was uttered Dr. Davis pulled a revolver from his pocket and threatened to shoot if they did not make tracks at once. Both men fled in the darkness without further parley. A car was approaching at that time and the doctor boarded it and came down town in safety. Dr. Davis had several dollars on his person, as well as a handsome gold watch and other valuables. The men, who were evidently tramps, were above the ordinary height and were rather stout. The one who did the talking wore a black slouch hat and a badly torn overcoat.

CREMATED IN BAD HOTEL FIRE

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 21.—By the careless throwing down of a lighted match by a guest in his room a fire was started which practically destroyed the Clarenden hotel, at Canal and Bridge streets, with its contents, entailing a total loss estimated at between $75,000 and $100,000 and causing the loss of one life and the more or less serious injury of several persons.

The dead: William G. Hawkins, traveling man of Bay City, Mich.; body discovered after the fire had been extinguished.

Peter Sternberg went to his room on the second floor and after igniting the gas threw the lighted match among a lot of his silk goods, which immediately took fire. He made a desperate effort to extinguish the flames, being severely burned, before he rushed out and gave the alarm. The flames spread through the four story brick building with great rapidity, and by the time the fire department got to work flames were bursting from nearly every window. A panic ensued among those in the upper stories and a number of thrilling rescues were made by the firemen. After about an hour's work the firemen gained control of the flames, but the big building had been badly gutted.

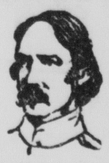
The New Arabian Nights



By ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON

Mr. Raeburn's house was on that day to be closed by the police, and this afforded a pretext for his departure. He cheerfully prepared his baggage, transported it to King's Cross, where he left it in the cloakroom, and returned to the club to while away the afternoon and dine.

"If you dine here today, Rolles," observed an acquaintance, "you may see two of the most remarkable men in England—Prince Florizel of Bohemia and old Jack Vandeleur."

"I have heard of the prince," replied Mr. Rolles, "and General Vandeleur I have even met in society."

"General Vandeleur is an ass!" returned the other. "This is his brother John, the biggest adventurer, the best judge of precious stones and one of the most acute diplomatists in Europe. Have you never heard of his duel with the Duc de Val d'Orge, of his exploits and atrocities when he was dictator of Paraguay, of his dexterity in recovering Sir Samuel Levi's jewelry, or of his services in the Indian mutiny—services by which the government profited, but which the government dared not recognize? You make me wonder what we mean by fame or even by infamy, for Jack Vandeleur has prodigious claims to both. Run downstairs," he continued, "take a table near them and keep your ears open. You will hear some strange talk or I am much misled."

"But how shall I know them?" inquired the clergyman.

"Know them!" cried his friend. "Why, the prince is the finest gentleman in Europe, the only living creature who looks like a king, and as for Jack Vandeleur, if you can imagine Ulysses at seventy years of age and with a saber cut across his face you have the man before you! Know them, indeed! Why, you could pick either of them out of a Derby day!"

Rolles eagerly hurried to the dining room. It was as his friend had asserted—it was impossible to mistake the pair in question. Old John Vandeleur was of a remarkable force of body and obviously broken to the most difficult exercises. He had neither the carriage of a swordsman nor of a sailor nor yet of one much inured to the saddle, but something made up of all these and the result and expression of many different habits and dexterities. His features were bold and aquiline, his expression arrogant and predatory, his whole appearance that of a swift, violent, unscrupulous man of action, and his copious white hair and the deep saber cut that traversed his nose and temple added a note of savagery to a head already remarkable and menacing in itself.

In his companion, the Prince of Bohemia, Mr. Rolles was astonished to recognize the gentleman who had recommended him the study of Gaborian. Doubtless Prince Florizel, who rarely visited the club, of which, as of most others, he was an honorary member, had been waiting for John Vandeleur when Simon accosted him on the previous evening.

The other diners had modestly retired into the angles of the room and left the distinguished pair in a certain isolation, but the young clergyman was unrestrained by any sentiment of awe and, marching boldly up, took his place at the nearest table.

The conversation was indeed new to the student's ears. The ex-dictator of Paraguay stated many extraordinary experiences in different quarters of the world, and the prince supplied a commentary which, to a man of thought, was even more interesting than the events themselves. Two forms of experience were thus brought together and laid before the young clergyman, and he did not know which to admire the most—the desperate actor or the skilled expert in life; the man who spoke boldly of his own deeds and perils or the man who seemed, like a god, to know all things and to have suffered nothing. The manner of each aptly fitted with his part in the discourse. The dictator indulged in brutalities alike of speech and gesture. His hand opened and shut and fell roughly on the table, and his voice was loud and heady. The prince, on the other hand, seemed the very type of urbane docility and quiet. The least movement, the least inflection, had with him a weightier significance than all the shouts and pantomime of his companion, and if ever, as must frequently have been the case, he described some experience personal to himself, it was so aptly dissimulated as to pass unnoticed with the rest.

At length the talk wandered on to the late robberies and the rajah's diamond.

"As a Vandeleur," replied the dictator, "your highness may imagine my dissent."

"I speak on grounds of public policy," pursued the prince. "Jewels so valuable should be reserved for the collection of a prince or the treasury of a great nation. To hand them about among the common sort of men is to set a price on virtue's head, and if the rajah of Kashgar—a prince, I understand, of great enlightenment—desired vengeance upon the men of Europe he could hardly have gone more efficaciously about his purpose than by sending us this apple of discord. There is no honesty too robust for such a trial. I myself, who have many duties and many privileges of my own—I myself, Mr. Vandeleur, could scarce handle the intoxicating crystal and be safe. As for you, who are a diamond hunter by taste and profession, I do not believe there is a crime in the calendar you would not perpetrate—I do not believe you have a friend in the world whom you would not eagerly betray. I do not know if you have a family, but if you have I declare you would sacrifice your children. And all this for what? Not to be richer nor to have more comforts or more respect, but simply to call this diamond yours for a year or two until you die and now and again to open a safe and look at it as one looks at a picture."

"It is true," replied Vandeleur. "I have hunted most things from men and women down to mosquitoes. I have dived for coral, I have followed both whales and tigers, and a diamond is the tallest quarry of the lot. It has beauty and worth; it alone can properly reward the ardors of the chase. At this moment, as your highness may fancy, I am upon the trail. I have a sure knack, a wide experience. I know every stone of price in my brother's collection as a shepherd knows his sheep, and I wish I may die if I do not recover them every one."

"Sir Thomas Vandeleur will have great cause to thank you," said the prince.

"I am not so sure," returned the dictator, with a laugh. "One of the Vandeleurs will—Thomas or John—Peter or Paul; we are all apostles."

"I did not catch your observation," said the prince, with some disgust.

Mr. Rolles glanced at the clock and saw that he also must be moving, and the coincidence struck him sharply and unpleasantly, for he desired to see no more of the diamond hunter.

Much study having somewhat shaken the young man's nerves, he was in the habit of traveling in the most luxurious manner, and for the present journey he had taken a sofa in the sleeping carriage.

"You will be very comfortable," said the guard. "There is no one in your compartment and only one old gentleman in the other end."

It was close upon the hour and the tickets were being examined when Mr. Rolles beheld this other fellow passenger ushered by several porters into his place. Certainly there was not another man in the world whom he would not have preferred, for it was old John Vandeleur, the ex-dictator.

The sleeping carriages on the Great Northern line were divided into three compartments, one at each end for travelers and one in the center fitted with the conveniences of a lavatory. A door running in grooves separated each of the others from the lavatory, but as there were neither bolts nor locks the whole suit was practically common ground.

When Mr. Rolles had studied his position, he perceived himself without defense. If the dictator chose to pay him a visit in the course of the night, he could do no less than receive it. He had no means of fortification and lay open to attack as if he had been lying in the fields. This situation caused him some agony of mind. He recalled with alarm the boastful statements of his fellow traveler across the dining table and the professions of immorality which he had heard him offering to the disgusted prince. Some persons, he remembered to have read, are endowed with a singular quickness of perception for the neighborhood of precious metals. Through walls and even at considerable distances they are said to divine the presence of gold. Might it not be the same with diamonds? he wondered, and, if so, who was more likely to enjoy this transcendental sense than the person who gloried in the appellation of the diamond hunter? From such a man he recognized that he had everything to fear, and longed eagerly for the arrival of day.

In the meantime he neglected no precaution, concealed his diamond in the most internal pocket of a system of greatcoats and devoutly recommended himself to the care of Providence.

The train pursued its usual even and rapid course, and nearly half the journey had been accomplished before slumber began to triumph over uneasiness in the breast of Mr. Rolles. For some time he resisted its influence, but it grew upon him more and more, and a little before York he was fain to stretch himself upon one of the couches and suffer his eyes to close, and almost at the same instant consciousness deserted the young clergyman. His last thought was of his terrifying neighbor.

When he awoke it was still pitch dark except for the flicker of the veiled lamp, and the continual roaring and oscillation testified to the unrelaxed velocity of the train. He sat upright in a panic, for he had been tormented by the most uneasy dreams. It was some seconds before he recovered his self command, and even after he had resumed a recumbent attitude sleep continued to flee him, and he lay awake with his brain in a state of violent agitation and his eyes fixed upon the lavatory door. He pulled his clerical felt hat over his brow still farther to shield him from the light, and he adopted the usual expedients, such as counting a thousand or banishing thought, by which experienced invalids are accustomed to woo the approach of sleep. In the case of Mr. Rolles they proved one and all vain. He was harassed by a dozen different anxieties—the old man in the other end of the carriage haunted him in the most alarming shapes, and in whatever attitude he chose to lie the diamond in his pocket occasioned him a sensible physical distress. It burned, it was too large, it bruised his ribs, and there were infinitesimal fractions of a second in which he had half a mind to throw it from the window.

While he was thus lying a strange incident took place.

The sliding door into the lavatory stirred a little, and then a little more, and was finally drawn back for the space of about twenty inches. The lamp in the lavatory was unshaded, and in the lighted aperture thus disclosed Mr. Rolles could see the head of Mr. Vandeleur in an attitude of deep attention. He was conscious that the gaze of the dictator rested intently on his own face, and the instinct of self preservation moved him to hold his breath, to refrain from the least movement and, keeping his eyes lowered, to watch his visitor from underneath the lashes. After about a moment the head was withdrawn and the door of the lavatory replaced.

The dictator had not come to attack but to observe. His action was not that of a man threatening another, but that of a man who was himself threatened. If Mr. Rolles was afraid of him, it appeared that he in his turn was not quite easy on the score of Mr. Rolles. He had come, it would seem, to make sure that his only fellow traveler was asleep, and, when satisfied on that point, he had at once withdrawn.

The clergyman leaped to his feet. The extreme of terror had given place to a reaction of foolhardy daring. He reflected that the rattle of the flying train concealed all other sounds and determined, come what might, to return the visit he had just received. Divesting himself of his cloak, which might have interfered with the freedom of his action, he entered the lavatory and paused to listen. As he had expected, there was nothing to be heard above the roar of the train's progress, and, laying his hand on the door at the farther side, he proceeded cautiously to draw it back for about six inches. Then he stopped and could not contain an ejaculation of surprise.

John Vandeleur wore a fur traveling cap with lappets to protect his ears, and this may have combined with the sound of the express to keep him in ignorance of what was going forward. It is certain, at least, that he did not raise his head, but continued without interruption to pursue his strange employment. Between his feet stood an open hatbox. In one hand he held the sleeve of his sealskin greatcoat, in the other a formidable knife, with which he had just slit up the lining of the sleeve. Mr. Rolles had read of persons carrying money in a belt, and, as he had no acquaintance with any but cricket belts, he had never been able rightly to conceive how this was managed. But here was a stranger thing before his eyes, for John Vandeleur, it appeared, carried diamonds in the lining of his sleeve, and even as the young clergyman gazed he could see the glittering brilliant drop after another into the hatbox.

He stood riveted to the spot, following this unusual business with his eyes. The diamonds were, for the most part, small and not easily distinguishable either in shape or fire. Suddenly the dictator appeared to find a difficulty. He employed both hands and stooped over his task, but it was not until after considerable maneuvering that he extricated a large tiara of diamonds from the lining and held it up for some seconds' examination before he placed it with the others in the hatbox. The tiara was a ray of light to Mr. Rolles. He immediately recognized it for a part of the treasure stolen from Harry Hartley by the loiterer. There was no room for mistake; it was exactly as the detective had described it. There were the ruby stars, with a great emerald in the center; there were the interlacing crescents, and there were the pear shaped pendants, each a single stone, which gave a special value to Lady Vandeleur's tiara.

Mr. Rolles was hugely relieved. The dictator was as deeply in the affair as he was. Neither could tell tales upon the other. In the first glow of happiness the clergyman suffered a deep sigh to escape him, and, as his bosom had become choked and his throat dry during his previous suspense, the sigh was followed by a cough.

Mr. Vandeleur looked up. His face contracted with the blackest and most deadly poison, his eyes opened widely and his under jaw dropped in an astonishment that was upon the brink of fury. By an instinctive movement he had covered the hatbox with the coat. For half a minute the two men stared upon each other in silence. It was not a long interval, but it sufficed for Mr. Rolles. He was one of those who think swiftly on dangerous occasions. He decided on a course of action of a singularly daring nature, and, although he felt he was setting his life upon the hazard, he was the first to break silence.

"I beg your pardon," said he.

The dictator shivered slightly, and when he spoke his voice was hoarse.

"What do you want here?" he asked.

"I take a particular interest in diamonds," replied Mr. Rolles, with an air of perfect self possession. "Two connoisseurs should be acquainted. I have here a trifle of my own which may perhaps serve for an introduction."

And, so saying, he quietly took the case from his pocket, showed the rajah's diamond to the dictator for an instant and replaced it in security.

"It was once your brother's," he added.

"I was pleased to observe," resumed the young man, "that we have gems from the same collection."

The dictator's surprise overpowered him.

"I beg your pardon," he said. "I begin to perceive that I am growing old, and I am positively not prepared for little incidents like this. But set my mind at rest upon one point: Do my eyes deceive me, or are you indeed a parson?"

"I am in holy orders," answered Mr. Rolles.

"Well," cried the other, "as long as I live I will never hear another word against the cloth!"

"You flatter me," said Mr. Rolles.

"Pardon me," replied Vandeleur—"pardon me, young man. You are no coward, but it still remains to be seen whether you are not the worst of fools. Perhaps," he continued, leaning back upon his seat—"perhaps you would oblige me with a few particulars. I must suppose you had some object in the stupefying impudence of your proceedings, and I confess I have a curiosity to know it."

"It is very simple," replied the clergyman. "It proceeds from my great inexperience of life."

"I shall be glad to be persuaded," answered Vandeleur.

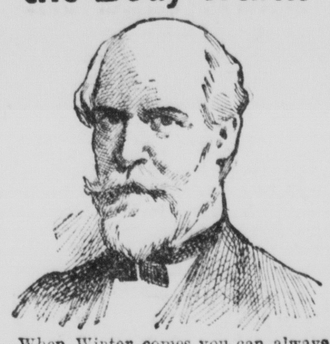
Blood Wine Keeps the Body Warm



When Winter comes you can always tell the man with thin, watery blood. He goes around all bent over; his head drawn down in his collar, his nose red, face blue, teeth chattering, and his feet and hands like cakes of ice. With a little attention paid to his blood his Winters would be a pleasure. It's the blood that keeps us warm, that produces the natural heat. "Blood Wine" will cure a person of the "shivers" no matter how long he has suffered with the cold. It will keep the hands and feet warm instead of "clammy," because it enriches and improves the blood and circulation. People who are indoors a great deal, as in the case of Prof. J. H. Newton, Lowell, Mass., suffer more or less with the cold. To these people we suggest following Prof. Newton's advice:

"I consider 'Blood Wine' the finest blood medicine to rejuvenate a worn-out and run-down system I ever saw. It improves the condition of the blood so that one doesn't notice the cold. Since taking 'Blood Wine' I have never been troubled with cold feet or hands, and have not minded the most severe Winter weather."

SO DECEPTIVE

Many East Liverpool People Fail to Realize the Serious.

Backache is so deceptive.

That's why Doan's Kidney Pills cure it.

Here's an East Liverpool case to prove it:

Mr. C. S. Hill, of Esther, Pa., carpenter, says: "For a year I suffered from pain across the back, difficulty with the kidney secretions and was naturally anxious to procure some treatment which would check it if not radically cure the trouble. Advised by a friend, I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at the W. & W. Pharmacy and I want East Liverpool people to thoroughly grasp this fact; before I used the entire contents of the box I was cured. To prove that my convictions were laid on solid foundation, I have since purchased for a neighbor of mine three boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills. They cured him. Now when a preparation which cured me in the condition I was in and also my neighbor, a preparation which is held in such estimation in and around East Liverpool, that an acquaintance of mine advised me through a newspaper statement to obtain it—when that preparation performs exactly what it promises what can be expected—or any resident of East Liverpool suffering from kidney complaint who will not take advantage of his neighbor's experience and profit by his opinions."

PACKING COMPANIES ARE FINED

Jefferson City, Mo., March 21.—The Missouri supreme court found five large beef packing companies guilty of maintaining an unlawful combination to control prices of meat in the state of Missouri, and issued an order of ouster prohibiting them from doing business in the state and to pay a fine of $5,000 each and to bear the costs of the proceedings. The companies are given 30 days in which to pay the fine imposed, and if during that time they shall accept the judgment and pay the fine the ouster will be held in abeyance and the companies will be permitted to continue their business in Missouri.

The companies affected by the decision are the Armour, Cudahy and Hammond packing companies and Swift & Co., of Chicago, and the Schwarzschild & Sulzberger company, of New York. All of these companies maintain branch offices in different cities of the United States and in Missouri, at St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph. The evidence which incriminated the packers was obtained in these three cities.

Bad Harvest Anticipated.

Madrid, March 21.—The absence of rain for two months over the greater part of Spain has caused apprehension of a bad harvest, which will necessitate large importations of wheat.

A Word to Women.

The peculiar organism of women is such that an extraordinary demand on the supply of blood is made in order to keep healthy and vigorous the female organs. If the blood is impure or lacking in sufficient nutrition, the muscles and tisues supporting the womb, and other female organs become weak, the womb falls causing much pain and distress.

There is no way to reach the cause of female trouble but through the blood. It must be supplied with healthy nutrition which is carried to the weakened organs to build them up and make them strong. Life Plant insures perfect digestion that the blood may be supplied with healthy nutrition to build up the weakened organs and stimulate the organs of excretion that the impurities may all be thrown off. The blood then purified goes on its mission laden with life-giving properties, permeates every organ, giving to each its vital element that makes it strong and perfect. Life Plant Renews Life. It not only purifies the blood, but supplies the vital element in the blood.

Life Plant is truly a wonder in medicine. Not because it accomplishes the apparently impossible, but because of the common sense manner of making cures. Try it now.

Female Trouble.

Mrs. L. M. Enisely, New Philadelphia, Ohio, writes:

I had lost my health and many of my friends believed me to be fast running into consumption. I used various remedies with very little benefit. My family became much alarmed about my condition. My husband hearing of the wonderful curative properties of Life Plant, prevailed on me to try it. I have used it with marked beneficial results, and am only too happy to recommend it to my sister women in affliction.

Letters from Women

Cured by the use of Kodol are received daily. Their troubles nearly all begin with indigestion or other stomach disorder.

If the food you eat fails to give strength to your body, it is because the juices secreted by the stomach and digestive organs are inadequate to transform the nutrient properties of the food into blood. That is indigestion. The system is deprived of the amount of nourishment required to keep up the strength, and the result is that one or more of the delicate organs gradually grows weak, and then weaker, until finally it is diseased. Here a great mistake is made. That of treating the diseased organ. The best doctors in the land make this very mistake. Why should they? It is so easy to see that the trouble is not there.

Kodol Cures

This famous remedy puts the stomach and digestive organs in a healthy condition so that rich, red blood is sent coursing through the veins and arteries of every muscle, tissue and fiber throughout every organ of the entire body, and by Nature's law of health, full strength and vigor is soon restored to each.

I have taken Kodol for nearly two months after each meal and it is the only remedy that gave relief from the terrible pains I endured. After a time I would take it but once a day, and now, while I keep a bottle handy, I seldom need it, as it has cured me. MRS. J. W. COOLBAUGH, Milo Center, N. Y.

Mr. Raeburn's house was on that day to be closed by the police, and this afforded a pretext for his departure. He cheerfully prepared his baggage, transported it to King's Cross, where he left it in the cloakroom, and returned to the club to while away the afternoon and dine.

"If you dine here today, Rolles," observed an acquaintance, "you may see two of the most remarkable men in England—Prince Florizel of Bohemia and old Jack Vandeleur."

"I have heard of the prince," replied Mr. Rolles, "and General Vandeleur I have even met in society."

"General Vandeleur is an ass!" returned the other. "This is his brother John, the biggest adventurer, the best judge of precious stones and one of the most acute diplomatists in Europe. Have you never heard of his duel with the Duc de Val d'Orge, of his exploits and atrocities when he was dictator of Paraguay, of his dexterity in recovering Sir Samuel Levi's jewelry, or of his services in the Indian mutiny—services by which the government profited, but which the government dared not recognize? You make me wonder what we mean by fame or even by infamy, for Jack Vandeleur has prodigious claims to both. Run downstairs," he continued, "take a table near them and keep your ears open. You will hear some strange talk or I am much misled."

"But how shall I know them?" inquired the clergyman.

"Know them!" cried his friend. "Why, the prince is the finest gentleman in Europe, the only living creature who looks like a king, and as for Jack Vandeleur, if you can imagine Ulysses at seventy years of age and with a saber cut across his face you have the man before you! Know them, indeed! Why, you could pick either of them out of a Derby day!"

Rolles eagerly hurried to the dining room. It was as his friend had asserted—it was impossible to mistake the pair in question. Old John Vandeleur was of a remarkable force of body and obviously broken to the most difficult exercises. He had neither the carriage of a swordsman nor of a sailor nor yet of one much inured to the saddle, but something made up of all these and the result and expression of many different habits and dexterities. His features were bold and aquiline, his expression arrogant and predatory, his whole appearance that of a swift, violent, unscrupulous man of action, and his copious white hair and the deep saber cut that traversed his nose and temple added a note of savagery to a head already remarkable and menacing in itself.

In his companion, the Prince of Bohemia, Mr. Rolles was astonished to recognize the gentleman who had recommended him the study of Gaboriau. Doubtless Prince Florizel, who rarely visited the club, of which, as of most others, he was an honorary member, had been waiting for John Vandeleur when Simon accosted him on the previous evening.

The other diners had modestly retired into the angles of the room and left the distinguished pair in a certain isolation, but the young clergyman was unrestrained by any sentiment of awe and, marching boldly up, took his place at the nearest table.

The conversation was indeed new to the student's ears. The ex-dictator of Paraguay stated many extraordinary experiences in different quarters of the world, and the prince supplied a commentary which, to a man of thought, was even more interesting than the events themselves. Two forms of experience were thus brought together and laid before the young clergyman, and he did not know which to admire the most—the desperate actor or the skilled expert in life; the man who spoke boldly of his own deeds and perils or the man who seemed, like a god, to know all things and to have suffered nothing. The manner of each aptly fitted with his part in the discourse. The dictator indulged in brutalities alike of speech and gesture. His hand opened and shut and fell roughly on the table, and his voice was loud and heady. The prince, on the other hand, seemed the very type of urbane docility and quiet. The least movement, the least inflection, had with him a weightier significance than all the shouts and pantomime of his companion, and if ever, as must frequently have been the case, he described some experience personal to himself, it was so aptly dissimulated as to pass unnoticed with the rest.

At length the talk wandered on to the late robberies and the rajah's diamond.

"I speak on grounds of public policy," pursued the prince. "Jewels so valuable should be reserved for the collection of a prince or the treasury of a great nation. To hand them about among the common sort of men is to set a price on virtue's head, and if the rajah of Kashgar—a prince, I understand, of great enlightenment—desired vengeance upon the men of Europe he could hardly have gone more efficaciously about his purpose than by sending us this apple of discord. There is no honesty too robust for such a trial. I myself, who have many duties and many privileges of my own—I myself, Mr. Vandeleur, could scarce handle the intoxicating crystal and be safe. As for you, who are a diamond hunter by taste and profession, I do not believe there is a crime in the calendar you would not perpetrate—I do not believe you have a friend in the world whom you would not eagerly betray. I do not know if you have a family, but if you have I declare you would sacrifice your children. And all this for what? Not to be richer nor to have more comforts or more respect, but simply to call this diamond yours for a year or two until you die and now and again to open a safe and look at it as one looks at a picture."

"It is true," replied Vandeleur. "I have hunted most things from men and women down to mosquitoes. I have dived for coral, I have followed both whales and tigers, and a diamond is the tallest quarry of the lot. It has beauty and worth; it alone can properly reward the ardors of the chase. At this moment, as your highness may fancy, I am upon the trail. I have a sure knack, a wide experience. I know every stone of price in my brother's collection as a shepherd knows his sheep, and I wish I may die if I do not recover them every one."

"Sir Thomas Vandeleur will have great cause to thank you," said the prince.

"I am not so sure," returned the dictator, with a laugh. "One of the Vandeleurs will—Thomas or John—Peter or Paul; we are all apostles."

"I did not catch your observation," said the prince, with some disgust.

Mr. Rolles glanced at the clock and saw that he also must be moving, and the coincidence struck him sharply and unpleasantly, for he desired to see no more of the diamond hunter.

Much study having somewhat shaken the young man's nerves, he was in the habit of traveling in the most luxurious manner, and for the present journey he had taken a sofa in the sleeping carriage.

"You will be very comfortable," said the guard. "There is no one in your compartment and only one old gentleman in the other end."

It was close upon the hour and the tickets were being examined when Mr. Rolles beheld this other fellow passenger ushered by several porters into his place. Certainly there was not another man in the world whom he would not have preferred, for it was old John Vandeleur, the ex-dictator.

The sleeping carriages on the Great Northern line were divided into three compartments, one at each end for travelers and one in the center fitted with the conveniences of a lavatory. A door running in grooves separated each of the others from the lavatory, but as there were neither bolts nor locks the whole suit was practically common ground.

When Mr. Rolles had studied his position, he perceived himself without defense. If the dictator chose to pay him a visit in the course of the night, he could do no less than receive it. He had no means of fortification and lay open to attack as if he had been lying in the fields. This situation caused him some agony of mind. He recalled with alarm the boastful statements of his fellow traveler across the dining table and the professions of immorality which he had heard him offering to the disgusted prince. Some persons, he remembered to have read, are endowed with a singular quickness of perception for the neighborhood of precious metals. Through walls and even at considerable distances they are said to divine the presence of gold. Might it not be the same with diamonds? he wondered, and, if so, who was more likely to enjoy this transcendental sense than the person who gloried in the appellation of the diamond hunter? From such a man he recognized that he had everything to fear, and longed eagerly for the arrival of day.

In the meantime he neglected no precaution, concealed his diamond in the most internal pocket of a system of greatcoats and devoutly recommended himself to the care of Providence.

The train pursued its usual even and rapid course, and nearly half the journey had been accomplished before slumber began to triumph over uneasiness in the breast of Mr. Rolles. For some time he resisted its influence, but it grew upon him more and more, and a little before York he was fain to stretch himself upon one of the couches and suffer his eyes to close, and almost at the same instant consciousness deserted the young clergyman. His last thought was of his terrifying neighbor.

When he awoke it was still pitch dark except for the flicker of the veiled lamp, and the continual roaring and oscillation testified to the unrelaxed velocity of the train. He sat upright in a panic, for he had been tormented by the most uneasy dreams. It was some seconds before he recovered his self command, and even after he had resumed a recumbent attitude sleep continued to flee him, and he lay awake with his brain in a state of violent agitation and his eyes fixed upon the lavatory door. He pulled his clerical felt hat over his brow still farther to shield him from the light, and he adopted the usual expedients, such as counting a thousand or banishing thought, by which experienced invalids are accustomed to woo the approach of sleep. In the case of Mr. Rolles they proved one and all vain. He was harassed by a dozen different anxieties—the old man in the other end of the carriage haunted him in the most alarming shapes, and in whatever attitude he chose to lie the diamond in his pocket occasioned him a sensible physical distress. It burned, it was too large, it bruised his ribs, and there were infinitesimal fractions of a second in which he had half a mind to throw it from the window.

HE EXTRICATED A LARGE TIARA OF DIAMONDS FROM THE LINING.

While he was thus lying a strange incident took place.

The sliding door into the lavatory stirred a little, and then a little more, and was finally drawn back for the space of about twenty inches. The lamp in the lavatory was unshaded, and in the lighted aperture thus disclosed Mr. Rolles could see the head of Mr. Vandeleur in an attitude of deep attention. He was conscious that the gaze of the dictator rested intently on his own face, and the instinct of self preservation moved him to hold his breath, to refrain from the least movement and, keeping his eyes lowered, to watch his visitor from underneath the lashes. After about a moment the head was withdrawn and the door of the lavatory replaced.

The dictator had not come to attack but to observe. His action was not that of a man threatening another, but that of a man who was himself threatened. If Mr. Rolles was afraid of him, it appeared that he in his turn was not quite easy on the score of Mr. Rolles. He had come, it would seem, to make sure that his only fellow traveler was asleep, and, when satisfied on that point, he had at once withdrawn.

The clergyman leaped to his feet. The extreme of terror had given place to a reaction of foolhardy daring. He reflected that the rattle of the flying train concealed all other sounds and determined, come what might, to return the visit he had just received. Divesting himself of his cloak, which might have interfered with the freedom of his action, he entered the lavatory and paused to listen. As he had expected, there was nothing to be heard above the roar of the train's progress, and, laying his hand on the door at the farther side, he proceeded cautiously to draw it back for about six inches. Then he stopped and could not contain an ejaculation of surprise.

John Vandeleur wore a fur traveling cap with lappets to protect his ears, and this may have combined with the sound of the express to keep him in ignorance of what was going forward. It is certain, at least, that he did not raise his head, but continued without interruption to pursue his strange employment. Between his feet stood an open hatbox. In one hand he held the sleeve of his sealskin greatcoat, in the other a formidable knife, with which he had just slit up the lining of the sleeve. Mr. Rolles had read of persons carrying money in a belt, and, as he had no acquaintance with any but cricket belts, he had never been able rightly to conceive how this was managed. But here was a stranger thing before his eyes, for John Vandeleur, it appeared, carried diamonds in the lining of his sleeve, and even as the young clergyman gazed he could see one glittering brilliant drop after another into the hatbox.

He stood riveted to the spot, following this unusual business with his eyes. The diamonds were, for the most part, small and not easily distinguishable either in shape or fire. Suddenly the dictator appeared to find a difficulty. He employed both hands and stooped over his task, but it was not until after considerable maneuvering that he extricated a large tiara of diamonds from the lining and held it up for some seconds' examination before he placed it with the others in the hatbox. The tiara was a ray of light to Mr. Rolles. He immediately recognized it for a part of the treasure stolen from Harry Hartley by the loiterer. There was no room for mistake; it was exactly as the detective had described it. There were the ruby stars, with a great emerald in the center; there were the interlacing crescents, and there were the pear shaped pendants, each a single stone, which gave a special value to Lady Vandeleur's tiara.

Mr. Rolles was hugely relieved. The dictator was as deeply in the affair as he was. Neither could tell tales upon the other. In the first glow of happiness the clergyman suffered a deep sigh to escape him, and, as his bosom had become choked and his throat dry during his previous suspense, the sigh was followed by a cough.

Mr. Vandeleur looked up. His face contracted with the blackest and most deadly poison, his eyes opened widely and his under jaw dropped in an astonishment that was upon the brink of fury. By an instinctive movement he had covered the hatbox with the coat. For half a minute the two men stared upon each other in silence. It was not a long interval, but it sufficed for Mr. Rolles. He was one of those who think swiftly on dangerous occasions. He decided on a course of action of a singularly daring nature, and, although he felt he was setting his life upon the hazard, he was the first to break silence.

"I beg your pardon," said he.

The dictator shivered slightly, and when he spoke his voice was hoarse.

"What do you want here?" he asked.

"I take a particular interest in diamonds," replied Mr. Rolles, with an air of perfect self possession. "Two connoisseurs should be acquainted. I have here a trifle of my own which may perhaps serve for an introduction."

And, so saying, he quietly took the case from his pocket, showed the rajah's diamond to the dictator for an instant and replaced it in security.

"It was once your brother's," he added.

"I was pleased to observe," resumed the young man, "that we have gems from the same collection."

The dictator's surprise overpowered him.

"I beg your pardon," he said. "I begin to perceive that I am growing old, and I am positively not prepared for little incidents like this. But set my mind at rest upon one point: Do my eyes deceive me, or are you indeed a parson?"

"I am in holy orders," answered Mr. Rolles.

"Well," cried the other, "as long as I live I will never hear another word against the cloth!"

"You flatter me," said Mr. Rolles.

"Pardon me," replied Vandeleur—"pardon me, young man. You are no coward, but it still remains to be seen whether you are not the worst of fools. Perhaps," he continued, leaning back upon his seat—"perhaps you would oblige me with a few particulars. I must suppose you had some object in the stupefying impudence of your proceedings, and I confess I have a curiosity to know it."

"It is very simple," replied the clergyman. "It proceeds from my great inexperience of life."

"I shall be glad to be persuaded," answered Vandeleur.

SO DECEPTIVE

Many East Liverpool People Fail to Realize the Seriousness.

Backache is so deceptive.

It comes and goes—keeps you guessing.

Learn the cause—then cure it.

That's why Doan's Kidney Pills cure it.

Here's an East Liverpool case to prove it:

Mr. C. S. Hill, of Esther, Pa., carpenter, says: "For a year I suffered from pain across the back, difficulty with the kidney secretions and was naturally anxious to procure some treatment which would check it if not radically cure the trouble. Advised by a friend, I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at the W. & W. Pharmacy and I want East Liverpool people to thoroughly grasp this fact; before I used the entire contents of the box I was cured. To prove that my convictions were laid on solid foundation, I have since purchased for a neighbor of mine three boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills. They cured him. Now when a preparation which cured me in the condition I was in and also my neighbor, a preparation which is held in such estimation in and around East Liverpool, that an acquaintance of mine advised me through a newspaper statement to obtain it—when that preparation performs exactly what it promises what can be expected—or any resident of East Liverpool suffering from kidney complaint who will not take advantage of his neighbor's experience and profit by his opinions."

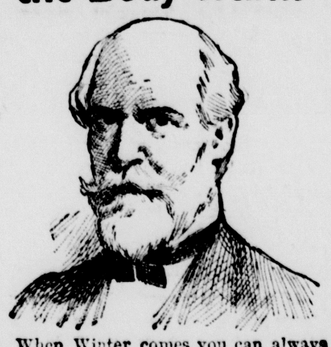
COLD FEET

Blood Wine Keeps the Body Warm



When Winter comes you can always tell the man with thin, watery blood. He goes around all bent over; his head drawn down in his collar, his nose red, face blue, teeth chattering, and his feet and hands like cakes of ice. With a little attention paid to his blood his Winters would be a pleasure. It's the blood that keeps us warm, that produces the natural heat. "Blood Wine" will cure a person of the "shivers" no matter how long he has suffered with the cold. It will keep the hands and feet warm instead of "clammy," because it enriches and improves the blood and circulation. People who are indoors a great deal, as in the case of Prof. J. H. Newton, Lowell, Mass., suffer more or less with the cold. To these people we suggest following Prof. Newton's advice:

"I consider 'Blood Wine' the finest blood medicine to rejuvenate a worn-out and run-down system I ever saw. It improves the condition of the blood so that one doesn't notice the cold. Since taking 'Blood Wine' I have never been troubled with cold feet or hands, and have not minded the most severe Winter weather."

Madrid, March 21.—The absence of rain for two months over the greater part of Spain has caused apprehension of a bad harvest, which will necessitate large importations of wheat.

A Word to Women.

The peculiar organism of women is such that an extraordinary demand on the supply of blood is made in order to keep healthy and vigorous the female organs. If the blood is impure or lacking in sufficient nutrition, the muscles and tisues supporting the womb, and other female organs become weak, the womb falls causing much pain and distress.

There is no way to reach the cause of female trouble but through the blood. It must be supplied with healthy nutrition which is carried to the weakened organs to build them up and make them strong. Life Plant insures perfect digestion that the blood may be supplied with healthy nutrition to build up the weakened organs and stimulate the organs of excretion that the impurities may all be thrown off. The blood then purified goes on its mission laden with life-giving properties, permeates every organ, giving to each its vital element that makes it strong and perfect. Life Plant Renews Life. It not only purifies the blood, but supplies the vital element in the blood.

Life Plant is truly a wonder in medicine. Not because it accomplishes the apparently impossible, but because of the common sense manner of making cures. Try it now.

Female Trouble.

Mrs. L. M. Knisely, New Philadelphia, Ohio, writes:

I had lost my health and many of my friends believed me to be fast running into consumption. I used various remedies with very little benefit. My family became much alarmed about my condition. My husband hearing of the wonderful curative properties of Life Plant, prevailed on me to try it. I have used it with marked beneficial results, and am only too happy to recommend it to my sister women in affliction.

Letters from Women

Cured by the use of Kodol are received daily. Their troubles nearly all begin with indigestion or other stomach disorder.

If the food you eat fails to give strength to your body, it is because the juices secreted by the stomach and digestive organs are inadequate to transform the nutrient properties of the food into blood. That is indigestion. The system is deprived of the amount of nourishment required to keep up the strength, and the result is that one or more of the delicate organs gradually grows weak, and then weaker, until finally it is diseased. Here a great mistake is made. That of treating the diseased organ. The best doctors in the land make this very mistake. Why should they? It is so easy to see that the trouble is not there.

Kodol Cures

This famous remedy puts the stomach and digestive organs in a healthy condition so that rich, red blood is sent coursing through the veins and arteries of every muscle, tissue and fiber throughout every organ of the entire body, and by Nature's law of health, full strength and vigor is soon restored to each.

I have taken Kodol for nearly two months after each meal and it is the only remedy that gave relief from the terrible pains I endured. After a time I would take it but once a day, and now, while I keep a bottle handy, I seldom need it, as it has cured me. MRS. J. W. COOLBAUGH, Milo Center, N. Y.

The New Arabian Nights

Mr. Raeburn's house was on that day to be closed by the police, and this afforded a pretext for his departure. He cheerfully prepared his baggage, transported it to King's Cross, where he left it in the cloakroom, and returned to the club to while away the afternoon and dine.

"If you dine here today, Rolles," observed an acquaintance, "you may see two of the most remarkable men in England—Prince Florizel of Bohemia and old Jack Vandeleur."

"I have heard of the prince," replied Mr. Rolles, "and General Vandeleur I have even met in society."

"General Vandeleur is an ass!" returned the other. "This is his brother John, the biggest adventurer, the best judge of precious stones and one of the most acute diplomatists in Europe. Have you never heard of his duel with the Duc de Val d'Orge, of his exploits and atrocities when he was dictator of Paraguay, of his dexterity in recovering Sir Samuel Levi's jewelry, or of his services in the Indian mutiny—services by which the government profited, but which the government dared not recognize? You make me wonder what we mean by fame or even by infamy, for Jack Vandeleur has prodigious claims to both. Run downstairs," he continued, "take a table near them and keep your ears open. You will hear some strange talk or I am much misled."

"But how shall I know them?" inquired the clergyman.

"Know them!" cried his friend. "Why, the prince is the finest gentleman in Europe, the only living creature who looks like a king, and as for Jack Vandeleur, if you can imagine Ulysses at seventy years of age and with a saber cut across his face you have the man before you! Know them, indeed! Why, you could pick either of them out of a Derby day!"

Rolles eagerly hurried to the dining room. It was as his friend had asserted—it was impossible to mistake the pair in question. Old John Vandeleur was of a remarkable force of body and obviously broken to the most difficult exercises. He had neither the carriage of a swordsman nor of a sailor nor yet of one much inured to the saddle, but something made up of all these and the result and expression of many different habits and dexterities. His features were bold and aquiline, his expression arrogant and predatory, his whole appearance that of a swift, violent, unscrupulous man of action, and his copious white hair and the deep saber cut that traversed his nose and temple added a note of savagery to a head already remarkable and menacing in itself.

In his companion, the Prince of Bohemia, Mr. Rolles was astonished to recognize the gentleman who had recommended him the study of Gaborian. Doubtless Prince Florizel, who rarely visited the club, of which, as of most others, he was an honorary member, had been waiting for John Vandeleur when Simon accosted him on the previous evening.

The other diners had modestly retired into the angles of the room and left the distinguished pair in a certain isolation, but the young clergyman was unrestrained by any sentiment of awe and, marching boldly up, took his place at the nearest table.

The conversation was indeed new to the student's ears. The ex-dictator of Paraguay stated many extraordinary experiences in different quarters of the world, and the prince supplied a commentary which, to a man of thought, was even more interesting than the events themselves. Two forms of experience were thus brought together and laid before the young clergyman, and he did not know which to admire the most—the desperate actor or the skilled expert in life; the man who spoke boldly of his own deeds and perils or the man who seemed, like a god, to know all things and to have suffered nothing. The manner of each aptly fitted with his part in the discourse. The dictator indulged in brutalities alike of speech and gesture. His hand opened and shut and fell roughly on the table, and his voice was loud and heady. The prince, on the other hand, seemed the very type of urbane docility and quiet. The least movement, the least inflection, had with him a weightier significance than all the shouts and pantomime of his companion, and if ever, as must frequently have been the case, he described some experience personal to himself, it was so aptly dissimulated as to pass unnoticed with the rest.

At length the talk wandered on to the late robberies and the rajah's diamond.

"I speak on grounds of public policy," pursued the prince. "Jewels so valuable should be reserved for the collection of a prince or the treasury of a great nation. To hand them about among the common sort of men is to set a price on virtue's head, and if the rajah of Kashgar—a prince, I understand, of great enlightenment—desired vengeance upon the men of Europe he could hardly have gone more efficaciously about his purpose than by sending us this apple of discord. There is no honesty too robust for such a trial. I myself, who have many duties and many privileges of my own—I myself, Mr. Vandeleur, could scarce handle the intoxicating crystal and be safe. As for you, who are a diamond hunter by taste and profession, I do not believe there is a crime in the calendar you would not perpetrate—I do not believe you have a friend in the world whom you would not eagerly betray. I do not know if you have a family, but if you have I declare you would sacrifice your children. And all this for what? Not to be richer nor to have more comforts or more respect, but simply to call this diamond yours for a year or two until you die and now and again to open a safe and look at it as one looks at a picture."

"It is true," replied Vandeleur. "I have hunted most things from men and women down to mosquitoes. I have dived for coral, I have followed both whales and tigers, and a diamond is the tallest quarry of the lot. It has beauty and worth; it alone can properly reward the ardors of the chase. At this moment, as your highness may fancy, I am upon the trail. I have a sure knack, a wide experience. I know every stone of price in my brother's collection as a shepherd knows his sheep, and I wish I may die if I do not recover them every one."

"Sir Thomas Vandeleur will have great cause to thank you," said the prince.

"I am not so sure," returned the dictator, with a laugh. "One of the Vandeleurs will—Thomas or John—Peter or Paul; we are all apostles."

"I did not catch your observation," said the prince, with some disgust.

Mr. Rolles glanced at the clock and saw that he also must be moving, and the coincidence struck him sharply and unpleasantly, for he desired to see no more of the diamond hunter.

Much study having somewhat shaken the young man's nerves, he was in the habit of traveling in the most luxurious manner, and for the present journey he had taken a sofa in the sleeping carriage.

"You will be very comfortable," said the guard. "There is no one in your compartment and only one old gentleman in the other end."

It was close upon the hour and the tickets were being examined when Mr. Rolles beheld this other fellow passenger ushered by several porters into his place. Certainly there was not another man in the world whom he would not have preferred, for it was old John Vandeleur, the ex-dictator.

The sleeping carriages on the Great Northern line were divided into three compartments, one at each end for travelers and one in the center fitted with the conveniences of a lavatory. A door running in grooves separated each of the others from the lavatory, but as there were neither bolts nor locks the whole suit was practically common ground.

When Mr. Rolles had studied his position, he perceived himself without defense. If the dictator chose to pay him a visit in the course of the night, he could do no less than receive it. He had no means of fortification and lay open to attack as if he had been lying in the fields. This situation caused him some agony of mind. He recalled with alarm the boastful statements of his fellow traveler across the dining table and the professions of immorality which he had heard him offering to the disgusted prince. Some persons, he remembered to have read, are endowed with a singular quickness of perception for the neighborhood of precious metals. Through walls and even at considerable distances they are said to divine the presence of gold. Might it not be the same with diamonds? he wondered, and, if so, who was more likely to enjoy this transcendental sense than the person who gloried in the appellation of the diamond hunter? From such a man he recognized that he had everything to fear, and longed eagerly for the arrival of day.

In the meantime he neglected no precaution, concealed his diamond in the most internal pocket of a system of greatcoats and devoutly recommended himself to the care of Providence.

The train pursued its usual even and rapid course, and nearly half the journey had been accomplished before slumber began to triumph over uneasiness in the breast of Mr. Rolles. For some time he resisted its influence, but it grew upon him more and more, and a little before York he was fain to stretch himself upon one of the couches and suffer his eyes to close, and almost at the same instant consciousness deserted the young clergyman. His last thought was of his terrifying neighbor.

When he awoke it was still pitch dark except for the flicker of the veiled lamp, and the continual roaring and oscillation testified to the unrelaxed velocity of the train. He sat upright in a panic, for he had been tormented by the most uneasy dreams. It was some seconds before he recovered his self command, and even after he had resumed a recumbent attitude sleep continued to flee him, and he lay awake with his brain in a state of violent agitation and his eyes fixed upon the lavatory door. He pulled his clerical felt hat over his brow still farther to shield him from the light, and he adopted the usual expedients, such as counting a thousand or banishing thought, by which experienced invalids are accustomed to woo the approach of sleep. In the case of Mr. Rolles they proved one and all vain. He was harassed by a dozen different anxieties—the old man in the other end of the carriage haunted him in the most alarming shapes, and in whatever attitude he chose to lie the diamond in his pocket occasioned him a sensible physical distress. It burned, it was too large, it bruised his ribs, and there were infinitesimal fractions of a second in which he had half a mind to throw it from the window.

While he was thus lying a strange incident took place.

The sliding door into the lavatory stirred a little, and then a little more, and was finally drawn back for the space of about twenty inches. The lamp in the lavatory was unshaded, and in the lighted aperture thus disclosed Mr. Rolles could see the head of Mr. Vandeleur in an attitude of deep attention. He was conscious that the gaze of the dictator rested intently on his own face, and the instinct of self preservation moved him to hold his breath, to refrain from the least movement and, keeping his eyes lowered, to watch his visitor from underneath the lashes. After about a moment the head was withdrawn and the door of the lavatory replaced.

The dictator had not come to attack but to observe. His action was not that of a man threatening another, but that of a man who was himself threatened. If Mr. Rolles was afraid of him, it appeared that he in his turn was not quite easy on the score of Mr. Rolles. He had come, it would seem, to make sure that his only fellow traveler was asleep, and, when satisfied on that point, he had at once withdrawn.

The clergyman leaped to his feet. The extreme of terror had given place to a reaction of foolhardy daring. He reflected that the rattle of the flying train concealed all other sounds and determined, come what might, to return the visit he had just received. Divesting himself of his cloak, which might have interfered with the freedom of his action, he entered the lavatory and paused to listen. As he had expected, there was nothing to be heard above the roar of the train's progress, and, laying his hand on the door at the farther side, he proceeded cautiously to draw it back for about six inches. Then he stopped and could not contain an ejaculation of surprise.

John Vandeleur wore a fur traveling cap with lappets to protect his ears, and this may have combined with the sound of the express to keep him in ignorance of what was going forward. It is certain, at least, that he did not raise his head, but continued without interruption to pursue his strange employment. Between his feet stood an open hatbox. In one hand he held the sleeve of his sealskin greatcoat, in the other a formidable knife, with which he had just slit up the lining of the sleeve. Mr. Rolles had read of persons carrying money in a belt, and, as he had no acquaintance with any but cricket belts, he had never been able rightly to conceive how this was managed. But here was a stranger thing before his eyes, for John Vandeleur, it appeared, carried diamonds in the lining of his sleeve, and even as the young clergyman gazed he could see one glittering brilliant drop after another into the hatbox.

He stood riveted to the spot, following this unusual business with his eyes. The diamonds were, for the most part, small and not easily distinguishable either in shape or fire. Suddenly the dictator appeared to find a difficulty. He employed both hands and stooped over his task, but it was not until after considerable maneuvering that he extricated a large tiara of diamonds from the lining and held it up for some seconds' examination before he placed it with the others in the hatbox. The tiara was a ray of light to Mr. Rolles. He immediately recognized it for a part of the treasure stolen from Harry Hartley by the loiterer. There was no room for mistake; it was exactly as the detective had described it. There were the ruby stars, with a great emerald in the center; there were the interlacing crescents, and there were the pear shaped pendants, each a single stone, which gave a special value to Lady Vandeleur's tiara.

Mr. Rolles was hugely relieved. The dictator was as deeply in the affair as he was. Neither could tell tales upon the other. In the first glow of happiness the clergyman suffered a deep sigh to escape him, and, as his bosom had become choked and his throat dry during his previous suspense, the sigh was followed by a cough.

Mr. Vandeleur looked up. His face contracted with the blackest and most deadly poison, his eyes opened widely and his under jaw dropped in an astonishment that was upon the brink of fury. By an instinctive movement he had covered the hatbox with the coat. For half a minute the two men stared upon each other in silence. It was not a long interval, but it sufficed for Mr. Rolles. He was one of those who think swiftly on dangerous occasions. He decided on a course of action of a singularly daring nature, and, although he felt he was setting his life upon the hazard, he was the first to break silence.

"I beg your pardon," said he.

The dictator shivered slightly, and when he spoke his voice was hoarse.

"What do you want here?" he asked.

"I take a particular interest in diamonds," replied Mr. Rolles, with an air of perfect self possession. "Two connoisseurs should be acquainted. I have here a trifle of my own which may perhaps serve for an introduction."

And, so saying, he quietly took the case from his pocket, showed the rajah's diamond to the dictator for an instant and replaced it in security.

"It was once your brother's," he added.

"I was pleased to observe," resumed the young man, "that we have gems from the same collection."

The dictator's surprise overpowered him.

"I beg your pardon," he said. "I begin to perceive that I am growing old, and I am positively not prepared for little incidents like this. But set my mind at rest upon one point: Do my eyes deceive me, or are you indeed a parson?"

"I am in holy orders," answered Mr. Rolles.

"Well," cried the other, "as long as I live I will never hear another word against the cloth!"

"You flatter me," said Mr. Rolles.

"Pardon me," replied Vandeleur—"pardon me, young man. You are no coward, but it still remains to be seen whether you are not the worst of fools. Perhaps," he continued, leaning back upon his seat—"perhaps you would oblige me with a few particulars. I must suppose you had some object in the stupefying impudence of your proceedings, and I confess I have a curiosity to know it."

"It is very simple," replied the clergyman. "It proceeds from my great inexperience of life."

"I shall be glad to be persuaded," answered Vandeleur.

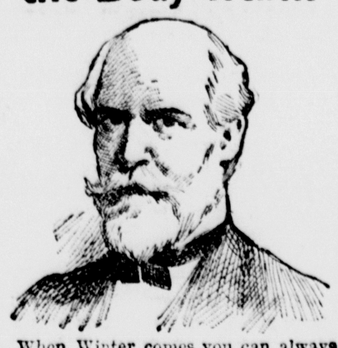
Blood Wine Keeps the Body Warm



When Winter comes you can always tell the man with thin, watery blood. He goes around all bent over; his head drawn down in his collar, his nose red, face blue, teeth chattering, and his feet and hands like cakes of ice. With a little attention paid to his blood his Winters would be a pleasure. It's the blood that keeps us warm, that produces the natural heat. "Blood Wine" will cure a person of the "shivers" no matter how long he has suffered with the cold. It will keep the hands and feet warm instead of "clammy," because it enriches and improves the blood and circulation. People who are indoors a great deal, as in the case of Prof. J. H. Newton, Lowell, Mass., suffer more or less with the cold. To these people we suggest following Prof. Newton's advice:

"I consider 'Blood Wine' the finest blood medicine to rejuvenate a worn-out and run-down system I ever saw. It improves the condition of the blood so that one doesn't notice the cold. Since taking 'Blood Wine' I have never been troubled with cold feet or hands, and have not minded the most severe Winter weather."

SO DECEPTIVE

Many East Liverpool People Fail to Realize the Seriousness.

Backache is so deceptive.

It comes and goes—keeps you guessing.

Learn the cause—then cure it.

Nine times out of ten it comes from the kidneys.

That's why Doan's Kidney Pills cure it.

Here's an East Liverpool case to prove it:

Mr. C. S. Hill, of Esther, Pa., carpenter, says: "For a year I suffered from pain across the back, difficulty with the kidney secretions and was naturally anxious to procure some treatment which would check it if not radically cure the trouble. Advised by a friend, I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at the W. & W. Pharmacy and I want East Liverpool people to thoroughly grasp this fact; before I used the entire contents of the box I was cured. To prove that my convictions were laid on solid foundation, I have since purchased for a neighbor of mine three boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills. They cured him. Now when a preparation which cured me in the condition I was in and also my neighbor, a preparation which is held in such estimation in and around East Liverpool, that an acquaintance of mine advised me through a newspaper statement to obtain it—when that preparation performs exactly what it promises what can be expected—or any resident of East Liverpool suffering from kidney complaint who will not take advantage of his neighbor's experience and profit by his opinions."

PACKING COMPANIES ARE FINED

Jefferson City, Mo., March 21.—The Missouri supreme court found five large beef packing companies guilty of maintaining an unlawful combination to control prices of meat in the state of Missouri, and issued an order of ouster prohibiting them from doing business in the state and to pay a fine of $5,000 each and to bear the costs of the proceedings. The companies are given 30 days in which to pay the fine imposed, and if during that time they shall accept the judgment and pay the fine the ouster will be held in abeyance and the companies will be permitted to continue their business in Missouri.

The companies affected by the decision are the Armour, Cudahy and Hammond packing companies and Swift & Co., of Chicago, and the Schwarzschild & Sulzberger company, of New York. All of these companies maintain branch offices in different cities of the United States and in Missouri, at St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph. The evidence which incriminated the packers was obtained in these three cities.

Bad Harvest Anticipated.

Madrid, March 21.—The absence of rain for two months over the greater part of Spain has caused apprehension of a bad harvest, which will necessitate large importations of wheat.

A Word to Women.

The peculiar organism of women is such that an extraordinary demand on the supply of blood is made in order to keep healthy and vigorous the female organs. If the blood is impure or lacking in sufficient nutrition, the muscles and tisues supporting the womb, and other female organs become weak, the womb falls causing much pain and distress.

There is no way to reach the cause of female trouble but through the blood. It must be supplied with healthy nutrition which is carried to the weakened organs to build them up and make them strong. Life Plant insures perfect digestion that the blood may be supplied with healthy nutrition to build up the weakened organs and stimulate the organs of excretion that the impurities may all be thrown off. The blood then purified goes on its mission laden with life-giving properties, permeates every organ, giving to each its vital element that makes it strong and perfect. Life Plant Renews Life. It not only purifies the blood, but supplies the vital element in the blood.

Life Plant is truly a wonder in medicine. Not because it accomplishes the apparently impossible, but because of the common sense manner of making cures. Try it now.

Female Trouble.

Mrs. L. M. Knisely, New Philadelphia, Ohio, writes:

I had lost my health and many of my friends believed me to be fast running into consumption. I used various remedies with very little benefit. My family became much alarmed about my condition. My husband hearing of the wonderful curative properties of Life Plant, prevailed on me to try it. I have used it with marked beneficial results, and am only too happy to recommend it to my sister women in affliction.

Letters from Women

Cured by the use of Kodol are received daily. Their troubles nearly all begin with indigestion or other stomach disorder.

If the food you eat fails to give strength to your body, it is because the juices secreted by the stomach and digestive organs are inadequate to transform the nutrient properties of the food into blood. That is indigestion. The system is deprived of the amount of nourishment required to keep up the strength, and the result is that one or more of the delicate organs gradually grows weak, and then weaker, until finally it is diseased. Here a great mistake is made. That of treating the diseased organ. The best doctors in the land make this very mistake. Why should they? It is so easy to see that the trouble is not there.

Kodol Cures

This famous remedy puts the stomach and digestive organs in a healthy condition so that rich, red blood is sent coursing through the veins and arteries of every muscle, tissue and fiber throughout every organ of the entire body, and by Nature's law of health, full strength and vigor is soon restored to each.

I have taken Kodol for nearly two months after each meal and it is the only remedy that gave relief from the terrible pains I endured. After a time I would take it but once a day, and now, while I keep a bottle handy, I seldom need it, as it has cured me. MRS. J. W. COOLBAUGH, Milo Center, N. Y.

HOME AFFAIRS.

Brief Notes of a Personal Nature And of Matters About Town.

Chose Election Officers—The Democratic central committee met at city hall last evening and filled the list of election officers.

The Lost Found—Mrs. Seanor, the lady who last month advertised for a lost article, can find it at the News Review office, where it has awaited a claimant for some days.

Opening Delayed—The Co-operative store will not be opened today as announced on account of the room not being in readiness yet for the opening. It will be opened Tuesday and by that time it is thought that all the stock will be here and everything will be in readiness for the event.

Dr. Pratt's Lecture — Dr. M. B. Pratt will address the men's meeting at the opera house tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., on the theme "The Tenth Legion." Dr. Pratt will draw an interesting lesson from the lives and deeds of the veterans of that famous legion. A large attendance is assured.

Meeting of Teamsters' Local—Teamsters local union held an open meeting last night in Fowler hall, which was attended by quite a number of people prominent in local labor affairs. Some questions of importance were discussed and President Criss McConnell, of Trades council, delivered an address. The teamsters are gaining in strength every day and are increasing in numbers.

Windows Broken—The heavy wind storm last evening did but little damage in the city. The only place where damage resulted was at the Central school building, where a telephone pole was blown through one of the windows in the lower floor. The frame of the window and wainscoting were carried with it and it required considerable work on the part of the janitor and several members of the fire department to clear away the rubbish.

Along the River—The river is about stationary today and not much more of a decline is expected. From this time on until well in June there has been for the past six years a good stage for the packets and the same conditions are expected this year. Business has been somewhat duller than usual at the wharf, but all the packets have been doing a fair business. The Virginia and the Lorena are the down boats tonight, due at 8 o'clock. The Keystone State, Kanawha and Ben Hur will be up tomorrow afternoon.

SAVINGS FUND GROWING

Rapid Increase in Membership On the Pennsylvania Lines West.

Secretary S. B. Liggitt, of the Pennsylvania lines west, in charge of the savings fund department, reports a rapid increase in the membership of the new association. The number of employes who have up to this time joined the new department is upward of 1,000, and it is expected that within the next six months at least half of the total number of men eligible to memberships will have added their names to the list.

The fund was started on February 1, according to the action taken at the January meeting of the board of directors. It is operated under the same system as that of the Pennsylvania railroad company (lines east) which now has a total membership of nearly 85 per cent of the railroad company's employes.

If You Are a Customer of Ours

We wish to state that we are in a position to give better goods at cheaper prices for the following reasons. In the first place we have adopted the cash system which enables us to sell considerable cheaper than we could on the credit plan. We have enlarged our store over one half, enabling us to handle more trade. We are doing considerable more business at a comparatively small additional expense. Any merchant can afford to sell his goods cheaper for cash.

INGENIOUS WORK OF A LOCAL MAN

A LAWN MOWER WITH MANY NOVEL FEATURES.

The Invention of W. Harry Williams, Who Has Patented Several Devices.

Its advantages are at once apparent to one acquainted with the deficiences of the lawn mower now in use. The rotary cutting knives, which are set so far back on the frame of the old machine that it is impossible to reach the grass along a wall or other obstruction, are done away with. With the new machine there will be no more trimming the edges with the scythe, shears or sickle, for it reaches the most obstructed spots. Its cutting blades precede the frame work; they are horizontal and what is called technically "double reciprocating." The power is furnished by cams, the most positive known in mechanics.

The old machine will not cut grass above a certain height and its swath is narrower than its frame. The new machine will cut any height and its swith is wider than its frame, and wider also than that of the old machine. In construction the new machine is much simpler, requiring fewer pieces, thus making it possible to manufacture at less expense.

Mr. Williams is a former resident of the city, having lived here for a number of years before going west. At one time he was a member of the city council. The invention has been the work of several years, the greater part of it having been done near South Bend., and at Cleveland.

Mr. Williams has patented a number of devices, the control of which has passed to other hands.

THE HUMANE SOCIETY

To the Editor of the News Review:

Has East Liverpool a Humane Society? To those who have had occasion to pass up or down on the C. & P. track in the neighborhood of the East End flint mill, during the last week, it would seem that the above question could be answered most truthfully in the negative. Or if such a society existed it surely could not be aware of the cruelty and criminal carelessness exhibited by the workmen engaged in making the fill directly east of the flint mill.

We do not know whether the society representative down town has been an eye witness to the treatment these poor horses are daily and hourly subjected, but we sincerely hope not. But on one point we are positive, that he has been notified by 'phone at least three times and it is to put the residents of this neighborhood and the employes of the flint mill in the proper light before the people that attention is called to the subject. We have protested against this inhuman business, feeling sure there was more than substantial grounds for action. The society it appears will not act. What is a Humane Society for? If it is only for a name, then no doubt these gentlemen are fulfilling their mission. But if, as the public believe, it is to protect the weak and helpless, the East Liverpool Humane Society is a total failure, and the sooner it is reconstructed by putting men in who are not afraid to do their duty, the better for all concerned.

Merger Case Goes to Judges.

St. Louis, March 21.—Arguments in defense of the Northern Securities company on trial here before the United States circuit court for the district of Minnesota have closed and the case will be placed finally in the hands of the four judges. During the three days of argument the attorneys for the defendants have occupied nine hours, and up to adjournment the government has taken five hours for presentation of arguments. C. W. Bunn, of St. Paul, counsel for the Northern Pacific Railroad company, opened the session and former Attorney General Griggs closed the case for the Northern Securities company. The last hour of the session was occupied by Special Counsel T. D. Watson, of Pittsburg, who closed the case for the government.

NATIONAL CAPITAL NOTES.

President Roosevelt said that he had no intention of changing the itinerary of his western trip by not visiting Chicago. It is his purpose to spend April 2 there.

The navy department has been advised that American interests in the Dominican republic and Haiti may be in need of protection and the cruiser Atlanta was ordered to proceed thence from Pensacola.

Former Governor Atkinson, of West Virginia, now United States attorney for the southern district of that state laid before the president the findings of the grand jury in the case of the recent conflict between the miners and deputy marshals at Staniford, Raleigh county, W. Va.

LEVEE BREAKS IN TWO PLACES.

Situation More Grave Than Any Time During Flood—Both Crevasses Serious.

Memphis, Tenn., March 21.—The feeling of hope produced by the Mississippi river coming to a stand at this point, with 40.1 feet on the gauge was dispelled by two new breaks in the St. Francis levees, north of the first crevasse at Trice's landing, Ark., by grave reports from Mississippi points, as well as by a rise of .1 here.

The St. Frances levee gave way at Random Shot and Shawnee village, Ark., the first about 42 miles from Memphis and the second about 35 miles away. Both crevasses are reported to be serious. The situation in Arkansas is more grave than at any time during the flood. Relief measures have been and must be for several days entirely inadequate.

The most encouraging feature is the fact that the river has remained stationary all day and that a falling state is reported from St. Louis, Cairo and other points on the Mississippi and its tributaries. The stage is 40.1 feet, a rise of .1 in 12 hours.

Refugees continue to arrive in large numbers and the facilities for relief are too limited.

Railroaders Get Increase.

San Francisco, March 21.—After a long conference between the trainmen of the western division of the Southern Pacific and the officials of the company a settlement was reached on a basis of 15 per cent increase in the wages of the freight trainmen and 12 per cent in the pay of the passenger trainmen. These increases will affect between 3,500 and 4,000 employes of the division. Some minor details remain to be adjusted, including the questions of abolishing "double-header" trains and of the hours of labor. Another point settled is that of the wages of the yardmen. Some time ago the company advanced the wages of operators in the larger yards from 5 to 17 per cent and in the smaller yards an increase of 10 per cent was made. Later it was realized that the apportionments were not equitably made and arrangements were made whereby the smaller yards will get a 4 per cent increase.

Large Mine on Fire.

Huntington, W. Va., March 21.—The Nova Scotia, one of the largest mines owned by the Gauley Mountain Coal company, is on fire and its destruction is threatened. The entire mountain is smoking.

HOME AFFAIRS.

Brief Notes of a Personal Nature And of Matters About Town.

Chose Election Officers—The Democratic central committee met at city hall last evening and filled the list of election officers.

The Lost Found—Mrs. Seanor, the lady who last month advertised for a lost article, can find it at the News Review office, where it has awaited a claimant for some days.

Opening Delayed—The Co-operative store will not be opened today as announced on account of the room not being in readiness yet for the opening. It will be opened Tuesday and by that time it is thought that all the stock will be here and everything will be in readiness for the event.

Dr. Pratt's Lecture — Dr. M. B. Pratt will address the men's meeting at the opera house tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., on the theme "The Tenth Legion." Dr. Pratt will draw an interesting lesson from the lives and deeds of the veterans of that famous legion. A large attendance is assured.

Meeting of Teamsters' Local—Teamsters local union held an open meeting last night in Fowler hall, which was attended by quite a number of people prominent in local labor affairs. Some questions of importance were discussed and President Criss McConnell, of Trades council, delivered an address. The teamsters are gaining in strength every day and are increasing in numbers.

Windows Broken—The heavy wind storm last evening did but little damage in the city. The only place where damage resulted was at the Central school building, where a telephone pole was blown through one of the windows in the lower floor. The frame of the window and wainscoting were carried with it and it required considerable work on the part of the janitor and several members of the fire department to clear away the rubbish.

Along the River—The river is about stationary today and not much more of a decline is expected. From this time on until well in June there has been for the past six years a good stage for the packets and the same conditions are expected this year. Business has been somewhat duller than usual at the wharf, but all the packets have been doing a fair business. The Virginia and the Lorena are the down boats tonight, due at 8 o'clock. The Keystone State, Kanawha and Ben Hur will be up tomorrow afternoon.

SAVINGS FUND GROWING

Secretary S. B. Liggitt, of the Pennsylvania lines west, in charge of the savings fund department, reports a rapid increase in the membership of the new association. The number of employes who have up to this time joined the new department is upward of 1,000, and it is expected that within the next six months at least half of the total number of men eligible to memberships will have added their names to the list.

The fund was started on February 1, according to the action taken at the January meeting of the board of directors. It is operated under the same system as that of the Pennsylvania railroad company (lines east) which now has a total membership of nearly 85 per cent of the railroad company's employes.

If You Are a Customer of Ours

Don't read this adv.

We wish to state that we are in a position to give better goods at cheaper prices for the following reasons. In the first place we have adopted the cash system which enables us to sell considerable cheaper than we could on the credit plan. We have enlarged our store over one half, enabling us to handle more trade. We are doing considerable more business at a comparatively small additional expense. Any merchant can afford to sell his goods cheaper for cash.

Try the cash shoe store and be convinced of the above facts. Our long list of customers are acquainted with them.

A LAWN MOWER WITH MANY NOVEL FEATURES.

The Invention of W. Harry Williams, Who Has Patented Several Devices.

Its advantages are at once apparent to one acquainted with the deficiences of the lawn mower now in use. The rotary cutting knives, which are set so far back on the frame of the old machine that it is impossible to reach the grass along a wall or other obstruction, are done away with. With the new machine there will be no more trimming the edges with the scythe, shears or sickle, for it reaches the most obstructed spots. Its cutting blades precede the frame work; they are horizontal and what is called technically "double reciprocating." The power is furnished by cams, the most positive known in mechanics.

The old machine will not cut grass above a certain height and its swath is narrower than its frame. The new machine will cut any height and its swith is wider than its frame, and wider also than that of the old machine. In construction the new machine is much simpler, requiring fewer pieces, thus making it possible to manufacture at less expense.

Mr. Williams is a former resident of the city, having lived here for a number of years before going west. At one time he was a member of the city council. The invention has been the work of several years, the greater part of it having been done near South Bend., and at Cleveland.

Mr. Williams has patented a number of devices, the control of which has passed to other hands.

THE HUMANE SOCIETY

To the Editor of the News Review:

Has East Liverpool a Humane Society? To those who have had occasion to pass up or down on the C. & P. track in the neighborhood of the East End flint mill, during the last week, it would seem that the above question could be answered most truthfully in the negative. Or if such a society existed it surely could not be aware of the cruelty and criminal carelessness exhibited by the workmen engaged in making the fill directly east of the flint mill.

We do not know whether the society representative down town has been an eye witness to the treatment these poor horses are daily and hourly subjected, but we sincerely hope not. But on one point we are positive, that he has been notified by 'phone at least three times and it is to put the residents of this neighborhood and the employes of the flint mill in the proper light before the people that attention is called to the subject. We have protested against this inhuman business, feeling sure there was more than substantial grounds for action. The society it appears will not act. What is a Humane Society for? If it is only for a name, then no doubt these gentlemen are fulfilling their mission. But if, as the public believe, it is to protect the weak and helpless, the East Liverpool Humane Society is a total failure, and the sooner it is reconstructed by putting men in who are not afraid to do their duty, the better for all concerned.

SOCIAL EVENTS

Entertained Their Friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Heber H. Blythe last evening delightfully entertained a number of their friends at progressive peanuts. The event was one of the most enjoyable social functions for some time. Covers were laid for nine table and prizes were won by Mrs. Dr. Toot and Mrs. Fred Cartwright. Among the guests of which Mr. and Mrs. Blythe had the honor of being host and hostess, were Mr. and Mrs. John I. Hodson, who have recently returned from their wedding trip.

Salmagundi Party.

Miss Marie Boyce will entertain a large number of her friends next Friday evening at 8 o'clock. This entertainment will be a Salmagundi party and will be greatly enjoyed by the guests. On Thursday afternoon Miss Boyce will receive a large number of her friends and will entertain at progressive peanuts.

Married in Indiana.

Word was received here last night that J. O. B. Beatty, formerly of this city, but now a traveling salesman for the Ohio China company, of East Palestine, and Miss Gertrude Barnes, of Frankford, Ind., were married at Frankford on Thursday.

Entertained Her Class.

Mrs. E. L. Henderson, McKinnon avenue, agreeably entertained her First M. E. Sunday school class last evening. Nineteen young men were present and the evening was one of enjoyment.

HOME AFFAIRS.

Brief Notes of a Personal Nature And of Matters About Town.

Chose Election Officers—The Democratic central committee met at city hall last evening and filled the list of election officers.

The Lost Found—Mrs. Seanor, the lady who last month advertised for a lost article, can find it at the News Review office, where it has awaited a claimant for some days.

Opening Delayed—The Co-operative store will not be opened today as announced on account of the room not being in readiness yet for the opening. It will be opened Tuesday and by that time it is thought that all the stock will be here and everything will be in readiness for the event.

Dr. Pratt's Lecture — Dr. M. B. Pratt will address the men's meeting at the opera house tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., on the theme "The Tenth Legion." Dr. Pratt will draw an interesting lesson from the lives and deeds of the veterans of that famous legion. A large attendance is assured.

Meeting of Teamsters' Local—Teamsters local union held an open meeting last night in Fowler hall, which was attended by quite a number of people prominent in local labor affairs. Some questions of importance were discussed and President Criss McConnell, of Trades council, delivered an address. The teamsters are gaining in strength every day and are increasing in numbers.

Windows Broken—The heavy wind storm last evening did but little damage in the city. The only place where damage resulted was at the Central school building, where a telephone pole was blown through one of the windows in the lower floor. The frame of the window and wainscoting were carried with it and it required considerable work on the part of the janitor and several members of the fire department to clear away the rubbish.

Along the River—The river is about stationary today and not much more of a decline is expected. From this time on until well in June there has been for the past six years a good stage for the packets and the same conditions are expected this year. Business has been somewhat duller than usual at the wharf, but all the packets have been doing a fair business. The Virginia and the Lorena are the down boats tonight, due at 8 o'clock. The Keystone State, Kanawha and Ben Hur will be up tomorrow afternoon.

SAVINGS FUND GROWING

Secretary S. B. Liggitt, of the Pennsylvania lines west, in charge of the savings fund department, reports a rapid increase in the membership of the new association. The number of employes who have up to this time joined the new department is upward of 1,000, and it is expected that within the next six months at least half of the total number of men eligible to memberships will have added their names to the list.

The fund was started on February 1, according to the action taken at the January meeting of the board of directors. It is operated under the same system as that of the Pennsylvania railroad company (lines east) which now has a total membership of nearly 85 per cent of the railroad company's employes.

If You Are a Customer of Ours

Don't read this adv.

We wish to state that we are in a position to give better goods at cheaper prices for the following reasons. In the first place we have adopted the cash system which enables us to sell considerable cheaper than we could on the credit plan. We have enlarged our store over one half, enabling us to handle more trade. We are doing considerable more business at a comparatively small additional expense. Any merchant can afford to sell his goods cheaper for cash.

Try the cash shoe store and be convinced of the above facts. Our long list of customers are acquainted with them.

A LAWN MOWER WITH MANY NOVEL FEATURES.

The Invention of W. Harry Williams, Who Has Patented Several Devices.

Its advantages are at once apparent to one acquainted with the deficiences of the lawn mower now in use. The rotary cutting knives, which are set so far back on the frame of the old machine that it is impossible to reach the grass along a wall or other obstruction, are done away with. With the new machine there will be no more trimming the edges with the scythe, shears or sickle, for it reaches the most obstructed spots. Its cutting blades precede the frame work; they are horizontal and what is called technically "double reciprocating." The power is furnished by cams, the most positive known in mechanics.

The old machine will not cut grass above a certain height and its swath is narrower than its frame. The new machine will cut any height and its swith is wider than its frame, and wider also than that of the old machine. In construction the new machine is much simpler, requiring fewer pieces, thus making it possible to manufacture at less expense.

Mr. Williams is a former resident of the city, having lived here for a number of years before going west. At one time he was a member of the city council. The invention has been the work of several years, the greater part of it having been done near South Bend., and at Cleveland.

Mr. Williams has patented a number of devices, the control of which has passed to other hands.

THE HUMANE SOCIETY

To the Editor of the News Review:

Has East Liverpool a Humane Society? To those who have had occasion to pass up or down on the C. & P. track in the neighborhood of the East End flint mill, during the last week, it would seem that the above question could be answered most truthfully in the negative. Or if such a society existed it surely could not be aware of the cruelty and criminal carelessness exhibited by the workmen engaged in making the fill directly east of the flint mill.

We do not know whether the society representative down town has been an eye witness to the treatment these poor horses are daily and hourly subjected, but we sincerely hope not. But on one point we are positive, that he has been notified by 'phone at least three times and it is to put the residents of this neighborhood and the employes of the flint mill in the proper light before the people that attention is called to the subject. We have protested against this inhuman business, feeling sure there was more than substantial grounds for action. The society it appears will not act. What is a Humane Society for? If it is only for a name, then no doubt these gentlemen are fulfilling their mission. But if, as the public believe, it is to protect the weak and helpless, the East Liverpool Humane Society is a total failure, and the sooner it is reconstructed by putting men in who are not afraid to do their duty, the better for all concerned.

SOCIAL EVENTS

Entertained Their Friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Heber H. Blythe last evening delightfully entertained a number of their friends at progressive peanuts. The event was one of the most enjoyable social functions for some time. Covers were laid for nine table and prizes were won by Mrs. Dr. Toot and Mrs. Fred Cartwright. Among the guests of which Mr. and Mrs. Blythe had the honor of being host and hostess, were Mr. and Mrs. John I. Hodson, who have recently returned from their wedding trip.

Salmagundi Party.

Miss Marie Boyce will entertain a large number of her friends next Friday evening at 8 o'clock. This entertainment will be a Salmagundi party and will be greatly enjoyed by the guests. On Thursday afternoon Miss Boyce will receive a large number of her friends and will entertain at progressive peanuts.

Married in Indiana.

Word was received here last night that J. O. B. Beatty, formerly of this city, but now a traveling salesman for the Ohio China company, of East Palestine, and Miss Gertrude Barnes, of Frankford, Ind., were married at Frankford on Thursday.

Merger Case Goes to Judges.

St. Louis, March 21.—Arguments in defense of the Northern Securities company on trial here before the United States circuit court for the district of Minnesota have closed and the case will be placed finally in the hands of the four judges. During the three days of argument the attorneys for the defendants have occupied nine hours, and up to adjournment the government has taken five hours for presentation of arguments. C. W. Bunn, of St. Paul, counsel for the Northern Pacific Railroad company, opened the session and former Attorney General Griggs closed the case for the Northern Securities company. The last hour of the session was occupied by Special Counsel T. D. Watson, of Pittsburg, who closed the case for the government.

LEVEE BREAKS IN TWO PLACES.

Situation More Grave Than Any Time During Flood—Both Crevasses Serious.

Memphis, Tenn., March 21.—The feeling of hope produced by the Mississippi river coming to a stand at this point, with 40.1 feet on the gauge, was dispelled by two new breaks in the St. Francis levees, north of the first crevasse at Trice's landing, Ark., by grave reports from Mississippi points, as well as by a rise of .1 here.

The St. Frances levee gave way at Random Shot and Shawnee village, Ark., the first about 42 miles from Memphis and the second about 35 miles away. Both crevasses are reported to be serious. The situation in Arkansas is more grave than at any time during the flood. Relief measures have been and must be for several days entirely inadequate.

The most encouraging feature is the fact that the river has remained stationary all day and that a falling state is reported from St. Louis, Cairo and other points on the Mississippi and its tributaries. The stage is 40.1 feet, a rise of .1 in 12 hours.

Refugees continue to arrive in large numbers and the facilities for relief are too limited.

Railroaders Get Increase.

San Francisco, March 21.—After a long conference between the trainmen of the western division of the Southern Pacific and the officials of the company a settlement was reached on a basis of 15 per cent increase in the wages of the freight trainmen and 12 per cent in the pay of the passenger trainmen. These increases will affect between 3,500 and 4,000 employes of the division. Some minor details remain to be adjusted, including the questions of abolishing "double-header" trains and of the hours of labor. Another point settled is that of the wages of the yardmen. Some time ago the company advanced the wages of operators in the larger yards from 5 to 17 per cent and in the smaller yards an increase of 10 per cent was made. Later it was realized that the apportionments were not equitably made and arrangements were made whereby the smaller yards will get a 4 per cent increase.

SENTIMENT AT TRENTON

Seems to Be in Favor of Standing By the Pressers—A Proposition to Change Percentage of Votes Necessary to Declare a Strike.

Trenton, N. J., March 21.—The sanitary manufacturers have recovered for the present at least from the scare accorded them a few days ago when 530 sanitary pressers wrestled with the question of whether they would declare a strike in support of their demands to be relieved of the responsibility of "dunted" ware.

All of the potteries have resumed work and the men are anxiously awaiting the result of the referendum vote of the entire trade as to whether their demands will be supported.

In view of the overwhelming vote in favor of a strike, the members of Sanitary Pressers' local No. 45 feel that the other branches of the trade will not be respecting their interests if they abide by the policy of the 63 members who voted against the strike, thus preventing them from obtaining the necessary nine-tenths vote which is required by the constitution. The men who held out are largely those who are employed in shops where "dunts" in ware have not been experienced to any great degree or those who voted according to the promptings of their own personal interests and not from principle.

Each man who voted against the strike is known to the entire trade and is not being treated, as the result of his action, in the same friendly manner as before last Wednesday's meeting. Thursday morning on the benches of each of the opponents of the strike was found advertisements of a correspondence school, bearing the inscription "Education needed." There is considerable feeling as a result of the meeting and the members who comprise the majority boast that it will not be long before they will get even with the others for their failure to support them in their efforts to strike.

It is more than likely as the result of Wednesday's meeting that the delegates to the national convention of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters, which will be held in Wheeling in May, will receive instructions from the sanitary pressers' local to introduce a resolution changing the percentage of votes necessary to declare a strike.

According to some opinion, the vote necessary to call a strike should only be three-fourths of the entire membership of the local, as such a percentage would be sufficient to warrant the belief that such action was warranted.

Notices asking that a vote be taken among the different locals of the Brotherhood will be sent out from the national headquarters within a few days, but it is likely that it will be all of three weeks before the result is announced.

SERVICE PENSION BILL

What Is Proposed for Civil War Veterans And Their Widows.

The National Tribune, the organ of the civil war veterans, has the following to say about the proposed service pension:

There is plenty of work to be done by all veterans and friends of veterans between now and the next meeting of congress in the way of pushing the $12 a month service pension. We must make sure of its passage by that congress, for time is now infinitely precious to the veterans and their widows, and every week of delay sees a full thousand of them mustered out of life's army and beyond the reach of the nation's gratitude and the nation's sense of justice.

It is all-important that every means be employed to arouse public sentiment in favor of the speedy passage of the measure, and to convince members of congress of the desire of their constituents for this. Every veteran should enlist in this work, and do his utmost. The newspapers in every community should be supplied with abundant reasons drawn from examples in the neighborhood, why the circumlocution in the pension bureau should be abolished, the expensive and aggravating boards of examining surgeons be discontinued, and the corps of special examiners set at some other work, by the simple plan of giving every veteran and every veteran's widow a modest allowance as a matter of justice and right.

A straight pension of $12 a month, or $3 a week, will strike every one as fair and reasonable, and require no argument to induce him to favor it. Every paper in the north, east and west ought to actively favor the measure, and doubtless can be brought to do so by a little effort properly directed. All the editors require is to be properly approached by veterans in whom they have confidence, and be assured that the service pension is earnestly desired by the veterans as a body. Let every group of veterans see that this is done by the right kind of comrades. They need not go abroad for arguments to present to their editors. Their own neighborhoods will furnish plenty of instances of the most convincing kind.

CAPT. GORDON GREEN'S BIG NEW PACKET

The Boat Will Be a Sidewheeler and Will Enter the Kanawha River Trade.

Captain Gordon Green, the owner of the Green line of steamboats and one of the best known rivermen on the upper waters, has let the contract for the construction of a new packet, the successful bidders being the M. G. Knox company, of Marietta. Captain Green reached the city by rail Thursday, having left the steamer Greenwood at Marietta for the purpose of consulting with the Knox company.

The new craft is to be a sidewheeler, 205 feet long and 31½ feet beam. There will be 52 cabin staterooms, the appointments and furnishings throughout to be of the best. With the exception of the steamer City of Pittsburg, Captain Green's boat will be the first sidewheeler built in years for the upper trade. She will be the only one in the trade above Pomeroy. Rivermen in the past few years conceded the superiority of single wheel boats, but now, when greater speed is necessary, they are turning to the sidewheeler again.

The new boat is to be completed by the 4th of July and will be entered in the trade between Charleston, on the Kanawha river, and Pittsburg, taking the place of the Greenwood. Captain Green has made the Greenwood a success as an independent packet and has built up a trade until it has reached such proportions that the present steamer is not large enough to handle.

NO PLACE TO BUY STEEL BILLETS

The United States Steel Corporation Seems to Have Independent Tin Plants at Its Mercy.

The purchase of the Clairton plant of the Crucible Steel company of America by the United States Steel corporation, announced yesterday, sounded the death knell of the independent tin plate manufacturers of the country, says the Pittsburg Gazette. Where they will buy billets to make black plates from is the question that now confronts them. The Crucible Steel company was their only hope and now that that is gone over to the steel corporation the independent people feel that they might as well close up shop and seek other means of making a livelihood.

For some time past the independent tin plate manufacturers have been buying the surplus billet product of the Crucible company, amounting to about 1,200 tons per day. This went a long way toward making hot competition for the American Tin Plate company. To the steel corporation there seemed but one way to shut out the independents and that was to stop the source of the billet supply, which has been accomplished by the purchase of the Clairtown plant.

The Jones & Laughlins Steel company is still outside the fold of the steel corporation. It is known to inner circles that the Jones & Laughlin people have been offered $80,000,000 in 5 per cent gold bonds for their plant, but they feel that it is worth more, and until the price is raised by the steel corporation there will be no further negotiations.

GRADERS AT WORK

On Pennsylvania Company's Proposed Low Grade Rochester-Kenwood Extension.

Rochester, Pa., March 21.—The rumor that the Pennsylvania company will run two additional tracks from Conway yards to Rochester, and thence by the low grade up the Beaver to Kenwood, was given strong coloring yesterday when a large force of men with carts and wheelbarrows began grading the hillside above the Ft. Wayne tracks at McKinley's run undergrade crossing for dirt for a fill on the low grade.

Another force is also engaged at grading on the low grade just above the point where Whistler's run empties into the Big Beaver. This is the same grading outfit which earlier in the week began grading in the cut at the overhead bridge in Maine avenue, Rochester.

PLANNING FOR A LONG STRIKE

Massillon Miners Preparing to Stop Work—Blow for Merchants.

Massillon, March 21.—At the meetings of the local unions of the Mine Workers of the Massillon district, since the adjournment of the joint conference, the action of the delegates in holding out for the four-foot low coal standard has been unanimously indorsed.

Both sides are making every preparation for a long fight. Mines are being put in the best possible condition for a suspension and hundreds of miners will depart for other fields, where they will remain until work here is resumed.

Massillon merchants will be seriously affected by the strike, as this is the general trading place for the mines within a radius of 10 miles. The miners, however, say they were never in a better condition for a long strike.

NEW PRESIDENT OF CHAUTAUQUA

Dr. W. H. Hickman Will Succeed to the Place Made Vacant By Death.

Jamestown, N. Y., March 21.—Dr. W. H. Hickman, chancellor of De Pauw University, will sever his connection with that institution in June, to assume the presidency of the board of truetees of Chautauqua institution. The formal election will take place in August, confirming an arrangement ratified by letters from all trustees.

Dr. Hickman brings to Chautauqua a high type of administrative ability and a successful experience in connection with the building of the De Pauw. He fills a position which has been vacant since the death of Hon. Clem Studebaker in November, 1901. There will be no change in the educational policy of Chautauqua, George E. Vincent, while Mr. Scott Brown, as general director, will continue to be responsible for the business administration.

PAUPERS TO BREAK STONE

Columbus Infirmary Directors Hit Upon Plan to Keep Them Busy in Winter.

Columbus, March 21.—If the present plans are carried out the paupers at the infirmary will break stone for their board next winter. The infirmary directors are bothered a great deal in the winter months by bums, who go into the institution till spring opens again and then depart. They work till fall, blow in all their money for drink and then come onto the county to be kept till nice weather reappears.

"We are losing about six a day now," said Director Johnson Thursday. "I think we ought to have a stone yard and make these fellows who are able-bodied earn their board during the winter. The stone could be used to make good roads and they could do lots of work. Of course, the sick and infirm men would not be asked to break stone, but we always have a lot of bums who are strong and could do it. Now we have nothing for them to do. I am in favor of getting the stone yard in shape to start next winter."

Director McKinley is also in favor of the plan and it will probably be taken up this summer.

DROWNING CHARGED

By Guernsey County's Coroner to the Temperance Element of a "Dry" Town.

Zanesville, March 21.—The coroner of Guernsey county, Cambridge, a "dry" town, has just rendered a remarkable verdict based on the finding of the body of Daniel Shultyce, who died of drowning. The verdict of Coroner E. E. Voorhees in part is as follows:

"After having heard the evidence and examined the body I find that the said deceased came to his death by accidental drowning while in the state of intoxication, and that the liquor that intoxicated the said Daniel Schultyce was purchased at the so-called 'substitute saloons' located in Cambridge, Ohio.

"Furthermore, I find that the 'substitute saloons' are responsible for the said accidental drowning, but I more especially hold the leaders of the temperance cause responsible for not enforcing the law, and for permitting said saloons to run openly and to sell intoxicants in violation of the laws of the state of Ohio governing such local option municipalities as Cambridge, Ohio."

No trouble to prepare quick breakfasts if you have Mrs. Austin's famous Pancake flour. Ready in a moment.

A nervous, irritable mother, often on the verge of hysterics, is unfit to care for children; it ruins a child's disposition and reacts upon herself. The trouble between children and their mothers too often is due to the fact that the mother has some female weakness, and she is entirely unfit to bear the strain upon her nerves that governing a child involves; it is impossible for her to do anything calmly. She cannot help it, as her condition is due to suffering and shattered nerves caused by some derangement of the uterine system with backache, headache, and all kinds of pain, and she is on the verge of nervous prostration.

When a mother finds that she cannot be calm and quiet with her children, she may be sure that her condition needs attention, and she cannot do better than to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. This medicine will build up her system, strengthen her nerves, and enable her to calmly handle a disobedient child without a scene. The children will soon realize the difference, and seeing their mother quiet, will themselves become quiet.

Mrs. May Brown, of Chicago, Ill., says:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—'Honor to whom honor is due,' and you deserve both the thanks and honor of the mothers of America whom you have so blessedly helped and benefited. I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when I would feel run-down, nervous and irritable, or have any of the aches and pains which but few women escape, and I have found that it relieved me at once and gave me new strength. Several ladies, members of our Literary Union, speak in the highest praise of your Vegetable Compound, as they have been cured from serious female troubles. One lady, who thought she must submit to an operation, was cured without using anything in the world but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash. You have hosts of friends in Chicago, and if you came to visit our city we would delight to do you honor. Gratefully yours,—MRS. MAY BROWN, 57 Grant Place, Chicago, Ill.

How Mrs. Pinkham Helped Mrs. McKinny.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I feel it my duty to write and let you know the good you and your Vegetable Compound are doing. I had been sick ever since my first baby was born, and at the birth of my second, my doctor, as well as myself thought I should never live through it. After that menstruation never came regular, and when it came I suffered terribly. I also had womb and ovarian trouble. A friend of my husband's advised him to get Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me. At first I had no faith in it, but now nothing could induce me to be without it. Menstruation has become regular, and I feel like a new woman. Your medicine is a God-send to suffering women. I hope this letter will lead others to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Yours truly, MRS. MILDRED MCKINNY, 28 Pearl St., San Francisco, Cal." (March 16, 1901).

Mormon Church Will Not Intercede.

Salt Lake, Utah, March 21.—"If any movement is being made toward securing the release of Hooper Young from Sing Sing," said Secretary Gibbs, of the first presidency of the Mormon church, "it is from outside the church. No such move has been taken or is even contemplated by the first presidency. Even if he were a member of the church this action would not be taken, but Hooper Young was severed from the church years ago for immorality."

American Explorers Heard From.

Marseilles, France, March 21.—A mail steamer from African ports brings word of the arrival at Jibutil Abyssinia, of a party of American explorers, Messrs. McMillan, Brown and Marlow, accompanied by a number of Englishmen. Emperor Menelik accorded the party a hearty welcome and placed an escort of 50 soldiers at their disposal and gave authority to the expedition to proceed to Lake Tsana. Later the party expects to descend the Blue Nile.

Baby

Restless, Cried Day and Night.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Did Wonders, Cured Her.

A little over two years ago I had a little, nervous baby who weighed only five pounds at birth. At first she was restless and cross and after she was four weeks old she cried day and night, and would not sleep without narcotics. She was so nervous that we did not dare to move when she did sleep a short time, as she would wake screaming as though she was going to have a fit. We called a doctor; he called it infantile colic; said he could relieve her, could not cure her. After a short time the effect of his medicine wore off and I was in despair. I tried all known home remedies and innumerable patent medicines. At last I gave her Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and she was easy and slept without narcotics. Since that time I have used a dozen bottles and would not be without it. I am now giving it to another baby and it has the same effect, immediate relief always."—Mrs. Vincent Zidek, Verona, N. D.

"Three years ago I was taken with nervous prostration, which brought on heart trouble, and my heart would palpitate at every little noise. I had smothering spells so that at times I would nearly sink away. I got one bottle each of Dr. Miles' Nervine and Heart Cure and I could feel good results from the first few doses. They have since effected a permanent cure. I recommend Dr. Miles' Remedies to all who suffer as I did."—Mrs. G. C. James, Fairmont, Nebraska.

SENTIMENT AT TRENTON

Seems to Be in Favor of Standing By the Pressers—A Proposition to Change Percentage of Votes Necessary to Declare a Strike.

Trenton, N. J., March 21.—The sanitary manufacturers have recovered for the present at least from the scare accorded them a few days ago when 530 sanitary pressers wrestled with the question of whether they would declare a strike in support of their demands to be relieved of the responsibility of "dunted" ware.

All of the potteries have resumed work and the men are anxiously awaiting the result of the referendum vote of the entire trade as to whether their demands will be supported.

In view of the overwhelming vote in favor of a strike, the members of Sanitary Pressers' local No. 45 feel that the other branches of the trade will not be respecting their interests if they abide by the policy of the 63 members who voted against the strike, thus preventing them from obtaining the necessary nine-tenths vote which is required by the constitution. The men who held out are largely those who are employed in shops where "dunts" in ware have not been experienced to any great degree or those who voted according to the promptings of their own personal interests and not from principle.

Each man who voted against the strike is known to the entire trade and is not being treated, as the result of his action, in the same friendly manner as before last Wednesday's meeting. Thursday morning on the benches of each of the opponents of the strike was found advertisements of a correspondence school, bearing the inscription "Education needed." There is considerable feeling as a result of the meeting and the members who comprise the majority boast that it will not be long before they will get even with the others for their failure to support them in their efforts to strike.

It is more than likely as the result of Wednesday's meeting that the delegates to the national convention of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters, which will be held in Wheeling in May, will receive instructions from the sanitary pressers' local to introduce a resolution changing the percentage of votes necessary to declare a strike.

According to some opinion, the vote necessary to call a strike should only be three-fourths of the entire membership of the local, as such a percentage would be sufficient to warrant the belief that such action was warranted.

Notices asking that a vote be taken among the different locals of the Brotherhood will be sent out from the national headquarters within a few days, but it is likely that it will be all of three weeks before the result is announced.

SERVICE PENSION BILL

What Is Proposed for Civil War Veterans And Their Widows.

The National Tribune, the organ of the civil war veterans, has the following to say about the proposed service pension:

There is plenty of work to be done by all veterans and friends of veterans between now and the next meeting of congress in the way of pushing the $12 a month service pension. We must make sure of its passage by that congress, for time is now infinitely precious to the veterans and their widows, and every week of delay sees a full thousand of them mustered out of life's army and beyond the reach of the nation's gratitude and the nation's sense of justice.

It is all-important that every means be employed to arouse public sentiment in favor of the speedy passage of the measure, and to convince members of congress of the desire of their constituents for this. Every veteran should enlist in this work, and do his utmost. The newspapers in every community should be supplied with abundant reasons drawn from examples in the neighborhood, why the circumlocution in the pension bureau should be abolished, the expensive and aggravating boards of examining surgeons be discontinued, and the corps of special examiners set at some other work, by the simple plan of giving every veteran and every veteran's widow a modest allowance as a matter of justice and right.

A straight pension of $12 a month, or $3 a week, will strike every one as fair and reasonable, and require no argument to induce him to favor it. Every paper in the north, east and west ought to actively favor the measure, and doubtless can be brought to do so by a little effort properly directed. All the editors require is to be properly approached by veterans in whom they have confidence, and be assured that the service pension is earnestly desired by the veterans as a body. Let every group of veterans see that this is done by the right kind of comrades. They need not go abroad for arguments to present to their editors. Their own neighborhoods will furnish plenty of instances of the most convincing kind.

CAPT. GORDON GREEN'S BIG NEW PACKET

The Boat Will Be a Sidewheeler and Will Enter the Kanawha River Trade.

Captain Gordon Green, the owner of the Green line of steamboats and one of the best known rivermen on the upper waters, has let the contract for the construction of a new packet, the successful bidders being the M. G. Knox company, of Marietta. Captain Green reached the city by rail Thursday, having left the steamer Greenwood at Marietta for the purpose of consulting with the Knox company.

The new craft is to be a sidewheeler, 205 feet long and 31½ feet beam. There will be 52 cabin staterooms, the appointments and furnishings throughout to be of the best. With the exception of the steamer City of Pittsburg, Captain Green's boat will be the first sidewheeler built in years for the upper trade. She will be the only one in the trade above Pomeroy. Rivermen in the past few years conceded the superiority of single wheel boats, but now, when greater speed is necessary, they are turning to the sidewheeler again.

The new boat is to be completed by the 4th of July and will be entered in the trade between Charleston, on the Kanawha river, and Pittsburg, taking the place of the Greenwood. Captain Green has made the Greenwood a success as an independent packet and has built up a trade until it has reached such proportions that the present steamer is not large enough to handle.

NO PLACE TO BUY STEEL BILLETS

The United States Steel Corporation Seems to Have Independent Tin Plants at Its Mercy.

The purchase of the Clairton plant of the Crucible Steel company of America by the United States Steel corporation, announced yesterday, sounded the death knell of the independent tin plate manufacturers of the country, says the Pittsburg Gazette. Where they will buy billets to make black plates from is the question that now confronts them. The Crucible Steel company was their only hope and now that that is gone over to the steel corporation the independent people feel that they might as well close up shop and seek other means of making a livelihood.

For some time past the independent tin plate manufacturers have been buying the surplus billet product of the Crucible company, amounting to about 1,200 tons per day. This went a long way toward making hot competition for the American Tin Plate company. To the steel corporation there seemed but one way to shut out the independents and that was to stop the source of the billet supply, which has been accomplished by the purchase of the Clairtown plant.

The Jones & Laughlins Steel company is still outside the fold of the steel corporation. It is known to inner circles that the Jones & Laughlin people have been offered $80,000,000 in 5 per cent gold bonds for their plant, but they feel that it is worth more, and until the price is raised by the steel corporation there will be no further negotiations.

GRADERS AT WORK

On Pennsylvania Company's Proposed Low Grade Rochester-Kenwood Extension.

Rochester, Pa., March 21.—The rumor that the Pennsylvania company will run two additional tracks from Conway yards to Rochester, and thence by the low grade up the Beaver to Kenwood, was given strong coloring yesterday when a large force of men with carts and wheelbarrows began grading the hillside above the Ft. Wayne tracks at McKinley's run undergrade crossing for dirt for a fill on the low grade.

Another force is also engaged at grading on the low grade just above the point where Whistler's run empties into the Big Beaver. This is the same grading outfit which earlier in the week began grading in the cut at the overhead bridge in Maine avenue, Rochester.

PLANNING FOR A LONG STRIKE

Massillon Miners Preparing to Stop Work—Blow for Merchants.

Massillon, March 21.—At the meetings of the local unions of the Mine Workers of the Massillon district, since the adjournment of the joint conference, the action of the delegates in holding out for the four-foot low coal standard has been unanimously indorsed.

Both sides are making every preparation for a long fight. Mines are being put in the best possible condition for a suspension and hundreds of miners will depart for other fields, where they will remain until work here is resumed.

Massillon merchants will be seriously affected by the strike, as this is the general trading place for the mines within a radius of 10 miles. The miners, however, say they were never in a better condition for a long strike.

NEW PRESIDENT OF CHAUTAUQUA

Dr. W. H. Hickman Will Succeed to the Place Made Vacant By Death.

Jamestown, N. Y., March 21.—Dr. W. H. Hickman, chancellor of De Pauw University, will sever his connection with that institution in June, to assume the presidency of the board of trustees of Chautauqua institution. The formal election will take place in August, confirming an arrangement ratified by letters from all trustees.

Dr. Hickman brings to Chautauqua a high type of administrative ability and a successful experience in connection with the building of the De Pauw. He fills a position which has been vacant since the death of Hon. Clem Studebaker in November, 1901. There will be no change in the educational policy of Chautauqua, George E. Vincent, while Mr. Scott Brown, as general director, will continue to be responsible for the business administration.

PAUPERS TO BREAK STONE

Columbus Infirmary Directors Hit Upon Plan to Keep Them Busy in Winter.

Columbus, March 21.—If the present plans are carried out the paupers at the infirmary will break stone for their board next winter. The infirmary directors are bothered a great deal in the winter months by bums, who go into the institution till spring opens again and then depart. They work till fall, blow in all their money for drink and then come onto the county to be kept till nice weather reappears.

"We are losing about six a day now," said Director Johnson Thursday. "I think we ought to have a stone yard and make these fellows who are able-bodied earn their board during the winter. The stone could be used to make good roads and they could do lots of work. Of course, the sick and infirm men would not be asked to break stone, but we always have a lot of bums who are strong and could do it. Now we have nothing for them to do. I am in favor of getting the stone yard in shape to start next winter."

Director McKinley is also in favor of the plan and it will probably be taken up this summer.

DROWNING CHARGED

By Guernsey County's Coroner to the Temperance Element of a "Dry" Town.

Zanesville, March 21.—The coroner of Guernsey county, Cambridge, a "dry" town, has just rendered a remarkable verdict based on the finding of the body of Daniel Shultyce, who died of drowning. The verdict of Coroner E. E. Voorhees in part is as follows:

"After having heard the evidence and examined the body I find that the said deceased came to his death by accidental drowning while in the state of intoxication, and that the liquor that intoxicated the said Daniel Schultyce was purchased at the so-called 'substitute saloons' located in Cambridge, Ohio.

"Furthermore, I find that the 'substitute saloons' are responsible for the said accidental drowning, but I more especially hold the leaders of the temperance cause responsible for not enforcing the law, and for permitting said saloons to run openly and to sell intoxicants in violation of the laws of the state of Ohio governing such local option municipalities as Cambridge, Ohio."

No trouble to prepare quick breakfasts if you have Mrs. Austin's famous Pancake flour. Ready in a moment.

A nervous, irritable mother, often on the verge of hysterics, is unfit to care for children; it ruins a child's disposition and reacts upon herself. The trouble between children and their mothers too often is due to the fact that the mother has some female weakness, and she is entirely unfit to bear the strain upon her nerves that governing a child involves; it is impossible for her to do anything calmly. She cannot help it, as her condition is due to suffering and shattered nerves caused by some derangement of the uterine system with backache, headache, and all kinds of pain, and she is on the verge of nervous prostration.

When a mother finds that she cannot be calm and quiet with her children, she may be sure that her condition needs attention, and she cannot do better than to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. This medicine will build up her system, strengthen her nerves, and enable her to calmly handle a disobedient child without a scene. The children will soon realize the difference, and seeing their mother quiet, will themselves become quiet.

Mrs. May Brown, of Chicago, Ill., says:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—'Honor to whom honor is due,' and you deserve both the thanks and honor of the mothers of America whom you have so blessedly helped and benefited. I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when I would feel run-down, nervous and irritable, or have any of the aches and pains which but few women escape, and I have found that it relieved me at once and gave me new strength. Several ladies, members of our Literary Union, speak in the highest praise of your Vegetable Compound, as they have been cured from serious female troubles. One lady, who thought she must submit to an operation, was cured without using anything in the world but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash. You have hosts of friends in Chicago, and if you came to visit our city we would delight to do you honor. Gratefully yours,—MRS. MAY BROWN, 57 Grant Place, Chicago, Ill.

How Mrs. Pinkham Helped Mrs. McKinny.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I feel it my duty to write and let you know the good you and your Vegetable Compound are doing. I had been sick ever since my first baby was born, and at the birth of my second, my doctor, as well as myself thought I should never live through it. After that menstruation never came regular, and when it came I suffered terribly. I also had womb and ovarian trouble. A friend of my husband's advised him to get Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me. At first I had no faith in it, but now nothing could induce me to be without it. Menstruation has become regular, and I feel like a new woman. Your medicine is a God-send to suffering women. I hope this letter will lead others to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Yours truly, MRS. MILDRED MCKINNY, 28 Pearl St., San Francisco, Cal." (March 16, 1901).

Mormon Church Will Not Intercede.

Salt Lake, Utah, March 21.—"If any movement is being made toward securing the release of Hooper Young from Sing Sing," said Secretary Gibbs, of the first presidency of the Mormon church, "it is from outside the church. No such move has been taken or is even contemplated by the first presidency. Even if he were a member of the church this action would not be taken, but Hooper Young was severed from the church years ago for immorality."

There is considerable feeling as a result of the meeting and the members who comprise the majority boast that it will not be long before they will get even with the others for their failure to support them in their efforts to strike.

It is more than likely as the result of Wednesday's meeting that the delegates to the national convention of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters, which will be held in Wheeling in May, will receive instructions from the sanitary pressers' local to introduce a resolution changing the percentage of votes necessary to declare a strike.

According to some opinion, the vote necessary to call a strike should only be three-fourths of the entire membership of the local, as such a percentage would be sufficient to warrant the belief that such action was warranted.

Notices asking that a vote be taken among the different locals of the Brotherhood will be sent out from the national headquarters within a few days, but it is likely that it will be all of three weeks before the result is announced.

SERVICE PENSION BILL

What Is Proposed for Civil War Veterans And Their Widows.

The National Tribune, the organ of the civil war veterans, has the following to say about the proposed service pension:

There is plenty of work to be done by all veterans and friends of veterans between now and the next meeting of congress in the way of pushing the $12 a month service pension. We must make sure of its passage by that congress, for time is now infinitely precious to the veterans and their widows, and every week of delay sees a full thousand of them mustered out of life's army and beyond the reach of the nation's gratitude and the nation's sense of justice.

It is all-important that every means be employed to arouse public sentiment in favor of the speedy passage of the measure, and to convince members of congress of the desire of their constituents for this. Every veteran should enlist in this work, and do his utmost. The newspapers in every community should be supplied with abundant reasons drawn from examples in the neighborhood, why the circumlocution in the pension bureau should be abolished, the expensive and aggravating boards of examining surgeons be discontinued, and the corps of special examiners set at some other work, by the simple plan of giving every veteran and every veteran's widow a modest allowance as a matter of justice and right.

A straight pension of $12 a month, or $3 a week, will strike every one as fair and reasonable, and require no argument to induce him to favor it. Every paper in the north, east and west ought to actively favor the measure, and doubtless can be brought to do so by a little effort properly directed. All the editors require is to be properly approached by veterans in whom they have confidence, and be assured that the service pension is earnestly desired by the veterans as a body. Let every group of veterans see that this is done by the right kind of comrades. They need not go abroad for arguments to present to their editors. Their own neighborhoods will furnish plenty of instances of the most convincing kind.

CAPT. GORDON GREEN'S BIG NEW PACKET

The Boat Will Be a Sidewheeler and Will Enter the Kanawha River Trade.

Captain Gordon Green, the owner of the Green line of steamboats and one of the best known rivermen on the upper waters, has let the contract for the construction of a new packet, the successful bidders being the M. G. Knox company, of Marietta. Captain Green reached the city by rail Thursday, having left the steamer Greenwood at Marietta for the purpose of consulting with the Knox company.

The new craft is to be a sidewheeler, 205 feet long and 31½ feet beam. There will be 52 cabin staterooms, the appointments and furnishings throughout to be of the best. With the exception of the steamer City of Pittsburg, Captain Green's boat will be the first sidewheeler built in years for the upper trade. She will be the only one in the trade above Pomeroy. Rivermen in the past few years conceded the superiority of single wheel boats, but now, when greater speed is necessary, they are turning to the sidewheeler again.

The new boat is to be completed by the 4th of July and will be entered in the trade between Charleston, on the Kanawha river, and Pittsburg, taking the place of the Greenwood. Captain Green has made the Greenwood a success as an independent packet and has built up a trade until it has reached such proportions that the present steamer is not large enough to handle.

NO PLACE TO BUY STEEL BILLETS

The United States Steel Corporation Seems to Have Independent Tin Plants at Its Mercy.

The purchase of the Clairton plant of the Crucible Steel company of America by the United States Steel corporation, announced yesterday, sounded the death knell of the independent tin plate manufacturers of the country, says the Pittsburg Gazette. Where they will buy billets to make black plates from is the question that now confronts them. The Crucible Steel company was their only hope and now that that is gone over to the steel corporation the independent people feel that they might as well close up shop and seek other means of making a livelihood.

For some time past the independent tin plate manufacturers have been buying the surplus billet product of the Crucible company, amounting to about 1,200 tons per day. This went a long way toward making hot competition for the American Tin Plate company. To the steel corporation there seemed but one way to shut out the independents and that was to stop the source of the billet supply, which has been accomplished by the purchase of the Clairtown plant.

The Jones & Laughlins Steel company is still outside the fold of the steel corporation. It is known to inner circles that the Jones & Laughlin people have been offered $80,000,000 in 5 per cent gold bonds for their plant, but they feel that it is worth more, and until the price is raised by the steel corporation there will be no further negotiations.

GRADERS AT WORK

On Pennsylvania Company's Proposed Low Grade Rochester-Kenwood Extension.

Rochester, Pa., March 21.—The rumor that the Pennsylvania company will run two additional tracks from Conway yards to Rochester, and thence by the low grade up the Beaver to Kenwood, was given strong coloring yesterday when a large force of men with carts and wheelbarrows began grading the hillside above the Ft. Wayne tracks at McKinley's run undergrade crossing for dirt for a fill on the low grade.

Another force is also engaged at grading on the low grade just above the point where Whistler's run empties into the Big Beaver. This is the same grading outfit which earlier in the week began grading in the cut at the overhead bridge in Maine avenue, Rochester.

PLANNING FOR A LONG STRIKE

Massillon Miners Preparing to Stop Work—Blow for Merchants.

Massillon, March 21.—At the meetings of the local unions of the Mine Workers of the Massillon district, since the adjournment of the joint conference, the action of the delegates in holding out for the four-foot low coal standard has been unanimously indorsed.

Both sides are making every preparation for a long fight. Mines are being put in the best possible condition for a suspension and hundreds of miners will depart for other fields, where they will remain until work here is resumed.

Massillon merchants will be seriously affected by the strike, as this is the general trading place for the mines within a radius of 10 miles. The miners, however, say they were never in a better condition for a long strike.

NEW PRESIDENT OF CHAUTAUQUA

Dr. W. H. Hickman Will Succeed to the Place Made Vacant By Death.

Jamestown, N. Y., March 21.—Dr. W. H. Hickman, chancellor of De Pauw University, will sever his connection with that institution in June, to assume the presidency of the board of trustees of Chautauqua institution. The formal election will take place in August, confirming an arrangement ratified by letters from all trustees.

Dr. Hickman brings to Chautauqua a high type of administrative ability and a successful experience in connection with the building of the De Pauw. He fills a position which has been vacant since the death of Hon. Clem Studebaker in November, 1901. There will be no change in the educational policy of Chautauqua. George E. Vincent, while Mr. Scott Brown, as general director, will continue to be responsible for the business administration.

PAUPERS TO BREAK STONE

Columbus Infirmary Directors Hit Upon Plan to Keep Them Busy in Winter.

Columbus, March 21.—If the present plans are carried out the paupers at the infirmary will break stone for their board next winter. The infirmary directors are bothered a great deal in the winter months by bums, who go into the institution till spring opens again and then depart. They work till fall, blow in all their money for drink and then come onto the county to be kept till nice weather reappears.

"We are losing about six a day now," said Director Johnson Thursday. "I think we ought to have a stone yard and make these fellows who are able-bodied earn their board during the winter. The stone could be used to make good roads and they could do lots of work. Of course, the sick and infirm men would not be asked to break stone, but we always have a lot of bums who are strong and could do it. Now we have nothing for them to do. I am in favor of getting the stone yard in shape to start next winter."

Director McKinley is also in favor of the plan and it will probably be taken up this summer.

DROWNING CHARGED

By Guernsey County's Coroner to the Temperance Element of a "Dry" Town.

Zanesville, March 21.—The coroner of Guernsey county, Cambridge, a "dry" town, has just rendered a remarkable verdict based on the finding of the body of Daniel Shultyce, who died of drowning. The verdict of Coroner E. E. Voorhees in part is as follows:

"After having heard the evidence and examined the body I find that the said deceased came to his death by accidental drowning while in the state of intoxication, and that the liquor that intoxicated the said Daniel Schultyce was purchased at the so-called 'substitute saloons' located in Cambridge, Ohio.

"Furthermore, I find that the 'substitute saloons' are responsible for the said accidental drowning, but I more especially hold the leaders of the temperance cause responsible for not enforcing the law, and for permitting said saloons to run openly and to sell intoxicants in violation of the laws of the state of Ohio governing such local option municipalities as Cambridge, Ohio."

A nervous, irritable mother, often on the verge of hysterics, is unfit to care for children; it ruins a child's disposition and reacts upon herself. The trouble between children and their mothers too often is due to the fact that the mother has some female weakness, and she is entirely unfit to bear the strain upon her nerves that governing a child involves; it is impossible for her to do anything calmly. She cannot help it, as her condition is due to suffering and shattered nerves caused by some derangement of the uterine system with backache, headache, and all kinds of pain, and she is on the verge of nervous prostration.

When a mother finds that she cannot be calm and quiet with her children, she may be sure that her condition needs attention, and she cannot do better than to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. This medicine will build up her system, strengthen her nerves, and enable her to calmly handle a disobedient child without a scene. The children will soon realize the difference, and seeing their mother quiet, will themselves become quiet.

Mrs. May Brown, of Chicago, Ill., says:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—'Honor to whom honor is due,' and you deserve both the thanks and honor of the mothers of America whom you have so blessedly helped and benefited. I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when I would feel run-down, nervous and irritable, or have any of the aches and pains which but few women escape, and I have found that it relieved me at once and gave me new strength. Several ladies, members of our Literary Union, speak in the highest praise of your Vegetable Compound, as they have been cured from serious female troubles. One lady, who thought she must submit to an operation, was cured without using anything in the world but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash. You have hosts of friends in Chicago, and if you came to visit our city we would delight to do you honor. Gratefully yours,—MRS. MAY BROWN, 57 Grant Place, Chicago, Ill.

How Mrs. Pinkham Helped Mrs. McKinny.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I feel it my duty to write and let you know the good you and your Vegetable Compound are doing. I had been sick ever since my first baby was born, and at the birth of my second, my doctor, as well as myself thought I should never live through it. After that menstruation never came regular, and when it came I suffered terribly. I also had womb and ovarian trouble. A friend of my husband's advised him to get Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me. At first I had no faith in it, but now nothing could induce me to be without it. Menstruation has become regular, and I feel like a new woman. Your medicine is a God-send to suffering women. I hope this letter will lead others to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Yours truly, MRS. MILDRED MCKINNY, 28 Pearl St., San Francisco, Cal." (March 16, 1901).

Mormon Church Will Not Intercede.

Salt Lake, Utah, March 21.—"If any movement is being made toward securing the release of Hooper Young from Sing Sing," said Secretary Gibbs, of the first presidency of the Mormon church, "it is from outside the church. No such move has been taken or is even contemplated by the first presidency. Even if he were a member of the church this action would not be taken, but Hooper Young was severed from the church years ago for immorality."

American Explorers Heard From.

Marseilles, France, March 21.—A mail steamer from African ports brings word of the arrival at Jibutil Abyssinia, of a party of American explorers, Messrs. McMillan, Brown and Marlow, accompanied by a number of Englishmen. Emperor Menelik accorded the party a hearty welcome and placed an escort of 50 soldiers at their disposal and gave authority to the expedition to proceed to Lake Tsana. Later the party expects to descend the Blue Nile.

Baby

Restless, Cried Day and Night.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Did Wonders, Cured Her.

A little over two years ago I had a little, nervous baby who weighed only five pounds at birth. At first she was restless and cross and after she was four weeks old she cried day and night, and would not sleep without narcotics. She was so nervous that we did not dare to move when she did sleep a short time, as she would wake screaming as though she was going to have a fit. We called a doctor; he called it infantile colic; said he could relieve her, could not cure her. After a short time the effect of his medicine wore off and I was in despair. I tried all known home remedies and innumerable patent medicines. At last I gave her Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and she was easy and slept without narcotics. Since that time I have used a dozen bottles and would not be without it. I am now giving it to another baby and it has the same effect, immediate relief always."—Mrs. Vincent Zidek, Verona, N. D.

"Three years ago I was taken with nervous prostration, which brought on heart trouble, and my heart would palpitate at every little noise. I had smothering spells so that at times I would nearly sink away. I got one bottle each of Dr. Miles' Nervine and Heart Cure and I could feel good results from the first few doses. They have since effected a permanent cure. I recommend Dr. Miles' Remedies to all who suffer as I did."—Mrs. G. C. James, Fairmont, Nebraska.

"The Frisky Mrs. Johnson"
"The Earl of Pawtucket"
"The Bold Soger Boy"

THREE NEW PLAYS

THERE are many fields in the line of work yet unexplored by women, but it is gratifying to see new efforts in these new fields attended with success. As a manager Amelia Bingham has proved herself fully capable. She undertakes to give value received for the money the public pays to enjoy her productions. Her selections are from the best authors, her players are high class and her mounting and costumes leave nothing to be desired. As an actress Miss Bingham is good, but there are still many steps on the ladder of fame before she will reach the top. Clyde Fitch has reached that point in his career as a playwright where he must be careful or there will come a time when his name will not be noticed. He is dangerously near descent, and he will find that his name alone will not draw large houses. In "The Bird In the Cage" Mr. Fitch met a blow from the critics. The play could not be taken seriously, and now he gives us "The Frisky Mrs. Johnson." Much that is good and many bright lines are there, but much, too, is commonplace, and many lines are unnecessarily coarse and vulgar. The first act is almost hopless, and the well wishers of Miss Bingham must have deplored her choice of a vehicle at this point. The second act showed some admirable situations and caused the audience to sit up and wait for something good. It came, and by the time the last curtain fell the verdict was favorable. The cast could not be improved, and each person, almost without exception, played the role assigned without a flaw. The frisky Mrs. Johnson (Miss Bingham) is really the only woman on the stage except her maid who is above reproach. Her "friskiness" makes people talk, but she is "all right." The three other women, real married ladies, are types one would not care to copy, and even the adored little sister, Mrs. Frank Morley (Minnie Dupree), is a fallen angel. To shield this sister Mrs. Johnson assumes guilt which is disclosed to the husband through a letter intended for his wife and which he insists upon seeing. The letter is not addressed, but has been received by Mrs. Morley, and the climax is averted by the accidental entrance of the loving but frisky Mrs. Johnson. It is not hard to believe evil of this unselfish woman, and the sacrifice is made before the erring wife quite grasps the situation. An empty headed idiot, Lord Bertie Heathcote, has been the panacea for ennui used by the young wife while her busy husband is out, and his letter telling her of a new flat he has furnished is the missive which causes the trouble. Jim Morley (Wilton Lackaye) is in love with the gay little widow, and when he hears it all puts on his thinking cap and guesses not far from the truth. The sinning little wife clears the matter up by making a clean breast of the whole and gains the future happiness of her devoted sister. The wronged husband uses tickets for the Canary islands and tells his wife to "go home and get it for desertion." The main idea is as old as Adam, but the handling is where Clyde Fitch shows his skill. He has done so in some places, and then the play rises to a high grade of merit. In others it falls and becomes weak and almost like farce. It is needless to mention individuals, all were so good, if I except Allison Skipworth, but the best in the cast was Ferdinand Gottschalk. As Lord Bertie Heathcote he could not be improved upon. It is amazing how many actors can play the fool well. There are four different kinds of fool in this play, and all were well done. That is a little too much sugar in the coffee.

"The Earl of Pawtucket."

That best of modern playwrights, Augustus Thomas, has given us another very excellent comedy called "The Earl of Pawtucket," and its success at the Madison Square theater is assured. Englishmen as portrayed on the American stage are usually such silly idiots it would appear there are no sensible men in England, and, this being false, it is a pleasure to at last see one who is both sensible and a gentleman. Augustus Thomas wrote his play with Lawrence D'Orsay as his model for Lord Cardington, the earl of Pawtucket, and the actor has only to be himself, and the hit is made. Slow to see our American jokes, the points of all those in the play being directed against himself, many roaringly funny moments are afforded. His determined way of persisting in his use of an alias, which mixes him up in the lender's family affairs and his tangle before he understands it all are side splitting, and one continuous laugh is enjoyed the entire evening. The best criticism of the play as to its intrinsic merit is that when a laugh causes the loss of a line the feeling that something good has been missed is unavoidable. The author is to be congratulated that his work is in the hands of such a capable exponent. Elizabeth Tyree as Harriet Fordyce, the divorced wife of Montgomery Putnam, is very pleasing, and, while for her the opportunity is not as good as her role in "Gretna Green," the play is good, and she will have a success to add to her future, and not a miserable mistake, as was "Gretna Green." Lord Cardington while in a hotel in Paris saves a young lady from fright of fire while both are dressing for dinner. Two months after they meet in a Ferris wheel and are in the same car. The loyal valet, knowing his master's desire to further his acquaintance with the unknown, drops a jackknife into the machinery of the wheel, and it is stopped for twenty-four hours. After another lapse of time they meet in the Waldorf-Astoria, where he is stopping in the hope of learning something of her. He pointed her out in Paris to a friend, who seemed amused, and when told that the earl intended following her to America, but with an alias, suggested his own name, saying that many knew him by name, but he had been away for years and would not be recognized. As Montgomery Putnam, then, this English earl masquerades in America, falling in love and paying court to his borrowed name's divorced wife. She and a young man friend, formerly met in England, are the only ones who know he is not the American, and she, wishing to see the fun out, does not tell either of them whom she really is, as now she uses her maiden name, Harriet Fordyce. When he is forced to assume family troubles and finally pay alimony, the net closes so tightly around him that unraveling is necessary. All ends happily, and the whole is so full of spice, repartee and stolid English stupidity that the audience is dismissed delighted. Senator Barker, played by Robert McWade, and Arthur Weatherbee, by John W. Dean, were lifelike, and the rest of the cast was good. The setting of the palm room in the first act and the Turkish room in the last were miniature copies of the same apartments in the famous hotel.

"The Bold Soger Boy."

Andrew Mack, the sweet singer and fair actor, is again at the Fourteenth Street theater. This time he is playing "The Bold Soger Boy," by Theodore Burt Sayre. There is enough of the Irishman in the character of Gerald Adair to please those who always associate Andrew Mack with such parts, but this young soldier is Desmond Clair from Ireland, who has by his bravery won the position of lieutenant in the regular army of this country, and the scene is laid at Fort Wadsworth, near New York. Some sweet songs are given by the star in his usual agreeable way, with the accompaniment of children and a pretty sweetheart. There are no less than four of these—I mean children, not sweethearts—and two of them are quite bright. The little girl who is made to utter the sentiments on love suitable to a woman is cute and acts well the lovesick girl, who at last wins the man of her heart when she becomes engaged to Gerald Adair. Little Vivian Martin plays this role of Millicent Bassett. Gerald Adair in Wyoming several years before the opening of the play loses heaviliy at a game of cards with a sharp known as "Honest Isaac" and gets into a quarrel when he discovers that the cards are marked. In the struggle the card sharp is killed by the accidental discharge of his own pistol while he is attempting to kill Desmond Clair. There are no witnesses, but at the moment of the shot a man enters who afterward proves to be an accomplice, and the charge of murder is placed on the young Irishman. Knowing himself defenseless in this strange section of the country, he escapes and gets later into the army under the name of Gerald Adair, and is loved and admired by all. Captain Fitzgerald has a daughter who is loved by Adair, also by a rascal, Captain Thorndyke. Her father is too fond of cards and liquor, and one Van Nahm's unscrupulousness is used by Thorndyke to attain his end, which is to win the girl. Van Nahm is the western witness to Clair's crime, and he has recognized Gerald as the one he saw in Wyoming. At the same time he is a German sort of official who is trying to get the plans of a gun used in America, and each villain helps the other. The garrison knows of the love of their colonel's wife for Adair, while he is ignorant of this, and at a ball given at the house of Colonel Bassett the rascals of the play get the half drunk Captain Fitzgerald to win heavily from them in a card game. Then they show him the marked pack and threaten to disgrace him if he does not sign a paper admitting his cheating and promise never to play again. This is used to win the daughter's consent to wed Thorndyke. Meantime Gerald has seen this German and realized that trouble is brewing for him. Here a young lawyer arrives to turn over a legacy of $8,000 to Fitzgerald left him by his cousin, Gerald Clair's father, if Desmond cannot be found. The old chum recognizes the man and learns his story. Through the attempted robbery of the colonel's desk during his absence and the exposure by Gerald the plans for the gun are saved. "Honest Isaac" is later found to be alive, and the German is exposed as the expert card sharp who caused both troubles. The denouement is happy. Gerald wins Helen Fitzgerald as his wife. The dialogue is crisp and witty, and the situations and curtains are excellent. As a whole the play will please Fourteenth street for as long as it is kept on, but it is a sorry successor to "Tom Moore," in which Andrew Mack delighted audiences two seasons ago.

REBECCA OTTOLENGUI.

New York.

OUR NEW CUP DEFENDER.

It now looks as if the statement that the new America's cup defender would be launched at a very early date is worthy of credence. In fact, the story is that by the middle of March she will be put overboard and in early April will be ready to go into commission. This done, she will have quite as much time to get into shape as Shamrock III., and while the latter is being towed across the Atlantic the new boat, under the black and red fighting flag of Mr. C. Oliver Iselin, will be in the thickest of the battle, in which Columbia, Constitution and she will be engaged.

Mr. Iselin will probably have as his quarter deck companions the same capable amateurs who sailed with him on the Defender and the Columbia, and these friends are quite as experienced as any in the country in the matter of international matches.

As Lem Miller, the old mate of the Columbia, has now been appointed her skipper, Captain Charley Barr will have as his first officer in the new yacht Chris Christenson, who has sailed with him in all his cup trials and races as second mate. The crew of the new boat will be mostly Scandinavians, many of them having served for seasons with Barr.

BARRY A "HAS BEEN."

To those people who know Jimmy Barry, the former bantamweight champion of America, the following article that has been traveling the rounds will appear extremely humorous: "Since 1899 Barry has been making his home in San Francisco and is training in anticipation of a match with some first class bantamweight. He now weighs 122 pounds, and he expects to have no trouble in getting down to 115 pounds with a few weeks' hard work."

The fact is the little fellow is a physical wreck. He is now stopping at Blanken's roadhouse, in the suburbs of San Francisco, and weighs 100 pounds or less.

Fournier, Auto Racing Demon

By Frederick R. Toombs

There is no limit to the speed of automobiles.
Autos will soon go a mile in half a minute.
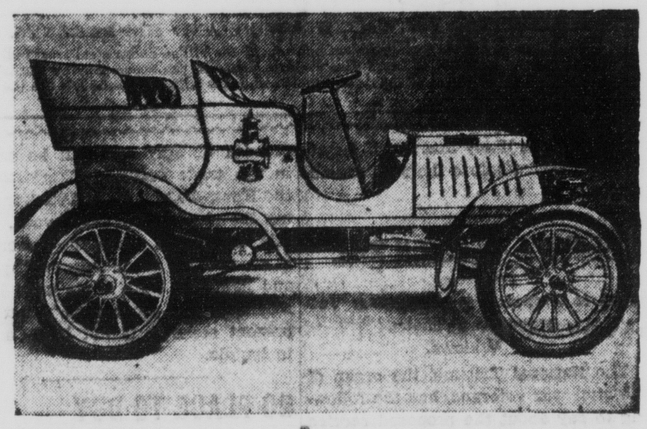
Manufacturers can make autos of almost any strength and horse power; therefore the speed is "up to the man behind the lever."
—HENRY FOURNIER.

HENRY FOURNIER, the world's champion automobile racer, is determined that no rival competitor for international speeding honors shall seize his laurels, and with the new machine he is now having built in Paris he expects to be able to maintain his supremacy. Fournier directed the drawing of the plans of the new auto, and, to say the least, the machine will be unique. More than anything else it will resemble a gigantic metal cigar on wheels, with the pointed end forward, so as to give it peculiarly effective wind cutting properties, reducing the air resistance to a minimum.



THE NEWEST MODEL OF A SPEEDY TOURING AUTO.

The elongated auto is to be used by the daring Frenchman in the races to be held during the spring and summer, and he will bring it to the United States when in July he comes over to participate in a match contest with Alexander Winton, the noted racer of Cleveland. Winton hopes to defeat Fournier, and rivalry between the two experts is very intense. The race will probably occur on the splendid Empire City trotting track, built by the late W. H. Clark, at Yonkers, N. Y.

One Man Only on Fournier's New Auto.

Fournier's machine is being built of aluminium and steel, and with it he expects to lower to forty seconds the present mark for a mile of forty-six seconds, made near Paris last year by himself. It is a Mors auto and will cost about $12,000. One of the novelties in its construction is the fact that it provides seating room for but a single man. Fournier, therefore, will have no assistant when he endeavors to chop down the seconds. The seat is perched over the rear axle and is so arranged down in the very heart of the controlling apparatus that only the head and shoulders of the occupant will be visible.

"No Limit to Auto Speed."

I had a talk with the Gallic speed demon recently before he returned to Paris, and he spoke enthusiastically of his coming match races and trials against time. In reply to a question he said: "There really is no limit to the future speed of the automobile. I fully expect to see the mile covered in half a minute inside of another year. As for forty seconds—well, I am sure to go a mile that fast before I am four months older. The manufacturers can turn out autos of practically any strength and horsepower; therefore the speed attained is 'up to the man at the lever.'

"I have done the mile in forty-six seconds several times recently," Fournier continued after lighting a cigarette, "and I hold the official record at just a fraction more than that time.

"A Mile In Forty Seconds."

"I have no hesitation in telling you that I have often traveled at the rate of a mile in forty seconds, though not for a long distance.

"So far as the ultimate speed of the auto is concerned I will not undertake to predict." Here Fournier shrugged his shoulders and added, "Only when I am about to die shall I be prepared to admit that I shall not see the world's record lowered still further."

"Record Speed Feels Like Flying."

"How does it feel to run an automobile a mile in forty-six seconds? How do you keep the machine under the necessary perfect control?" I asked the Parisian, who spoke of his sensational exploits in the cool manner of a man discussing the present price of gorgonzola cheese in Rome or the latest methods of exterminating potato bugs.

"It is like flying," replied Fournier. "But as I have never flown, perhaps I am wrong. No railroad train or iceboat has ever gone at such a terrific pace.

"I suppose if it were possible for a man to sit astride one of the thirteen inch shells they use down at Sandy Hook he would feel as I and my companion did not long ago when we made our record trip. You look straight ahead, intent only on the road that stretches away before, yet somehow your eyes manage to take in the general effect of the country through which you are passing. You are very, very cold from piercing air at so great a speed, and hungry—oh, my, how hungry! I wonder how much it would cost to satisfy the appetite of a gormand after a ride with me.

The Official French Course.

"The machine with which I made the world's record is of seventy-two horsepower, a Mors, with a long wheel base. The run was made on the official trial route between Ablis and St. Arnoult, near Dourdan, about fifty miles from Paris. No better piece of road for the purpose can be found in the world. So smooth, so straight is it that at a distance of four miles you can readily distinguish the slight figure of a man and at the same time see every intervening foot of the thoroughfare. It has been especially prepared by the French auto and government officials and is just as carefully cared for as any horse racing course in America."

Fournier—who spells his first name Henry, not Henri—is very unassuming and possesses the unfailing French courtesy and mobility of features. When you grasp his hand, you find it is as soft as a baby's, and it is hard to realize that this bowing, smiling, soft skinned man standing before you in faultless evening dress is the king of daredevils and premier of chauffeurs, with nerves and muscle when put to the test like unto the fire hardened steel of a battleship's armor plates. All this is Fournier.

With the Gunners.

Trap shooters in many parts of the country are showing considerable activity at present, and there is no doubt that in spite of the prohibition of live bird shooting in some states sport at the traps is not on the wane. After all, there is something unusually fascinating about gunning, and whether in field or forest, at the traps with animate or inanimate targets as the mark, or whether it be in a rifle range, the enthusiast finds pleasure that he would exchange for no other.

There are many persons who would be greatly surprised to hear shooting in its various forms described as one of America's national pastimes, yet such is the case, and few and far between indeed are the cities and towns throughout the length and breadth of the land that do not possess organizations for promoting the interests of rifle and shotgun.

Where Trap Shooting Thrives.

Just now, so far as trap shooting is concerned, the centers of activity appear to be St. Louis, Cincinnati, Kansas City and Philadelphia. In and about the Quaker City the Keystone Shooting league is leading the procession. The league held its annual meeting recently at Holmesburg Junction, and a splendid turnout resulted. During the meeting it developed that last year 16,000 live birds had been trapped as against 21,000 in 1901. The decrease was due, of course, to agitation by the antipigeon shooting fraternity. Letters read to the members by Secretary Van Loon showed widespread opposition to the bill which has been presented to the legislature prohibiting the trapping of live birds. S. J. Hothersal was elected president.

The Cleveland Gun club also held its annual meeting recently and elected F. G. Hogen president, A. M. Allyn secretary and S. C. Payne treasurer.

"The Frisky Mrs. Johnson"
"The Bold Soger Boy"

THREE NEW PLAYS

THERE are many fields in the line of work yet unexplored by women, but it is gratifying to see new efforts in these new fields attended with success. As a manager Amelia Bingham has proved herself fully capable. She undertakes to give value received for the money the public pays to enjoy her productions. Her selections are from the best authors, her players are high class and her mounting and costumes leave nothing to be desired. As an actress Miss Bingham is good, but there are still many steps on the ladder of fame before she will reach the top. Clyde Fitch has reached that point in his career as a playwright where he must be careful or there will come a time when his name will not be noticed. He is dangerously near descent, and he will find that his name alone will not draw large houses. In "The Bird In the Cage" Mr. Fitch met a blow from the critics. The play could not be taken seriously, and now he gives us "The Frisky Mrs. Johnson." Much that is good and many bright lines are there, but much, too, is commonplace, and many lines are unnecessarily coarse and vulgar. The first act is almost hopless, and the well wishers of Miss Bingham must have deplored her choice of a vehicle at this point. The second act showed some admirable situations and caused the audience to sit up and wait for something good. It came, and by the time the last curtain fell the verdict was favorable. The cast could not be improved, and each person, almost without exception, played the role assigned without a flaw. The frisky Mrs. Johnson (Miss Bingham) is really the only woman on the stage except her maid who is above reproach. Her "friskiness" makes people talk, but she is "all right." The three other women, real married ladies, are types one would not care to copy, and even the adored little sister, Mrs. Frank Morley (Minnie Dupree), is a fallen angel. To shield this sister Mrs. Johnson assumes guilt which is disclosed to the husband through a letter intended for his wife and which he insists upon seeing. The letter is not addressed, but has been received by Mrs. Morley, and the climax is averted by the accidental entrance of the loving but frisky Mrs. Johnson. It is not hard to believe evil of this unselfish woman, and the sacrifice is made before the erring wife quite grasps the situation. An empty headed idiot, Lord Bertie Heathcote, has been the panacea for ennui used by the young wife while her busy husband is out, and his letter telling her of a new flat he has furnished is the missive which causes the trouble. Jim Morley (Wilton Lackaye) is in love with the gay little widow, and when he hears it all puts on his thinking cap and guesses not far from the truth. The sinning little wife clears the matter up by making a clean breast of the whole and gains the future happiness of her devoted sister. The wronged husband uses tickets for the Canary islands and tells his wife to "go home and get it for desertion." The main idea is as old as Adam, but the handling is where Clyde Fitch shows his skill. He has done so in some places, and then the play rises to a high grade of merit. In others it falls and becomes weak and almost like farce. It is needless to mention individuals, all were so good, if I except Allison Skipworth, but the best in the cast was Ferdinand Gottschalk. As Lord Bertie Heathcote he could not be improved upon. It is amazing how many actors can play the fool well. There are four different kinds of fool in this play, and all were well done. That is a little too much sugar in the coffee.

"The Earl of Pawtucket."

That best of modern playwrights, Augustus Thomas, has given us another very excellent comedy called "The Earl of Pawtucket," and its success at the Madison Square theater is assured. Englishmen as portrayed on the American stage are usually such silly idiots it would appear there are no sensible men in England, and, this being false, it is a pleasure to at last see one who is both sensible and a gentleman. Augustus Thomas wrote his play with Lawrence D'Orsay as his model for Lord Cardington, the earl of Pawtucket, and the actor has only to be himself, and the hit is made. Slow to see our American jokes, the points of all those in the play being directed against himself, many roaringly funny moments are afforded. His determined way of persisting in his use of an alias, which mixes him up in the leader's family affairs and his tangle before he understands it all are side splitting, and one continuous laugh is enjoyed the entire evening. The best criticism of the play as to its intrinsic merit is that when a laugh causes the loss of a line the feeling that something good has been missed is unavoidable. The author is to be congratulated that his work is in the hands of such a capable exponent. Elizabeth Tyree as Harriet Fordyce, the divorced wife of Montgomery Putnam, is very pleasing, and, while for her the opportunity is not as good as her role in "Gretna Green," the play is good, and she will have a success to add to her future, and not a miserable mistake, as was "Gretna Green." Lord Cardington while in a hotel in Paris saves a young lady from fright of fire while both are dressing for dinner. Two months after they meet in a Ferris wheel and are in the same car. The loyal valet, knowing his master's desire to further his acquaintance with the unknown, drops a jackknife into the machinery of the wheel, and it is stopped for twenty-four hours. After another lapse of time they meet in the Waldorf-Astoria, where he is stopping in the hope of learning something of her. He pointed her out in Paris to a friend, who seemed amused, and when told that the earl intended following her to America, but with an alias, suggested his own name, saying that many knew him by name, but he had been away for years and would not be recognized. As Montgomery Putnam, then, this English earl masquerades in America, falling in love and paying court to his borrowed name's divorced wife. She and a young man friend, formerly met in England, are the only ones who know he is not the American, and she, wishing to see the fun out, does not tell either of them whom she really is, but at the moment of the shot a man enters who afterward proves to be an accomplice, and the charge of murder is placed on the young Irishman. Knowing himself defenseless in this strange section of the country, he escapes and gets later into the army under the name of Gerald Adair, and is loved and admired by all. Captain Fitzgerald has a daughter who is loved by Adair, also by a rascal, Captain Thorndyke. Her father is too fond of cards and liquor, and one Van Nahm's unscrupulousness is used by Thorndyke to attain his end, which is to win the girl. Van Nahm is the western witness to Clair's crime, and he has recognized Gerald as the one he saw in Wyoming. At the same time he is a German sort of official who is trying to get the plans of a gun used in America, and each villain helps the other. The garrison knows of the love of their colonel's wife for Adair, while he is ignorant of this, and at a ball given at the house of Colonel Bassett the rascals of the play get the half drunk Captain Fitzgerald to win heavily from them in a card game. Then they show him the marked pack and threaten to disgrace him if he does not sign a paper admitting his cheating and promise never to play again. This is used to win the daughter's consent to wed Thorndyke. Meantime Gerald has seen this German and realized that trouble is brewing for him. Here a young lawyer arrives to turn over a legacy of $8,000 to Fitzgerald left him by his cousin, Gerald Clair's father, if Desmond cannot be found. The old chum recognizes the man and learns his story. Through the attempted robbery of the colonel's desk during his absence and the exposure by Gerald the plans for the gun are saved. "Honest Isaac" is later found to be alive, and the German is exposed as the expert card sharp who caused both troubles. The denouement is happy. Gerald wins Helen Fitzgerald as his wife. The dialogue is crisp and witty, and the situations and curtains are excellent. As a whole the play will please Fourteenth street for as long as it is kept on, but it is a sorry successor to "Tom Moore," in which Andrew Mack delighted audiences two seasons ago.

OUR NEW CUP DEFENDER.

It now looks as if the statement that the new America's cup defender would be launched at a very early date is worthy of credence. In fact, the story is that by the middle of March she will be put overboard and in early April will be ready to go into commission. This done, she will have quite as much time to get into shape as Shamrock III., and while the latter is being towed across the Atlantic the new boat, under the black and red fighting flag of Mr. C. Oliver Iselin, will be in the thickest of the battle, in which Columbia, Constitution and she will be engaged.

Mr. Iselin will probably have as his quarter deck companions the same capable amateurs who sailed with him on the Defender and the Columbia, and these friends are quite as experienced as any in the country in the matter of international matches.

As Lem Miller, the old mate of the Columbia, has now been appointed her skipper, Captain Charley Barr will have as his first officer in the new yacht Chris Christenson, who has sailed with him in all his cup trials and races as second mate. The crew of the new boat will be mostly Scandinavians, many of them having served for seasons with Barr.

"The Bold Soger Boy"

THREE NEW PLAYS

THERE are many fields in the line of work yet unexplored by women, but it is gratifying to see new efforts in these new fields attended with success. As a manager Amelia Bingham has proved herself fully capable. She undertakes to give value received for the money the public pays to enjoy her productions. Her selections are from the best authors, her players are high class and her mounting and costumes leave nothing to be desired. As an actress Miss Bingham is good, but there are still many steps on the ladder of fame before she will reach the top. Clyde Fitch has reached that point in his career as a playwright where he must be careful or there will come a time when his name will not be noticed. He is dangerously near descent, and he will find that his name alone will not draw large houses. In "The Bird In the Cage" Mr. Fitch met a blow from the critics. The play could not be taken seriously, and now he gives us "The Frisky Mrs. Johnson." Much that is good and many bright lines are there, but much, too, is commonplace, and many lines are unnecessarily coarse and vulgar. The first act is almost hopless, and the well wishers of Miss Bingham must have deplored her choice of a vehicle at this point. The second act showed some admirable situations and caused the audience to sit up and wait for something good. It came, and by the time the last curtain fell the verdict was favorable. The cast could not be improved, and each person, almost without exception, played the role assigned without a flaw. The frisky Mrs. Johnson (Miss Bingham) is really the only woman on the stage except her maid who is above reproach. Her "friskiness" makes people talk, but she is "all right." The three other women, real married ladies, are types one would not care to copy, and even the adored little sister, Mrs. Frank Morley (Minnie Dupree), is a fallen angel. To shield this sister Mrs. Johnson assumes guilt which is disclosed to the husband through a letter intended for his wife and which he insists upon seeing. The letter is not addressed, but has been received by Mrs. Morley, and the climax is averted by the accidental entrance of the loving but frisky Mrs. Johnson. It is not hard to believe evil of this unselfish woman, and the sacrifice is made before the erring wife quite grasps the situation. An empty headed idiot, Lord Bertie Heathcote, has been the panacea for ennui used by the young wife while her busy husband is out, and his letter telling her of a new flat he has furnished is the missive which causes the trouble. Jim Morley (Wilton Lackaye) is in love with the gay little widow, and when he hears it all puts on his thinking cap and guesses not far from the truth. The sinning little wife clears the matter up by making a clean breast of the whole and gains the future happiness of her devoted sister. The wronged husband uses tickets for the Canary islands and tells his wife to "go home and get it for desertion." The main idea is as old as Adam, but the handling is where Clyde Fitch shows his skill. He has done so in some places, and then the play rises to a high grade of merit. In others it falls and becomes weak and almost like farce. It is needless to mention individuals, all were so good, if I except Allison Skipworth, but the best in the cast was Ferdinand Gottschalk. As Lord Bertie Heathcote he could not be improved upon. It is amazing how many actors can play the fool well. There are four different kinds of fool in this play, and all were well done. That is a little too much sugar in the coffee.

"The Earl of Pawtucket."

That best of modern playwrights, Augustus Thomas, has given us another very excellent comedy called "The Earl of Pawtucket," and its success at the Madison Square theater is assured. Englishmen as portrayed on the American stage are usually such silly idiots it would appear there are no sensible men in England, and, this being false, it is a pleasure to at last see one who is both sensible and a gentleman. Augustus Thomas wrote his play with Lawrence D'Orsay as his model for Lord Cardington, the earl of Pawtucket, and the actor has only to be himself, and the hit is made. Slow to see our American jokes, the points of all those in the play being directed against himself, many roaringly funny moments are afforded. His determined way of persisting in his use of an alias, which mixes him up in the lender's family affairs and his tangle before he understands it all are side splitting, and one continuous laugh is enjoyed the entire evening. The best criticism of the play as to its intrinsic merit is that when a laugh causes the loss of a line the feeling that something good has been missed is unavoidable. The author is to be congratulated that his work is in the hands of such a capable exponent. Elizabeth Tyree as Harriet Fordyce, the divorced wife of Montgomery Putnam, is very pleasing, and, while for her the opportunity is not as good as her role in "Gretna Green," the play is good, and she will have a success to add to her future, and not a miserable mistake, as was "Gretna Green." Lord Cardington while in a hotel in Paris saves a young lady from fright of fire while both are dressing for dinner. Two months after they meet in a Ferris wheel and are in the same car. The loyal valet, knowing his master's desire to further his acquaintance with the unknown, drops a jackknife into the machinery of the wheel, and it is stopped for twenty-four hours. After another lapse of time they meet in the Waldorf-Astoria, where he is stopping in the hope of learning something of her. He pointed her out in Paris to a friend, who seemed amused, and when told that the earl intended following her to America, but with an alias, suggested his own name, saying that many knew him by name, but he had been away for years and would not be recognized. As Montgomery Putnam, then, this English earl masquerades in America, falling in love and paying court to his borrowed name's divorced wife. She and a young man friend, formerly met in England, are the only ones who know he is not the American, and she, wishing to see the fun out, does not tell either of them whom she really is, as now she uses her maiden name, Harriet Fordyce. When he is forced to assume family troubles and finally pay alimony, the net closes so tightly around him that unraveling is necessary. All ends happily, and the whole is so full of spice, repartee and stolid English stupidity that the audience is dismissed delighted. Senator Barker, played by Robert McWade, and Arthur Weatherbee, by John W. Dean, were lifelike, and the rest of the cast was good. The setting of the palm room in the first act and the Turkish room in the last were miniature copies of the same apartments in the famous hotel.

"The Bold Soger Boy."

Andrew Mack, the sweet singer and fair actor, is again at the Fourteenth Street theater. This time he is playing "The Bold Soger Boy," by Theodore Burt Sayre. There is enough of the Irishman in the character of Gerald Adair to please those who always associate Andrew Mack with such parts, but this young soldier is Desmond Clair from Ireland, who has by his bravery won the position of lieutenant in the regular army of this country, and the scene is laid at Fort Wadsworth, near New York. Some sweet songs are given by the star in his usual agreeable way, with the accompaniment of children and a pretty sweetheart. There are no less than four of these—I mean children, not sweethearts—and two of them are quite bright. The little girl who is made to utter the sentiments on love suitable to a woman is cute and acts well the lovesick girl, who at last wins the man of her heart when she becomes engaged to Gerald Adair. Little Vivian Martin plays this role of Millicent Bassett. Gerald Adair in Wyoming several years before the opening of the play loses heavily at a game of cards with a sharp known as "Honest Isaac" and gets into a quarrel when he discovers that the cards are marked. In the struggle the card sharp is killed by the accidental discharge of his own pistol while he is attempting to kill Desmond Clair. There are no witnesses, but at the moment of the shot a man enters who afterward proves to be an accomplice, and the charge of murder is placed on the young Irishman. Knowing himself defenseless in this strange section of the country, he escapes and gets later into the army under the name of Gerald Adair, and is loved and admired by all. Captain Fitzgerald has a daughter who is loved by Adair, also by a rascal, Captain Thorndyke. Her father is too fond of cards and liquor, and one Van Nahm's unscrupulousness is used by Thorndyke to attain his end, which is to win the girl. Van Nahm is the western witness to Clair's crime, and he has recognized Gerald as the one he saw in Wyoming. At the same time he is a German sort of official who is trying to get the plans of a gun used in America, and such villain helps the other. The garrison knows of the love of their colonel's wife for Adair, while he is ignorant of this, and at a ball given at the house of Colonel Bassett the rascals of the play get the half drunk Captain Fitzgerald to win heavily from them in a card game. Then they show him the marked pack and threaten to disgrace him if he does not sign a paper admitting his cheating and promise never to play again. This is used to win the daughter's consent to wed Thorndyke. Meantime Gerald has seen this German and realized that trouble is brewing for him. Here a young lawyer arrives to turn over a legacy of $8,000 to Fitzgerald left him by his cousin, Gerald Clair's father, if Desmond cannot be found. The old chum recognizes the man and learns his story. Through the attempted robbery of the colonel's desk during his absence and the exposure by Gerald the plans for the gun are saved. "Honest Isaac" is later found to be alive, and the German is exposed as the expert card sharp who caused both troubles. The denouement is happy. Gerald wins Helen Fitzgerald as his wife. The dialogue is crisp and witty, and the situations and curtains are excellent. As a whole the play will please Fourteenth street for as long as it is kept on, but it is a sorry successor to "Tom Moore," in which Andrew Mack delighted audiences two seasons ago.

REBECCA OTTOLENGUI.

New York.

OUR NEW CUP DEFENDER.

It now looks as if the statement that the new America's cup defender would be launched at a very early date is worthy of credence. In fact, the story is that by the middle of March she will be put overboard and in early April will be ready to go into commission. This done, she will have quite as much time to get into shape as Shamrock III., and while the latter is being towed across the Atlantic the new boat, under the black and red fighting flag of Mr. C. Oliver Iselin, will be in the thickest of the battle, in which Columbia, Constitution and she will be engaged.

Mr. Iselin will probably have as his quarter deck companions the same capable amateurs who sailed with him on the Defender and the Columbia, and these friends are quite as experienced as any in the country in the matter of international matches.

As Lem Miller, the old mate of the Columbia, has now been appointed her skipper, Captain Charley Barr will have as his first officer in the new yacht Chris Christenson, who has sailed with him in all his cup trials and races as second mate. The crew of the new boat will be mostly Scandinavians, many of them having served for seasons with Barr.

BARRY A "HAS BEEN."

To those people who know Jimmy Barry, the former bantamweight champion of America, the following article that has been traveling the rounds will appear extremely humorous: "Since 1899 Barry has been making his home in San Francisco and is training in anticipation of a match with some first class bantamweight. He now weighs 122 pounds, and he expects to have no trouble in getting down to 115 pounds with a few weeks' hard work."

The fact is the little fellow is a physical wreck. He is now stopping at Blanken's roadhouse, in the suburbs of San Francisco, and weighs 100 pounds or less.

Fournier, Auto Racing Demon

By Frederick R. Toombs

There is no limit to the speed of automobiles.
Autos will soon go a mile in half a minute.
Manufacturers can make autos of almost any strength and horse power; therefore the speed is "up to the man behind the lever."
—HENRY FOURNIER.

HENRY FOURNIER, the world's champion automobile racer, is determined that no rival competitor for international speeding honors shall seize his laurels, and with the new machine he is now having built in Paris he expects to be able to maintain his supremacy. Fournier directed the drawing of the plans of the new auto, and, to say the least, the machine will be unique. More than anything else it will resemble a gigantic metal cigar on wheels, with the pointed end forward, so as to give it peculiarly effective wind cutting properties, reducing the air resistance to a minimum.

The elongated auto is to be used by the daring Frenchman in the races to be held during the spring and summer, and he will bring it to the United States when in July he comes over to participate in a match contest with Alexander Winton, the noted racer of Cleveland. Winton hopes to defeat Fournier, and rivalry between the two experts is very intense. The race will probably occur on the splendid Empire City trotting track, built by the late W. H. Clark, at Yonkers, N. Y.

One Man Only on Fournier's New Auto.

Fournier's machine is being built of aluminium and steel, and with it he expects to lower to forty seconds the present mark for a mile of forty-six seconds, made near Paris last year by himself. It is a Mors auto and will cost about $12,000. One of the novelties in its construction is the fact that it provides seating room for but a single man. Fournier, therefore, will have no assistant when he endeavors to chop down the seconds. The seat is perched over the rear axle and is so arranged down in the very heart of the controlling apparatus that only the head and shoulders of the occupant will be visible.

"No Limit to Auto Speed."

I had a talk with the Gallic speed demon recently before he returned to Paris, and he spoke enthusiastically of his coming match races and trials against time. In reply to a question he said: "There really is no limit to the future speed of the automobile. I fully expect to see the mile covered in half a minute inside of another year. As for forty seconds—well, I am sure to go a mile that fast before I am four months older. The manufacturers can turn out autos of practically any strength and horsepower; therefore the speed attained is 'up to the man at the lever.'

"I have done the mile in forty-six seconds several times recently," Fournier continued after lighting a cigarette, "and I hold the official record at just a fraction more than that time.

"A Mile In Forty Seconds."

"I have no hesitation in telling you that I have often traveled at the rate of a mile in forty seconds, though not for a long distance.

"So far as the ultimate speed of the auto is concerned I will not undertake to predict." Here Fournier shrugged his shoulders and added, "Only when I am about to die shall I be prepared to admit that I shall not see the world's record lowered still further."

"Record Speed Feels Like Flying."

"How does it feel to run an automobile a mile in forty-six seconds? How do you keep the machine under the necessary perfect control?" I asked the Parisian, who spoke of his sensational exploits in the cool manner of a man discussing the present price of gorgonzola cheese in Rome or the latest methods of exterminating potato bugs.

"It is like flying," replied Fournier. "But as I have never flown, perhaps I am wrong. No railroad train or ice-boat has ever gone at such a terrific pace.

"I suppose if it were possible for a man to sit astride one of the thirteen inch shells they use down at Sandy Hook he would feel as I and my companion did not long ago when we made our record trip. You look straight ahead, intent only on the road that stretches away before, yet somehow your eyes manage to take in the general effect of the country through which you are passing. You are very, very cold from piercing air at so great a speed, and hungry—oh, my, how hungry! I wonder how much it would cost to satisfy the appetite of a gormand after a ride with me.

The Official French Course.

"The machine with which I made the world's record is of seventy-two horsepower, a Mors, with a long wheel base. The run was made on the official trial route between Ablis and St. Arnoult, near Dourdan, about fifty miles from Paris. No better piece of road for the purpose can be found in the world. So smooth, so straight is it that at a distance of four miles you can readily distinguish the slight figure of a man and at the same time see every intervening foot of the thoroughfare. It has been especially prepared by the French auto and government officials and is just as carefully cared for as any horse racing course in America."

Fournier—who spells his first name Henry, not Henri—is very unassuming and possesses the unfailing French courtesy and mobility of features. When you grasp his hand, you find it is as soft as a baby's, and it is hard to realize that this bowing, smiling, soft skinned man standing before you in faultless evening dress is the king of daredevils and premier of chauffeurs, with nerves and muscle when put to the test like unto the fire hardened steel of a battleship's armor plates. All this is Fournier.

With the Gunners.

Trap shooters in many parts of the country are showing considerable activity at present, and there is no doubt that in spite of the prohibition of live bird shooting in some states sport at the traps is not on the wane. After all, there is something unusually fascinating about gunning, and whether in field or forest, at the traps with animate or inanimate targets as the mark, or whether it be in a rifle range, the enthusiast finds pleasure that he would exchange for no other.

There are many persons who would be greatly surprised to hear shooting in its various forms described as one of America's national pastimes, yet such is the case, and few and far between indeed are the cities and towns throughout the length and breadth of the land that do not possess organizations for promoting the interests of rifle and shotgun.

Where Trap Shooting Thrives.

Just now, so far as trap shooting is concerned, the centers of activity appear to be St. Louis, Cincinnati, Kansas City and Philadelphia. In and about the Quaker City the Keystone Shooting league is leading the procession. The league held its annual meeting recently at Holmesburg Junction, and a splendid turnout resulted. During the meeting it developed that last year 16,000 live birds had been trapped as against 21,000 in 1901. The decrease was due, of course, to agitation by the antipigeon shooting fraternity. Letters read to the members by Secretary Van Loon showed widespread opposition to the bill which has been presented to the legislature prohibiting the trapping of live birds. S. J. Hothersal was elected president.

The Cleveland Gun club also held its annual meeting recently and elected F. G. Hogen president, A. M. Allyn secretary and S. C. Payne treasurer.

BEANTOWN MOTOR SHOW.

Boston is to have an automobile show on March 16, to be held under the auspices of the Massachusetts association. Invitations to the exhibition will probably be general.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

Mrs. Mary O. Hahn, No. 3033 Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill., writes: "For two years I have been troubled with biliousness caused by inactivity of the liver. I had dizzy spells at times, pains across my back and a tired, heavy feeling with loss of appetite and nervousness. Our family physician prescribed some liver tablets which certainly did not help me in the least. Apollinaris and other mineral waters, but my complexion became more yellow and my general health worse. Reading one of your little booklets, I decided to give Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin a trial and am so glad I did. One bottle did more for me than ten dollars' worth of other remedies. I knew at once I had the right remedy. I kept taking it for several weeks, when I considered myself completely cured. My skin is white and smooth as a baby's and I feel in excellent health and spirits, thanks to your remedy."

Practical Politics

..By..

WILLIAM H. HINRICHSEN

IV.—Taking a Poll.

THE next work to be taken up is that of taking a census of the voting district in which you live, or making a poll, as it is usually called.

If you have studied thoroughly the preceding lessons, you are well equipped for the work now before you.

A poll is not a mere list of voters, with the party label of each person opposite his name. To be of value to the student and to the organization it must contain practically a full description and history of each voter. No one must be omitted from the list, and the data must be accurate. A single error casts discredit on the poll and makes it almost valueless to the committee.

Taking a poll is regarded as the most important mechanical work of the campaign and should never be intrusted to any but the most reliable persons.

It is possible that the party organization may prefer not to trust the poll of the student, but no objection can be made to his taking it on his own account, and its accuracy can be tested by comparing it with that taken by the regular agent of the committee. If it proves to be all right, it will be used.

You should make careful preparations for taking this poll. Consult the chairman of your committee as to the data he requires and then make a note of every other item of information regarding each voter which you may think will be of any use to you or to the committee.

You should not use the ordinary book furnished by the committee for your field work, but procure a blank book, of a size to be conveniently carried in your pocket, in which to make your first notes, which may be neatly transcribed into the regular poll book.

This book should be large enough to give each voter a page instead of a line, as is customary. This page should contain at the top the name and number or location of the voter. Then should come his occupation, place of business, et cetera; then his politics, religion, nationality, former political affiliations and views on special issues in the campaign. All these, expressed by abbreviations, will take up another line. This will conform to the regular requirements of the committee, but you should not stop there.

You should fill the page assigned to each voter with all the information you can obtain concerning him, most of which can be expressed in abbreviations. The following data should be obtained: Married or single or widower; number of boys and ages; number of girls and ages; number at home; whereabouts of others; if married, to whom; politics of wife's family; relatives of wife or of the voter holding office or public contracts, full account; habits, age and financial condition; if tenant, who is landlord; if employee, who is employer; if employer, how many men. Is he against any one on his ticket? Is he a kicker? What newspaper does he read? Is he ambitious to hold office? Is he enthusiastic or indifferent? Was he a soldier? Does he draw a pension? Does he always vote? Does he ever split his ticket? Does any one control him? Whom does he influence in politics? To what secret societies does he belong? Has he hobbies? And many other things of the kind that will occur to the student in special cases should be noted.

Of course, in the case of a well known man, much of the above may be omitted, but in general it will be found convenient to have all such information regarding every one at hand.

Having prepared your book, you should personally visit every house. If you find no one at home or find no one who can give you the information you desire, note the fact and call again.

Be careful to get the name of every voter in each house and full information concerning him. Be particular to make such inquiries as will elicit the fact of his being a legal voter and make careful note of the fact. If the head of the family is at home, tell him your name and try to get well enough acquainted so that he will remember you, and you must prepare to remember him. Do the same with the members of his family and try to create a good impression upon all. You will, as a rule, find this easy to do.

If any voter living in the house is absent, call on him again or see him at his place of business. Be sure that you personally meet every voter and study his face, form and manner so that you can address him by name whenever you may meet him. Do the same, so far as it is possible, by the members of his family.

You will be asked many political questions, and your previous studies will enable you to answer them correctly and intelligently, and you should always do so.

Pick up, so far as you can, the tastes of his family, for you may be able to gratify them by sending them literature, seeds, etc., which you may be able to obtain. In short, make every effort to get well acquainted and on pleasant terms with every voter and the members of his family.

Make a special list as you go along of all aliens not naturalized, of all boys who will be voters within four years, of all men of the voting age who for any reason are not entitled to the franchise.

Do not attempt to visit too many houses in a day and go over your book frequently so as to fix your information firmly in your mind.

Pay special attention to first voters and endeavor to interest them in the work you are doing. Secure their co-operation if possible.

Make no statements that are not absolutely true and make no promises you cannot fulfill.

While doing this work you may be able to do people small favors, and you should be on the lookout for such opportunities. Your territory may contain people of all conditions. For instance, a family may be looking for a servant, and you learn the fact. Another family may contain a young woman looking for a situation of this kind. It will prove easy to bring them together, and you will confer a favor on each.

A man may have a horse to sell. Another may wish to buy such an animal. You may learn of the desires of each and thus promote a trade, and so on.

Be careful while in this work to avoid all controversies, political or otherwise. Keep your objects in view and steer clear of neighborhood quarrels and factional feuds. Learn to suppress expressions that will give offense and, above all, practice patience and forbearance.

In some places you will meet with rebuffs and discourtesy, and no doubt some people will absolutely refuse to answer your questions. In such cases you will have to get your information from the neighbors, but this will not be necessary very often.

Correcting the Poll.

Having completed your poll, the next step is to revise, correct and transcribe it for use, and in doing this it will be well to put in practice some of the things you have learned so as to produce political results.

You have while making your poll become acquainted with several—perhaps a number of—young men of your own political faith who are interested in politics or in whom you may have succeeded in exciting an interest. Call them together, being sure to include all first voters. State frankly your objects and ask their co-operation. Show them the benefits that will accrue to the people, the party and to themselves, and if you have so far learned your lessons well and make a good presentation of facts you will find most of them ready to join you. You can, if you wish, form a regular 'organization or club. The advisability of this depends upon circumstances.

We will suppose that a dozen are willing to co-operate with you. The first thing to be done is to divide your precinct or district into as many parts as you have helpers, each division to include, if possible, the residence of a helper and to be known as his subdistrict.

He should be directed to make at once a poll, such as you have made, of his subdistrict. Each should be carefully instructed as to his work.

Suppose that the district contains 400 voters. This will give an average of about thirty-four to each subdistrict. The polls of these subdistricts will soon be completed, and they should be carefully compared with the poll you have made. Where they agree it may be taken for granted that they are correct. Where they fail to agree variations should be accounted for.

The poll should then be carefully copied in a book properly ruled for the purpose. No scrap of information should be omitted. A copy should also be made for the committee in the book furnished for the purpose.

It is as well to say at this point that the boundary lines of voting districts or precincts are sometimes changed, and this may occur between the time of completing the poll and election day. In such case you may have to revise your work.

Time of Taking the Poll.

A political party usually makes its poll at a certain fixed period, governed by the election laws of the state.

For instance, if the laws require a man to be a resident of the county ninety days before becoming a voter the poll is taken ninety days before the election, and if a thirty days' residence in the voting district or precinct is required the poll is corrected thirty days before the election.

When a student of politics takes a poll, as shown above, the date is of less importance, provided it be early enough. I would advise making it at least eight months before the election or even a year. It should, of course, be revised and corrected at the usual time of taking the poll.

When the Tenderfoot Was "It."

"Several years ago I was down in the Indian Territory on a trip," said the dancing man, "and some of my friends got up a dance for me. I asked my most particular friend what I should wear. He informed me full dress. I went that way and was the only one at the dance with even a white shirt on and was the target for all the eyes in the hall. Naturally I felt very uncomfortable. The girls, however, were taken with me at once, and any one of them was mine for the asking. In fact, for awhile I forgot there were any other men present. The cowboys stood around like a lot of 'has beens.' I was 'it' for once in my life.

"Eight months later I made a return visit to this little town, eighty miles from a railroad, and happened to strike the place on the eve of a dance by a club that had been formed that season. I received an invitation from my friend and, remembering my previous experience, attended the dance in my traveling clothes. No dress suit again for Willie. To my surprise, when I emerged from the dressing room I found all the men in full dress, and a more evenly balanced lot of dressy fellows I never saw, all being dressed exactly alike. I was the only 'has been' in the hall. I learned that the club had engaged a tailor to come in there and fix them all up correctly."—New York Commercial Advertiser.

DEER IN THE WOODS.

Their Appearance Deceives All but the Old Hunter.

Next to the difficulty of comprehending the wonderful senses of the deer is that of understanding how one looks in the woods. Your ideas are necessarily taken from pictures or from stuffed deer or tame ones in a park. You are almost certain to be looking for a deer, whereas you might better be looking for anything else. In the woods you seldom see half of a deer and generally much less, often only a part of the shoulder, or only an ear over a log or a leg under it, a bit of rump projecting from a bush or a head and bit of the neck reaching up for leaves. The arcade of maple lit up by the scarlet of the ginseng and bush cranberry, the little arbor where the wild hop is yellowing over the thorn apples on which half a dozen ruffed grouse are taking their breakfast, the edge of the pool where the trout flashes through the water over which the chelone is still nodding, or the darksome glade where the golden petals of the witch hazel are closing the floral march of the year would all make lovely frames for that charming artist's deer with individual hairs all glistening, the dark dew-claws shining, and even the split in the hoof flashing artistic light from its edges. But the glittering tines, the proud neck of the sculptured war horse, the shaggy chest and bulging rump with tail full of shining hairs are not there except at long intervals when you may rout an old fool out of bed and get him twisted as to the points of the compass.—T. S. Van Dyke in Outing.

Old Man Voglestein Pays Him a Visit

[Copyright, 1902, by Alfred Gates.]

DER old man Voglestein comes in my shop to see me der odder day vhen I vhas busy putting on a feefteen cent patch for 10 cents.

"Hans," says he after he smokes his pipe a good while, "for twenty long years I haf been thinking about fly screens, und I haf made oop my mind."

"Vhell, how it vhas?" I says.

"I haf made oop my mind dot fly screens vhas two ways—dey keep der flies in, und dey keep der flies out."

I look oop at him und don't smile or say nottings, und for ten minutes he vhas hurt in his feelings. Den he fills oop his pipe und says:

"Hans, do you know der deeference between beer und water?"

"Of course," I says.

"Vhat vhas it?"

"It vhas in der taste."

"I vhill tell you der difference. Three weeks ago six men come to my house

"I HAF BEEN THINKING ABOUT FLY SCREENS."

one eafenings. Dey vhas a committee. Der chairman stands oop in my parlor und says to me:

"'Mr. Voglestein, you vhas a man of brains und honesty und peesness. Dis committee vhas here to ask you to run for aldermans of de Seventeenth ward. If you vhill consent, we shall see dot you vhas elected by 500 majority.'

"Dot vhas a surprise to me, Hans, und for two minutes I can't speak back. Den I pulls myself together und says:

"'Shentlemens, it vhas some awful honors you offer me, und I vhill accept und be your candidate. If I vhas elected, I shall try to make you der best aldermans you ever had.'

"My speech vhas received mit cheers, und I have my wife bring oop a pitcher of ice water. It vhas passed around, und den dot chairman stands oop und says:

"'Vhas dis all, Mr. Voglestein?'

"'Dis vhas all.'

"'No.'

"'Den it gifs me pleasure to inform you dot if you ever run for aldermans of de Seventeenth ward we shall see dot you vhas defeated by fife million majority, und be hanged to you!'

"Mit dot dey all get up und march out, und dot vhas der reason I don't run for aldermans, und dot vhas der deeference between beer und water. Vhat you think of dot, Hans?"

I think a good deal, but I haf a half sole to put on a shoe und don't say nottings. Mr. Voglestein walks around und kicks things oafer und den says:

"Hans, somepody make a fool of me in church der odder Soonday, und I vhas mad about it. I don't go to church pefore for thirty years, und I vhas like some greenhorns. I keep awful still und don't say nottings to nopody, und by und by a man comes along mit a box full of money. Vhen he hands it out to me, I pelief he means dot I shall take a dollar for my wages in coming to church, but I vhas no hog. If I take a quarter, dot vhas enough. Vhen I put it in my pocket, dot man gets red und white und mad, und after church vhas out he comes to me und says:

"'Vhell, of all der blamed old scoundrels I ever saw you take der cake!'

"'How vhas dot?' I says.

"'Why, you steal a quarter from der contribution box of der Lord.'

"'But you pass der box to me.'

"'Of course, but it vhas to put money in instead of taking money out. Gif me back dot quarter or I vhill raise some rows.'

"Vhas I to know how it vhas?" says Mr. Voglestein to me as he pounds on his knee. "If dot man vhants money, vhy don't he say so? If he vhants to pay me, vhy don't he say so? How vhas it dot folks can make some fools of me und not gif me a show?

Und he shumps oop und down und swears for fife minutes und den goes home. M. QUAD.

If Willie Had His Way.

Most things would be about
The same as God has made them; cricks
Would still wind in and out;
The hills would still be steep and green,
The rivers full of crooks;
But he'd of made all women glad
By givin' them good looks.

I'll bet the women would be gay
If pa could have a pull
And make things over so that they
Would all be beautiful,
But if I had a chance to say
What change I'd rather make
I'd have it fixed—ow! Moses!—so
Boys' teeth would never ache.

Mrs. Laura S. Webb,

Vice-President of Women's Democratic Clubs of Northern Ohio.

Mrs. Laura S. Webb.

THERE ARE MANY sickly women between the ages of 45 and 55, but there are very few invalids over 55 and 60 years of age. The change of life coming to a woman near her forty-fourth year, either makes her an invalid or gives her a new lease on life. Those who meet this change in ill health seldom live ten years afterward, while a woman who lays aside the active duties of womanhood in health seldom fails to live on in happiness, years after she has passed 60. This is truly a critical time.

Mrs. Laura S. Webb, of Toledo, Ohio, recognizes the change of life as a dangerous period and she also has faith in Wine of Cardui. She writes:

"As I had always been troubled more or less at the menstrual period, I dreaded the change of life which was fast approaching. While visiting with a friend I noticed that she was taking your Wine of Cardui, and she was so enthusiastic about it that I decided to try a bottle. I experienced some relief the first month, so I kept on taking it for three months and now I menstruate with no pain and I shall take it off and on now until I have passed the climax. I do not dread it now, as I am sure that your Wine of Cardui will be of great benefit at this time."

Wine of Cardui is the remedy to re-inforce a woman against the shock that comes with the change of life. It re-establishes healthy functions after years of suffering. In doing this it has saved thousands of sufferers just in time. Do not wait until suffering is upon you. Thorough preparations should be made in advance. Begin the Wine of Cardui treatment today.

..By..

WILLIAM H. HINRICHSEN

IV.—Taking a Poll.

THE next work to be taken up is that of taking a census of the voting district in which you live, or making a poll, as it is usually called.

If you have studied thoroughly the preceding lessons, you are well equipped for the work now before you.

A poll is not a mere list of voters, with the party label of each person opposite his name. To be of value to the student and to the organization it must contain practically a full description and history of each voter. No one must be omitted from the list, and the data must be accurate. A single error casts discredit on the poll and makes it almost valueless to the committee.

Taking a poll is regarded as the most important mechanical work of the campaign and should never be intrusted to any but the most reliable persons.

It is possible that the party organization may prefer not to trust the poll of the student, but no objection can be made to his taking it on his own account, and its accuracy can be tested by comparing it with that taken by the regular agent of the committee. If it proves to be all right, it will be used.

You should make careful preparations for taking this poll. Consult the chairman of your committee as to the data he requires and then make a note of every other item of information regarding each voter which you may think will be of any use to you or to the committee.

You should not use the ordinary book furnished by the committee for your field work, but procure a blank book, of a size to be conveniently carried in your pocket, in which to make your first notes, which may be neatly transcribed into the regular poll book.

This book should be large enough to give each voter a page instead of a line, as is customary. This page should contain at the top the name and number or location of the voter. Then should come his occupation, place of business, et cetera; then his politics, religion, nationality, former political affiliations and views on special issues in the campaign. All these, expressed by abbreviations, will take up another line. This will conform to the regular requirements of the committee, but you should not stop there.

You should fill the page assigned to each voter with all the information you can obtain concerning him, most of which can be expressed in abbreviations. The following data should be obtained: Married or single or widower; number of boys and ages; number of girls and ages; number at home; whereabouts of others; if married, to whom; politics of wife's family; relatives of wife or of the voter holding office or public contracts, full account; habits, age and financial condition; if tenant, who is landlord; if employee, who is employer; if employer, how many men. Is he against any one on his ticket? Is he a kicker? What newspaper does he read? Is he ambitious to hold office? Is he enthusiastic or indifferent? Was he a soldier? Does he draw a pension? Does he always vote? Does he ever split his ticket? Does any one control him? Whom does he influence in politics? To what secret societies does he belong? Has he hobbies? And many other things of the kind that will occur to the student in special cases should be noted.

Of course, in the case of a well known man, much of the above may be omitted, but in general it will be found convenient to have all such information regarding every one at hand.

Having prepared your book, you should personally visit every house. If you find no one at home or find no one who can give you the information you desire, note the fact and call again.

Be careful to get the name of every voter in each house and full information concerning him. Be particular to make such inquiries as will elicit the fact of his being a legal voter and make careful note of the fact. If the head of the family is at home, tell him your name and try to get well enough acquainted so that he will remember you, and you must prepare to remember him. Do the same with the members of his family and try to create a good impression upon all. You will, as a rule, find this easy to do.

If any voter living in the house is absent, call on him again or see him at his place of business. Be sure that you personally meet every voter and study his face, form and manner so that you can address him by name whenever you may meet him. Do the same, so far as it is possible, by the members of his family.

You will be asked many political questions, and your previous studies will enable you to answer them correctly and intelligently, and you should always do so.

Pick up, so far as you can, the tastes of his family, for you may be able to gratify them by sending them literature, seeds, etc., which you may be able to obtain. In short, make every effort to get well acquainted and on pleasant terms with every voter and the members of his family.

Make a special list as you go along of all aliens not naturalized, of all boys who will be voters within four years, of all men of the voting age who for any reason are not entitled to the franchise.

Do not attempt to visit too many houses in a day and go over your book frequently so as to fix your information firmly in your mind.

Pay special attention to first voters and endeavor to interest them in the work you are doing. Secure their cooperation if possible.

Make no statements that are not absolutely true and make no promises you cannot fulfill.

While doing this work you may be able to do people small favors, and you should be on the lookout for such opportunities. Your territory may contain people of all conditions. For instance, a family may be looking for a servant, and you learn the fact. Another family may contain a young woman looking for a situation of this kind. It will prove easy to bring them together, and you will confer a favor on each.

A man may have a horse to sell. Another may wish to buy such an animal. You may learn of the desires of each and thus promote a trade, and so on.

Be careful while in this work to avoid all controversies, political or otherwise. Keep your objects in view and steer clear of neighborhood quarrels and factional feuds. Learn to suppress expressions that will give offense and, above all, practice patience and forbearance.

In some places you will meet with rebuffs and discourtesy, and no doubt some people will absolutely refuse to answer your questions. In such cases you will have to get your information from the neighbors, but this will not be necessary very often.

Correcting the Poll.

Having completed your poll, the next step is to revise, correct and transcribe it for use, and in doing this it will be well to put in practice some of the things you have learned so as to produce political results.

You have while making your poll become acquainted with several—perhaps a number of—young men of your own political faith who are interested in politics or in whom you may have succeeded in exciting an interest. Call them together, being sure to include all first voters. State frankly your objects and ask their co-operation. Show them the benefits that will accrue to the people, the party and to themselves, and if you have so far learned your lessons well and make a good presentation of facts you will find most of them ready to join you. You can, if you wish, form a regular organization or club. The advisability of this depends upon circumstances.

We will suppose that a dozen are willing to co-operate with you. The first thing to be done is to divide your precinct or district into as many parts as you have helpers, each division to include, if possible, the residence of a helper and to be known as his subdistrict.

He should be directed to make at once a poll, such as you have made, of his subdistrict. Each should be carefully instructed as to his work.

Suppose that the district contains 400 voters. This will give an average of about thirty-four to each subdistrict. The polls of these subdistricts will soon be completed, and they should be carefully compared with the poll you have made. Where they agree it may be taken for granted that they are correct. Where they fail to agree variations should be accounted for.

The poll should then be carefully copied in a book properly ruled for the purpose. No scrap of information should be omitted. A copy should also be made for the committee in the book furnished for the purpose.

It is as well to say at this point that the boundary lines of voting districts or precincts are sometimes changed, and this may occur between the time of completing the poll and election day. In such case you may have to revise your work.

Time of Taking the Poll.

A political party usually makes its poll at a certain fixed period, governed by the election laws of the state.

For instance, if the laws require a man to be a resident of the county ninety days before becoming a voter the poll is taken ninety days before the election, and if a thirty days' residence in the voting district or precinct is required the poll is corrected thirty days before the election.

When a student of politics takes a poll, as shown above, the date is of less importance, provided it be early enough. I would advise making it at least eight months before the election or even a year. It should, of course, be revised and corrected at the usual time of taking the poll.

When the Tenderfoot Was "It."

"Several years ago I was down in the Indian Territory on a trip," said the dancing man, "and some of my friends got up a dance for me. I asked my most particular friend what I should wear. He informed me full dress. I went that way and was the only one at the dance with even a white shirt on and was the target for all the eyes in the hall. Naturally I felt very uncomfortable. The girls, however, were taken with me at once, and any one of them was mine for the asking. In fact, for awhile I forgot there were any other men present. The cowboys stood around like a lot of 'has beens.' I was 'it' for once in my life.

"Eight months later I made a return visit to this little town, eighty miles from a railroad, and happened to strike the place on the eve of a dance by a club that had been formed that season. I received an invitation from my friend and, remembering my previous experience, attended the dance in my traveling clothes. No dress suit again for Willie. To my surprise, when I emerged from the dressing room I found all the men in full dress, and a more evenly balanced lot of dressy fellows I never saw, all being dressed exactly alike. I was the only 'has been' in the hall. I learned that the club had engaged a tailor to come in there and fix them all up correctly."—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Old Man Voglestein Pays Him a Visit

[Copyright, 1902, by Alfred Gates.]

DER old man Voglestein comes in my shop to see me der odder day vhen I vhas busy putting on a feefteen cent patch for 10 cents.

"Hans," says he after he smokes his pipe a good while, "for twenty long years I haf been thinking about fly screens, und I haf made oop my mind."

"Vhell, how it vhas?" I says.

"I haf made oop my mind dot fly screens vhas two ways—dey keep der flies in, und dey keep der flies out."

I look oop at him und don't smile or say nottings, und for ten minutes he vhas hurt in his feelings. Den he fills oop his pipe und says:

"Hans, do you know der deeference between beer und water?"

"Of course," I says.

"Vhat vhas it?"

"It vhas in der taste."

"I vhill tell you der difference. Three weeks ago six men come to my house

one eafenings. Dey vhas a committee. Der chairman stands oop in my parlor und says to me:

"'Mr. Voglestein, you vhas a man of brains und honesty und peesness. Dis committee vhas here to ask you to run for aldermans of de Seventeenth ward. If you vhill consent, we shall see dot you vhas elected by 500 majority.'

"Dot vhas a surprise to me, Hans, und for two minutes I can't speak back. Den I pulls myself together und says:

"'Shentlemens, it vhas some awful honors you offer me, und I vhill accept und be your candidate. If I vhas elected, I shall try to make you der best aldermans you ever had.'

"My speech vhas received mit cheers, und I have my wife bring oop a pitcher of ice water. It vhas passed around, und den dot chairman stands oop und says:

"'Vhas dis all, Mr. Voglestein?'

"'Dis vhas all.'

"'No.'

"'Den it gifs me pleasure to inform you dot if you ever run for aldermans of de Seventeenth ward we shall see dot you vhas defeated by fife million majority, und be hanged to you!'

"Mit dot dey all get up und march out, und dot vhas der reason I don't run for aldermans, und dot vhas der deeference between beer und water. Vhat you think of dot, Hans?"

I think a good deal, but I haf a half sole to put on a shoe und don't say nottings. Mr. Voglestein walks around und kicks things oafer und den says:

"Hans, somepody make a fool of me in church der odder Soonday, und I vhas mad about it. I don't go to church pefore for thirty years, und I vhas like some greenhorns. I keep awful still und don't say nottings to nopody, und by und by a man comes along mit a box full of money. Vhen he hands it out to me, I pellef he means dot I shall take a dollar for my wages in coming to church, but I vhas no hog. If I take a quarter, dot vhas enough. Vhen I put it in my pocket, dot man gets red und white und mad, und after church vhas out he comes to me und says:

"'Vhell, of all der blamed old scoundrels I ever saw you take der cake!'

"'How vhas dot?' I says.

"'Why, you steal a quarter from der contribution box of der Lord.'

"'Of course, but it vhas to put money in instead of taking money out. Gif me back dot quarter or I vhill raise some rows.'

"Vhas I to know how it vhas?" says Mr. Voglestein to me as he pounds on his knee. "If dot man vhants money, vhy don't he say so? If he vhants to pay me, vhy don't he say so? How vhas it dot folks can make some fools of me und not gif me a show?

Und he shumps oop und down und swears for fife minutes und den goes home. M. QUAD.

DEER IN THE WOODS.

Next to the difficulty of comprehending the wonderful senses of the deer is that of understanding how one looks in the woods. Your ideas are necessarily taken from pictures or from stuffed deer or tame ones in a park. You are almost certain to be looking for a deer, whereas you might better be looking for anything else. In the woods you seldom see half of a deer and generally much less, often only a part of the shoulder, or only an ear over a log or a leg under it, a bit of rump projecting from a bush or a head and bit of the neck reaching up for leaves. The arcade of maple lit up by the scarlet of the ginseng and bush cranberry, the little arbor where the wild hop is yellowing over the thorn apples on which half a dozen ruffed grouse are taking their breakfast, the edge of the pool where the trout flashes through the water over which the chelone is still nodding, or the darksome glade where the golden petals of the witch hazel are closing the floral march of the year would all make lovely frames for that charming artist's deer with individual hairs all glistening, the dark dewclaws shining, and even the split in the hoof flashing artistic light from its edges. But the glittering tines, the proud neck of the sculptured war horse, the shaggy chest and bulging rump with tail full of shining hairs are not there except at long intervals when you may rout an old fool out of bed and get him twisted as to the points of the compass.—T. S. Van Dyke in Outing.

If Willie Had His Way.

Most things would be about
The same as God has made them; cricks
Would still wind in and out;
The hills would still be steep and green,
The rivers full of crooks;
But he'd of made all women glad
By givin' them good looks.

I'll bet the women would be gay
If pa could have a pull
And make things over so that they
Would all be beautiful,
But if I had a chance to say
What change I'd rather make
I'd have it fixed—ow! Moses!—so
Boys' teeth would never ache.

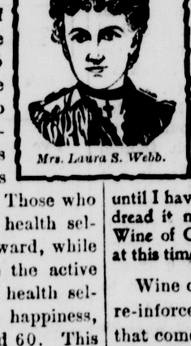
Mrs. Laura S. Webb,

Vice-President of Women's Democratic Clubs of Northern Ohio.



Mrs. Laura S. Webb.

THERE ARE MANY sickly women between the ages of 45 and 55, but there are very few invalids over 55 and 60 years of age. The change of life coming to a woman near her forty-fourth year, either makes her an invalid or gives her a new lease on life. Those who meet this change in ill health seldom live ten years afterward, while a woman who lays aside the active duties of womanhood in health seldom fails to live on in happiness, years after she has passed 60. This is truly a critical time.

Mrs. Laura S. Webb, of Toledo, Ohio, recognizes the change of life as a dangerous period and she also has faith in Wine of Cardui. She writes:

"As I had always been troubled more or less at the menstrual period, I dreaded the change of life which was fast approaching. While visiting with a friend I noticed that she was taking your Wine of Cardui, and she was so enthusiastic about it that I decided to try a bottle. I experienced some relief the first month, so I kept on taking it for three months and now I menstruate with no pain and I shall take it off and on now until I have passed the climax. I do not dread it now, as I am sure that your Wine of Cardui will be of great benefit at this time."

Wine of Cardui is the remedy to re-inforce a woman against the shock that comes with the change of life. It re-establishes healthy functions after years of suffering. In doing this it has saved thousands of sufferers just in time. Do not wait until suffering is upon you. Thorough preparations should be made in advance. Begin the Wine of Cardui treatment today.

Practical Politics

..By..
WILLIAM H. HINRICHSEN

IV.—Taking a Poll.

THE next work to be taken up is that of taking a census of the voting district in which you live, or making a poll, as it is usually called.

If you have studied thoroughly the preceding lessons, you are well equipped for the work now before you.

A poll is not a mere list of voters, with the party label of each person opposite his name. To be of value to the student and to the organization it must contain practically a full description and history of each voter. No one must be omitted from the list, and the data must be accurate. A single error casts discredit on the poll and makes it almost valueless to the committee.

Taking a poll is regarded as the most important mechanical work of the campaign and should never be intrusted to any but the most reliable persons.

It is possible that the party organization may prefer not to trust the poll of the student, but no objection can be made to his taking it on his own account, and its accuracy can be tested by comparing it with that taken by the regular agent of the committee. If it proves to be all right, it will be used.

You should make careful preparations for taking this poll. Consult the chairman of your committee as to the data he requires and then make a note of every other item of information regarding each voter which you may think will be of any use to you or to the committee.

You should not use the ordinary book furnished by the committee for your field work, but procure a blank book, of a size to be conveniently carried in your pocket, in which to make your first notes, which may be neatly transcribed into the regular poll book.

This book should be large enough to give each voter a page instead of a line, as is customary. This page should contain at the top the name and number or location of the voter. Then should come his occupation, place of business, et cetera; then his politics, religion, nationality, former political affiliations and views on special issues in the campaign. All these, expressed by abbreviations, will take up another line. This will conform to the regular requirements of the committee, but you should not stop there.

You should fill the page assigned to each voter with all the information you can obtain concerning him, most of which can be expressed in abbreviations. The following data should be obtained: Married or single or widower; number of boys and ages; number of girls and ages; number at home; whereabouts of others; if married, to whom; politics of wife's family; relatives of wife or of the voter holding office or public contracts, full account; habits, age and financial condition; if tenant, who is landlord; if employee, who is employer; if employer, how many men. Is he against any one on his ticket? Is he a kicker? What newspaper does he read? Is he ambitious to hold office? Is he enthusiastic or indifferent? Was he a soldier? Does he draw a pension? Does he always vote? Does he ever split his ticket? Does any one control him? Whom does he influence in politics? To what secret societies does he belong? Has he hobbies? And many other things of the kind that will occur to the student in special cases should be noted.

Of course, in the case of a well known man, much of the above may be omitted, but in general it will be found convenient to have all such information regarding every one at hand.

Having prepared your book, you should personally visit every house. If you find no one at home or find no one who can give you the information you desire, note the fact and call again.

Be careful to get the name of every voter in each house and full information concerning him. Be particular to make such inquiries as will elicit the fact of his being a legal voter and make careful note of the fact. If the head of the family is at home, tell him your name and try to get well enough acquainted so that he will remember you, and you must prepare to remember him. Do the same with the members of his family and try to create a good impression upon all. You will, as a rule, find this easy to do.

If any voter living in the house is absent, call on him again or see him at his place of business. Be sure that you personally meet every voter and study his face, form and manner so that you can address him by name whenever you may meet him. Do the same, so far as it is possible, by the members of his family.

You will be asked many political questions, and your previous studies will enable you to answer them correctly and intelligently, and you should always do so.

Pick up, so far as you can, the tastes of his family, for you may be able to gratify them by sending them literature, seeds, etc., which you may be able to obtain. In short, make every effort to get well acquainted and on pleasant terms with every voter and the members of his family.

Make a special list as you go along of all aliens not naturalized, of all boys who will be voters within four years, of all men of the voting age who for any reason are not entitled to the franchise.

Do not attempt to visit too many houses in a day and go over your book frequently so as to fix your information firmly in your mind.

Pay special attention to first voters and endeavor to interest them in the work you are doing. Secure their cooperation if possible.

Make no statements that are not absolutely true and make no promises you cannot fulfill.

While doing this work you may be able to do people small favors, and you should be on the lookout for such opportunities. Your territory may contain people of all conditions. For instance, a family may be looking for a servant, and you learn the fact. Another family may contain a young woman looking for a situation of this kind. It will prove easy to bring them together, and you will confer a favor on each.

A man may have a horse to sell. Another may wish to buy such an animal. You may learn of the desires of each and thus promote a trade, and so on.

Be careful while in this work to avoid all controversies, political or otherwise. Keep your objects in view and steer clear of neighborhood quarrels and factional feuds. Learn to suppress expressions that will give offense and, above all, practice patience and forbearance.

In some places you will meet with rebuffs and discourtesy, and no doubt some people will absolutely refuse to answer your questions. In such cases you will have to get your information from the neighbors, but this will not be necessary very often.

Correcting the Poll.

Having completed your poll, the next step is to revise, correct and transcribe it for use, and in doing this it will be well to put in practice some of the things you have learned so as to produce political results.

You have while making your poll become acquainted with several—perhaps a number of—young men of your own political faith who are interested in politics or in whom you may have succeeded in exciting an interest. Call them together, being sure to include all first voters. State frankly your objects and ask their co-operation. Show them the benefits that will accrue to the people, the party and to themselves, and if you have so far learned your lessons well and make a good presentation of facts you will find most of them ready to join you. You can, if you wish, form a regular organization or club. The advisability of this depends upon circumstances.

We will suppose that a dozen are willing to co-operate with you. The first thing to be done is to divide your precinct or district into as many parts as you have helpers, each division to include, if possible, the residence of a helper and to be known as his subdistrict.

He should be directed to make at once a poll, such as you have made, of his subdistrict. Each should be carefully instructed as to his work.

Suppose that the district contains 400 voters. This will give an average of about thirty-four to each subdistrict. The polls of these subdistricts will soon be completed, and they should be carefully compared with the poll you have made. Where they agree it may be taken for granted that they are correct. Where they fail to agree variations should be accounted for.

The poll should then be carefully copied in a book properly ruled for the purpose. No scrap of information should be omitted. A copy should also be made for the committee in the book furnished for the purpose.

It is as well to say at this point that the boundary lines of voting districts or precincts are sometimes changed, and this may occur between the time of completing the poll and election day. In such case you may have to revise your work.

Time of Taking the Poll.

A political party usually makes its poll at a certain fixed period, governed by the election laws of the state.

For instance, if the laws require a man to be a resident of the county ninety days before becoming a voter the poll is taken ninety days before the election, and if a thirty days' residence in the voting district or precinct is required the poll is corrected thirty days before the election.

When a student of politics takes a poll, as shown above, the date is of less importance, provided it be early enough. I would advise making it at least eight months before the election or even a year. It should, of course, be revised and corrected at the usual time of taking the poll.

When the Tenderfoot Was "It."

"Several years ago I was down in the Indian Territory on a trip," said the dancing man, "and some of my friends got up a dance for me. I asked my most particular friend what I should wear. He informed me full dress. I went that way and was the only one at the dance with even a white shirt on and was the target for all the eyes in the hall. Naturally I felt very uncomfortable. The girls, however, were taken with me at once, and any one of them was mine for the asking. In fact, for awhile I forgot there were any other men present. The cowboys stood around like a lot of 'has beens.' I was 'it' for once in my life.

"Eight months later I made a return visit to this little town, eighty miles from a railroad, and happened to strike the place on the eve of a dance by a club that had been formed that season. I received an invitation from my friend and, remembering my previous experience, attended the dance in my traveling clothes. No dress suit again for Willie. To my surprise, when I emerged from the dressing room I found all the men in full dress, and a more evenly balanced lot of dressy fellows I never saw, all being dressed exactly alike. I was the only 'has been' in the hall. I learned that the club had engaged a tailor to come in there and fix them all up correctly."—New York Commercial Advertiser.

DEER IN THE WOODS.

Next to the difficulty of comprehending the wonderful senses of the deer is that of understanding how one looks in the woods. Your ideas are necessarily taken from pictures or from stuffed deer or tame ones in a park. You are almost certain to be looking for a deer, whereas you might better be looking for anything else. In the woods you seldom see half of a deer and generally much less, often only a part of the shoulder, or only an ear over a log or a leg under it, a bit of rump projecting from a bush or a head and bit of the neck reaching up for leaves. The arcade of maple lit up by the scarlet of the ginseng and bush cranberry, the little arbor where the wild hop is yellowing over the thorn apples on which half a dozen ruffed grouse are taking their breakfast, the edge of the pool where the trout flashes through the water over which the chelone is still nodding, or the darksome glade where the golden petals of the witch hazel are closing the floral march of the year would all make lovely frames for that charming artist's deer with individual hairs all glistening, the dark dewclaws shining, and even the split in the hoof flashing artistic light from its edges. But the glittering tines, the proud neck of the sculptured war horse, the shaggy chest and bulging rump with tail full of shining hairs are not there except at long intervals when you may rout an old fool out of bed and get him twisted as to the points of the compass.—T. S. Van Dyke in Outing.

Old Man Voglestein Pays Him a Visit

[Copyright, 1902, by Alfred Gates.]

DER old man Voglestein comes in my shop to see me der odder day vhen I vhas busy putting on a feefteen cent patch for 10 cents.

"Haus," says he after he smokes his pipe a good while, "for twenty long years I haf been thinking about fly screens, und I haf made oop my mind."

"Vhell, how it vhas?" I says.

"I haf made oop my mind dot fly screens vhas two ways—dey keep der flies in, und dey keep der flies out."

I look oop at him und don't smile or say nottings, und for ten minutes he vhas hurt in his feelings. Den he fills oop his pipe und says:

"Haus, do you know der deeference between beer und water?"

"Of course," I says.

"Vhat vhas it?"

"It vhas in der taste."

"I vhill tell you der difference. Three weeks ago six men come to my house

one eafenings. Dey vhas a committee. Der chairman stands oop in my parlor und says to me:

"'Mr. Voglestein, you vhas a man of brains und honesty und peesness. Dis committee vhas here to ask you to run for aldermans of de Seventeenth ward. If you vhill consent, we shall see dot you vhas elected by 500 majority.'

"Dot vhas a surprise to me, Hans, und for two minutes I can't speak back. Den I pulls myself together und says:

"'Shentlemens, it vhas some awful honors you offer me, und I vhill accept und be your candidate. If I vhas elected, I shall try to make you der best aldermans you ever had.'

"My speech vhas received mit cheers, und I have my wife bring oop a pitcher of ice water. It vhas passed around, und den dot chairman stands oop und says:

"'Vhas dis all, Mr. Voglestein?'

"'Dis vhas all.'

"'No.'

"'Den it gifs me pleasure to inform you dot if you ever run for aldermans of de Seventeenth ward we shall see dot you vhas defeated by fife million majority, und be hanged to you!'

"Mit dot dey all get up und march out, und dot vhas der reason I don't run for aldermans, und dot vhas der deeference between beer und water. Vhat you think of dot, Hans?"

I think a good deal, but I haf a half sole to put on a shoe und don't say nottings. Mr. Voglestein walks around und kicks things oafer und den says:

"Hans, somepody make a fool of me in church der odder Soonday, und I vhas mad about it. I don't go to church pefore for thirty years, und I vhas like some greenhorns. I keep awful still und don't say nottings to nopody, und by und by a man comes along mit a box full of money. Vhen he hands it out to me, I pellef he means dot I shall take a dollar for my wages in coming to church, but I vhas no hog. If I take a quarter, dot vhas enough. Vhen I put it in my pocket, dot man gets red und white und mad, und after church vhas out he comes to me und says:

"'Vhell, of all der blamed old scoundrels I ever saw you take der cake!'

"'How vhas dot?' I says.

"'Why, you steal a quarter from der contribution box of der Lord.'

"'Of course, but it vhas to put money in instead of taking money out. Gif me back dot quarter or I vhill raise some rows.'

"Vhas I to know how it vhas?" says Mr. Voglestein to me as he pounds on his knee. "If dot man vhants money, vhy don't he say so? If he vhants to pay me, vhy don't he say so? How vhas it dot folks can make some fools of me und not gif me a show?

If Willie Had His Way.

Most things would be about
The same as God has made them; cricks
Would still wind in and out;
The hills would still be steep and green,
The rivers full of crooks;
But he'd of made all women glad
By givin' them good looks.

I'll bet the women would be gay
If pa could have a pull
And make things over so that they
Would all be beautiful,
But if I had a chance to say
What change I'd rather make
I'd have it fixed—ow! Moses!—so
Boys' teeth would never ache.

Mrs. Laura S. Webb,

Vice-President of Women's Democratic Clubs of Northern Ohio.

Mrs. Laura S. Webb.

THERE ARE MANY sickly women between the ages of 45 and 55, but there are very few invalids over 55 and 60 years of age. The change of life coming to a woman near her forty-fourth year, either makes her an invalid or gives her a new lease on life. Those who meet this change in ill health seldom live ten years afterward, while a woman who lays aside the active duties of womanhood in health seldom fails to live on in happiness, years after she has passed 60. This is truly a critical time.

Mrs. Laura S. Webb, of Toledo, Ohio, recognizes the change of life as a dangerous period and she also has faith in Wine of Cardui. She writes:

"As I had always been troubled more or less at the menstrual period, I dreaded the change of life which was fast approaching. While visiting with a friend I noticed that she was taking your Wine of Cardui, and she was so enthusiastic about it that I decided to try a bottle. I experienced some relief the first month, so I kept on taking it for three months and now I menstruate with no pain and I shall take it off and on now until I have passed the climax. I do not dread it now, as I am sure that your Wine of Cardui will be of great benefit at this time."

Wine of Cardui is the remedy to re-inforce a woman against the shock that comes with the change of life. It re-establishes healthy functions after years of suffering. In doing this it has saved thousands of sufferers just in time. Do not wait until suffering is upon you. Thorough preparations should be made in advance. Begin the Wine of Cardui treatment today.

Butting Into Society

From "Letters From a Self Made Merchant to His Son," by George Horace Lorimer. By permission of Small, Maynard & Co., Publishers, Boston

I never see a fellow trying to crawl or to buy his way into society that I don't think of my old friend, Hank Smith, and his wife Kate—Kate Botts she was before he married her—and how they tried to butt their way through the upper crust.

Hank and I were boys together in Missouri, and he stayed along in the old town after I left. I heard of him on and off as tending store a little and farming a little and loafing a good deal. Then I forgot all about him until one day a few years ago when he turned up in the papers as Captain Henry Smith, the Klondike gold king, just back from Circle City with a million in dust and anything you please in claims. There's never any limit to what a miner may be worth in those, except his imagination.

I was a little puzzled when a week later my office boy brought me a card reading Colonel Henry Augustus Bottes-Smythe, but I supposed it was some distinguished foreigner who had come to size me up so that he could round out his roast on Chicago in his new book, and I told the boy to show the colonel in.

I've got a pretty good memory for faces, and I'd bought too much store plug of Hank in my time not to know him, even with a clean shave and a plug hat. Some men dry up with success, but it was just spouting out of Hank. Told me he'd made his pile and that he was tired of living on the slag heap; that he'd spent his whole life where money hardly whispered, let alone talked, and he was going now where it would shout. Wanted to know what was the use of being a nob if a fellow wasn't the nobbiest sort of a nob. Said he'd bought a house on Beacon Hill, in Boston, and that if I'd prick up my ears occasionally I'd hear something drop into the Back Bay. Handed me his new card four times and explained that it was the rawest sort of dog to carry a brace of names in your card holster; that it gave you the drop on the swells every time and that they just had to throw up both hands and pass you the pot when you showed down. Said that Botts was old English for Botts and that Smythe was new American for Smith; the Augustus was just a fancy touch, a sort of high card kicker.

I didn't explain to Hank, because it was congratulations and not explanations that he wanted, and I make it a point to show a customer the line of goods that he's looking for. And I never heard the full particulars of his experiences in the east, though from what I learned afterward Hank struck Boston with a bang all right.

He located his claim on Beacon Hill between a Mayflower descendant and a Declaration signer's great-grandson, breeds which believe that when the Lord made them he was through and that the rest of us just happened. And he hadn't been in town two hours before he started in to make improvements. There was a high wrought iron railing in front of his house, and he had that gilded first thing, because, as he said, he wasn't running a receiving vault and he didn't want any mistakes. Then he bought a nice open barouche, had the wheels painted red, hired a nigger coachman and started out in style to be sociable and get acquainted. Left his card all the way down one side of Beacon street and then drove back, leaving it on the other. Everywhere he stopped he found that the whole family was out. Kept it up a week, on and off, but didn't seem to have any luck. Thought that the men must be hot sports and the women great gadders to keep on the jump so much. Allowed that they were the liveliest little lot of fleas that he had ever chased. Decided to quit trying to nail 'em one at a time and planned out something that he reckoned would round up the whole bunch.

Hank sent out a thousand invitations to his grand opening, as he called it; left one at every house within a mile. Had a brass band on the front steps and fireworks on the roof. Ordered forty kegs from the brewery and hired a fancy mixer to sling together mild snorts, as he called them, for the ladies. They tell me that when the band got to going good on the steps and the fireworks on the roof even Beacon street looked out the windows to see what was doing. There must have been 10,000 people in the street and not a soul but Hank and his wife and the mixer in the house. Some one yelled "Speech!" and then the whole crowd took it up, till Hank came out on the steps. He shut off the band with one hand and stopped the fireworks with the other. Said that speechmaking wasn't his strangle hold; that he'd been living on snowballs in the Klondike for so long that his gas pipe was frozen, but that this welcome started the ice, and he thought about three fingers of the plumber's favorite prescription would cut out the frost. Would the crowd join him? He had invited a few friends in for the evening, but there seemed to be some misunderstanding about the date, and he hated to have the good stuff curdle on his hands.

While this was going on the Mayflower descendant was telephoning for the police from one side and the signer's great-grandson from the other, and just as the crowd yelled and broke for the house two patrol wagons full of policemen got there. But they had to turn in a riot call and bring out the reserves before they could break up Hank's little Boston tea party.

After all, Hank did what he started out to do with his party—rounded up all his neighbors in a bunch, though not exactly according to schedule. For next morning there were so many descendants and great-grandsons in the police court to prefer charges that it looked like a reunion of the pilgrim fathers. The judge fined Hank on sixteen counts and bound him over to keep the peace for a hundred years. That afternoon he left for the west on a special, because the limited didn't get there quick enough. But before going he tacked on the front door of his house a sign which read:

Neighbors paying their party calls will please not heave rocks through windows to attract attention. Not in and not going to be. Gone back to Circle City for a little quiet. Yours truly,

HANK SMITH.

N. B.—Too swift for your uncle.

Hank dropped by my office for a minute on his way to Frisco. Said he liked things lively, but there was altogether too much roughhouse on Beacon Hill for him. Judged that as the crowd which wasn't invited was so blamed sociable, the one which was invited would have stayed a week if it hadn't slipped up on the date. That might be the Boston idea, but he wanted a little more refinement in his. Said he was a pretty free spender and would hold his end up, but he hated a hog. Of course I told Hank that Boston wasn't all that it was cracked up to be in the school histories and that Circle City wasn't so tough as it read in the newspapers, for there was no way of making him understand that he might have lived in Boston for a hundred years without being invited to a strawberry sociable. Because a fellow cuts ice on the arctic circle it doesn't follow that he's going to be worth beans on the Back Bay.

THE TRAVELS OF COLUMBUS.

Dr. Pierce's GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY Restores LOST FLESH AND STRENGTH

"I was a total wreck—could not sleep or eat," writes Mr. J. C. Beers, of Berryman, Crawford Co., Mo. "For two years I tried medicine from doctors but received very little benefit. I lost flesh and strength, was not able to do a good day's work. I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and when I had taken one bottle I could sleep and my appetite was wonderfully improved. I have taken five bottles and am still improving."

The sole motive for substitution is to permit the dealer to make the little more profit paid by the sale of less meritorious medicines. He gains; you lose. Therefore, accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery."

WHEN YOU TALK

Have Something to Say, Say It, Then Stop

From "Letters From a Self Made Merchant to His Son," by George Horace Lorimer

Dear Pierrepont—Yours of the 4th has the right ring, and it says more to the number of words used than any letter that I have ever received from you. I remember reading once that some fellows use language to conceal thought, but it's been my experience that a good many more use it instead of thought.

A business man's conversation should be regulated by fewer and simpler rules than any other function of the human animal. They are:

Have something to say.

Say it.

Stop talking.

Beginning before you know what you want to say and keeping on after you have said it lands a merchant in a lawsuit or the poorhouse, and the first is a short cut to the second. I maintain a legal department here, and it costs a lot of money, but it's to keep me from going to law.

It's all right when you are calling on a girl or talking with friends after dinner to run a conversation like a Sunday school excursion, with stops to pick flowers, but in the office your sentences should be the shortest distance possible between periods. Cut out the introduction and the peroration and stop before you get to secondly. You've got to preach short sermons to catch sinners, and deacons won't believe they need long ones themselves. Give fools the first and women the last word. The meat's always in the middle of the sandwich. Of course a little butter on either side of it doesn't do any harm if it's intended for a man who likes butter.

Remember, too, that it's easier to look wise than to talk wisdom. Say less than the other fellow and listen more than you talk, for when a man's listening he isn't telling on himself and he's flattering the fellow who is. Give most men a good listener and most women enough note paper and they'll tell all they know.

THE FOOL ROOSTER

He's Always Crowing, but It's the Hen That Lays the Egg

I've heard a good deal in my time about the foolishness of hens, but when it comes to right down, plum foolishness give me a rooster every time. He's always strutting and stretching and crowing and bragging about things with which he had nothing to do. When the sun rises, you'd think that he was making all the light instead of all the noise. When the farmer's wife throws the scraps in the henyard, he crows as if he was the provider for the whole farmyard and was asking a blessing on the food. When he meets another rooster, he crows, and when the other rooster licks him he crows. And so he keeps it up straight through the day. He even wakes up during the night and crows a little on general principles. But when you hear from a hen she's laid an egg, and she don't make a great deal of noise about it either.—From "Letters From a Self Made Merchant to His Son," by George Horace Lorimer.

Butting Into Society

From "Letters From a Self Made Merchant to His Son," by George Horace Lorimer. By permission of Small, Maynard & Co., Publishers, Boston

I never see a fellow trying to crawl or to buy his way into society that I don't think of my old friend, Hank Smith, and his wife Kate—Kate Botts she was before he married her—and how they tried to butt their way through the upper crust.

Hank and I were boys together in Missouri, and he stayed along in the old town after I left. I heard of him on and off as tending store a little and farming a little and loafing a good deal. Then I forgot all about him until one day a few years ago when he turned up in the papers as Captain Henry Smith, the Klondike gold king, just back from Circle City with a million in dust and anything you please in claims. There's never any limit to what a miner may be worth in those, except his imagination.

I was a little puzzled when a week later my office boy brought me a card reading Colonel Henry Augustus Bottes-Smythe, but I supposed it was some distinguished foreigner who had come to size me up so that he could round out his roast on Chicago in his new book, and I told the boy to show the colonel in.

I've got a pretty good memory for faces, and I'd bought too much store plug of Hank in my time not to know him, even with a clean shave and a plug hat. Some men dry up with success, but it was just spouting out of Hank. Told me he'd made his pile and that he was tired of living on the slag heap; that he'd spent his whole life where money hardly whispered, let alone talked, and he was going now where it would shout. Wanted to know what was the use of being a nob if a fellow wasn't the nobbiest sort of a nob. Said he'd bought a house on Beacon Hill, in Boston, and that if I'd prick up my ears occasionally I'd hear something drop into the Back Bay. Handed me his new card four times and explained that it was the rawest sort of dog to carry a brace of names in your card holster; that it gave you the drop on the swells every time and that they just had to throw up both hands and pass you the pot when you showed down. Said that Botts was old English for Botts and that Smythe was new American for Smith; the Augustus was just a fancy touch, a sort of high card kicker.

I didn't explain to Hank, because it was congratulations and not explanations that he wanted, and I make it a point to show a customer the line of goods that he's looking for. And I never heard the full particulars of his experiences in the east, though from what I learned afterward Hank struck Boston with a bang all right.

He located his claim on Beacon Hill between a Mayflower descendant and a Declaration signer's great-grandson, breeds which believe that when the Lord made them he was through and that the rest of us just happened. And he hadn't been in town two hours before he started in to make improvements. There was a high wrought iron railing in front of his house, and he had that gilded first thing, because, as he said, he wasn't running a receiving vault and he didn't want any mistakes. Then he bought a nice open barouche, had the wheels painted red, hired a nigger coachman and started out in style to be sociable and get acquainted. Left his card all the way down one side of Beacon street and then drove back, leaving it on the other. Everywhere he stopped he found that the whole family was out. Kept it up a week, on and off, but didn't seem to have any luck. Thought that the men must be hot sports and the women great gadders to keep on the jump so much. Allowed that they were the liveliest little lot of fleas that he had ever chased. Decided to quit trying to nail 'em one at a time and planned out something that he reckoned would round up the whole bunch.

Hank sent out a thousand invitations to his grand opening, as he called it; left one at every house within a mile. Had a brass band on the front steps and fireworks on the roof. Ordered forty kegs from the brewery and hired a fancy mixer to sling together mild snorts, as he called them, for the ladies. They tell me that when the band got to going good on the steps and the fireworks on the roof even Beacon street looked out the windows to see what was doing. There must have been 10,000 people in the street and not a soul but Hank and his wife and the mixer in the house. Some one yelled "Speech!" and then the whole crowd took it up, till Hank came out on the steps. He shut off the band with one hand and stopped the fireworks with the other. Said that speechmaking wasn't his strangle hold; that he'd been living on snowballs in the Klondike for so long that his gas pipe was frozen, but that this welcome started the ice, and he thought about three fingers of the plumber's favorite prescription would cut out the frost. Would the crowd join him? He had invited a few friends in for the evening, but there seemed to be some misunderstanding about the date, and he hated to have the good stuff curdle on his hands.

While this was going on the Mayflower descendant was telephoning for the police from one side and the signer's great-grandson from the other, and just as the crowd yelled and broke for the house two patrol wagons full of policemen got there. But they had to turn in a riot call and bring out the reserves before they could break up Hank's little Boston tea party.

After all, Hank did what he started out to do with his party—rounded up all his neighbors in a bunch, though not exactly according to schedule. For next morning there were so many descendants and great-grandsons in the police court to prefer charges that it looked like a reunion of the pilgrim fathers. The judge fined Hank on sixteen counts and bound him over to keep the peace for a hundred years. That afternoon he left for the west on a special, because the limited didn't get there quick enough. But before going he tacked on the front door of his house a sign which read:

Neighbors paying their party calls will please not heave rocks through windows to attract attention. Not in and not going to be. Gone back to Circle City for a little quiet. Yours truly,

HANK SMITH.

N. B.—Too swift for your uncle.

Hank dropped by my office for a minute on his way to Frisco. Said he liked things lively, but there was altogether too much roughhouse on Beacon Hill for him. Judged that as the crowd which wasn't invited was so blamed sociable, the one which was invited would have stayed a week if it hadn't slipped up on the date. That might be the Boston idea, but he wanted a little more refinement in his. Said he was a pretty free spender and would hold his end up, but he hated a hog. Of course I told Hank that Boston wasn't all that it was cracked up to be in the school histories and that Circle City wasn't so tough as it read in the newspapers, for there was no way of making him understand that he might have lived in Boston for a hundred years without being invited to a strawberry sociable. Because a fellow cuts ice on the arctic circle it doesn't follow that he's going to be worth beans on the Back Bay.

"I was a total wreck—could not sleep or eat," writes Mr. J. C. Beers, of Berryman, Crawford Co., Mo. "For two years I tried medicine from doctors but received very little benefit. I lost flesh and strength, was not able to do a good day's work. I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and when I had taken one bottle I could sleep and my appetite was wonderfully improved. I have taken five bottles and am still improving."

The sole motive for substitution is to permit the dealer to make the little more profit paid by the sale of less meritorious medicines. He gains; you lose. Therefore, accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery."

WHEN YOU TALK

Have Something to Say, Say It, Then Stop

From "Letters From a Self Made Merchant to His Son," by George Horace Lorimer

Dear Pierrepont—Yours of the 4th has the right ring, and it says more to the number of words used than any letter that I have ever received from you. I remember reading once that some fellows use language to conceal thought, but it's been my experience that a good many more use it instead of thought.

A business man's conversation should be regulated by fewer and simpler rules than any other function of the human animal. They are:

Have something to say.

Say it.

Stop talking.

Beginning before you know what you want to say and keeping on after you have said it lands a merchant in a lawsuit or the poorhouse, and the first is a short cut to the second. I maintain a legal department here, and it costs a lot of money, but it's to keep me from going to law.

It's all right when you are calling on a girl or talking with friends after dinner to run a conversation like a Sunday school excursion, with stops to pick flowers, but in the office your sentences should be the shortest distance possible between periods. Cut out the introduction and the peroration and stop before you get to secondly. You've got to preach short sermons to catch sinners, and deacons won't believe they need long ones themselves. Give fools the first and women the last word. The meat's always in the middle of the sandwich. Of course a little butter on either side of it doesn't do any harm if it's intended for a man who likes butter.

Remember, too, that it's easier to look wise than to talk wisdom. Say less than the other fellow and listen more than you talk, for when a man's listening he isn't telling on himself and he's flattering the fellow who is. Give most men a good listener and most women enough note paper and they'll tell all they know.

THE FOOL ROOSTER

He's Always Crowing, but It's the Hen That Lays the Egg

I've heard a good deal in my time about the foolishness of hens, but when it comes to right down, plum foolishness give me a rooster every time. He's always strutting and stretching and crowing and bragging about things with which he had nothing to do. When the sun rises, you'd think that he was making all the light instead of all the noise. When the farmer's wife throws the scraps in the henyard, he crows as if he was the provider for the whole farmyard and was asking a blessing on the food. When he meets another rooster, he crows, and when the other rooster licks him he crows. And so he keeps it up straight through the day. He even wakes up during the night and crows a little on general principles. But when you hear from a hen she's laid an egg, and she don't make a great deal of noise about it either.—From "Letters From a Self Made Merchant to His Son," by George Horace Lorimer.

Butting Into Society

From "Letters From a Self Made Merchant to His Son," by George Horace Lorimer. By permission of Small, Maynard & Co., Publishers, Boston

I never see a fellow trying to crawl or to buy his way into society that I don't think of my old friend, Hank Smith, and his wife Kate—Kate Botts she was before he married her—and how they tried to butt their way through the upper crust.

Hank and I were boys together in Missouri, and he stayed along in the old town after I left. I heard of him on and off as tending store a little and farming a little and loafing a good deal. Then I forgot all about him until one day a few years ago when he turned up in the papers as Captain Henry Smith, the Klondike gold king, just back from Circle City with a million in dust and anything you please in claims. There's never any limit to what a miner may be worth in those, except his imagination.

I was a little puzzled when a week later my office boy brought me a card reading Colonel Henry Augustus Bottes-Smythe, but I supposed it was some distinguished foreigner who had come to size me up so that he could round out his roast on Chicago in his new book, and I told the boy to show the colonel in.

I've got a pretty good memory for faces, and I'd bought too much store plug of Hank in my time not to know him, even with a clean shave and a plug hat. Some men dry up with success, but it was just spouting out of Hank. Told me he'd made his pile and that he was tired of living on the slag heap; that he'd spent his whole life where money hardly whispered, let alone talked, and he was going now where it would shout. Wanted to know what was the use of being a nob if a fellow wasn't the nobbiest sort of a nob. Said he'd bought a house on Beacon Hill, in Boston, and that if I'd prick up my ears occasionally I'd hear something drop into the Back Bay. Handed me his new card four times and explained that it was the rawest sort of dog to carry a brace of names in your card holster; that it gave you the drop on the swells every time and that they just had to throw up both hands and pass you the pot when you showed down. Said that Botts was old English for Botts and that Smythe was new American for Smith; the Augustus was just a fancy touch, a sort of high card kicker.

I didn't explain to Hank, because it was congratulations and not explanations that he wanted, and I make it a point to show a customer the line of goods that he's looking for. And I never heard the full particulars of his experiences in the east, though from what I learned afterward Hank struck Boston with a bang all right.

He located his claim on Beacon Hill between a Mayflower descendant and a Declaration signer's great-grandson, breeds which believe that when the Lord made them he was through and that the rest of us just happened. And he hadn't been in town two hours before he started in to make improvements. There was a high wrought iron railing in front of his house, and he had that gilded first thing, because, as he said, he wasn't running a receiving vault and he didn't want any mistakes. Then he bought a nice open barouche, had the wheels painted red, hired a nigger coachman and started out in style to be sociable and get acquainted. Left his card all the way down one side of Beacon street and then drove back, leaving it on the other. Everywhere he stopped he found that the whole family was out. Kept it up a week, on and off, but didn't seem to have any luck. Thought that the men must be hot sports and the women great gadders to keep on the jump so much. Allowed that they were the liveliest little lot of fleas that he had ever chased. Decided to quit trying to nail 'em one at a time and planned out something that he reckoned would round up the whole bunch.

Hank sent out a thousand invitations to his grand opening, as he called it; left one at every house within a mile. Had a brass band on the front steps and fireworks on the roof. Ordered forty kegs from the brewery and hired a fancy mixer to sling together mild snorts, as he called them, for the ladies. They tell me that when the band got to going good on the steps and the fireworks on the roof even Beacon street looked out the windows to see what was doing. There must have been 10,000 people in the street and not a soul but Hank and his wife and the mixer in the house. Some one yelled "Speech!" and then the whole crowd took it up, till Hank came out on the steps. He shut off the band with one hand and stopped the fireworks with the other. Said that speechmaking wasn't his strangle hold; that he'd been living on snowballs in the Klondike for so long that his gas pipe was frozen, but that this welcome started the ice, and he thought about three fingers of the plumber's favorite prescription would cut out the frost. Would the crowd join him? He had invited a few friends in for the evening, but there seemed to be some misunderstanding about the date, and he hated to have the good stuff curdle on his hands.

While this was going on the Mayflower descendant was telephoning for the police from one side and the signer's great-grandson from the other, and just as the crowd yelled and broke for the house two patrol wagons full of policemen got there. But they had to turn in a riot call and bring out the reserves before they could break up Hank's little Boston tea party.

After all, Hank did what he started out to do with his party—rounded up all his neighbors in a bunch, though not exactly according to schedule. For next morning there were so many descendants and great-grandsons in the police court to prefer charges that it looked like a reunion of the pilgrim fathers. The judge fined Hank on sixteen counts and bound him over to keep the peace for a hundred years. That afternoon he left for the west on a special, because the limited didn't get there quick enough. But before going he tacked on the front door of his house a sign which read:

Neighbors paying their party calls will please not heave rocks through windows to attract attention. Not in, and not going to be. Gone back to Circle City for a little quiet. Yours truly,

HANK SMITH.

N. B.—Too swift for your uncle.

Hank dropped by my office for a minute on his way to Frisco. Said he liked things lively, but there was altogether too much roughhouse on Beacon Hill for him. Judged that as the crowd which wasn't invited was so blamed sociable, the one which was invited would have stayed a week if it hadn't slipped up on the date. That might be the Boston idea, but he wanted a little more refinement in his. Said he was a pretty free spender and would hold his end up, but he hated a hog. Of course I told Hank that Boston wasn't all that it was cracked up to be in the school histories and that Circle City wasn't so tough as it read in the newspapers, for there was no way of making him understand that he might have lived in Boston for a hundred years without being invited to a strawberry sociable. Because a fellow cuts ice on the arctic circle it doesn't follow that he's going to be worth beans on the Back Bay.

"I was a total wreck—could not sleep or eat," writes Mr. J. C. Beers, of Berryman, Crawford Co., Mo. "For two years I tried medicine from doctors but received very little benefit. I lost flesh and strength, was not able to do a good day's work. I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and when I had taken one bottle I could sleep and my appetite was wonderfully improved. I have taken five bottles and am still improving."

The sole motive for substitution is to permit the dealer to make the little more profit paid by the sale of less meritorious medicines. He gains; you lose. Therefore, accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery."

WHEN YOU TALK

Have Something to Say, Say It, Then Stop

From "Letters From a Self Made Merchant to His Son," by George Horace Lorimer

Dear Pierrepont—Yours of the 4th has the right ring, and it says more to the number of words used than any letter that I have ever received from you. I remember reading once that some fellows use language to conceal thought, but it's been my experience that a good many more use it instead of thought.

A business man's conversation should be regulated by fewer and simpler rules than any other function of the human animal. They are:

Have something to say.

Say it.

Stop talking.

Beginning before you know what you want to say and keeping on after you have said it lands a merchant in a lawsuit or the poorhouse, and the first is a short cut to the second. I maintain a legal department here, and it costs a lot of money, but it's to keep me from going to law.

It's all right when you are calling on a girl or talking with friends after dinner to run a conversation like a Sunday school excursion, with stops to pick flowers, but in the office your sentences should be the shortest distance possible between periods. Cut out the introduction and the peroration and stop before you get to secondly. You've got to preach short sermons to catch sinners, and deacons won't believe they need long ones themselves. Give fools the first and women the last word. The meat's always in the middle of the sandwich. Of course a little butter on either side of it doesn't do any harm if it's intended for a man who likes butter.

Remember, too, that it's easier to look wise than to talk wisdom. Say less than the other fellow and listen more than you talk, for when a man's listening he isn't telling on himself and he's flattering the fellow who is. Give most men a good listener and most women enough note paper and they'll tell all they know.

THE FOOL ROOSTER

He's Always Crowing, but It's the Hen That Lays the Egg

I've heard a good deal in my time about the foolishness of hens, but when it comes to right down, plum foolishness give me a rooster every time. He's always strutting and stretching and crowing and bragging about things with which he had nothing to do. When the sun rises, you'd think that he was making all the light instead of all the noise. When the farmer's wife throws the scraps in the henyard, he crows as if he was the provider for the whole farmyard and was asking a blessing on the food. When he meets another rooster, he crows, and when the other rooster licks him he crows. And so he keeps it up straight through the day. He even wakes up during the night and crows a little on general principles. But when you hear from a hen she's laid an egg, and she don't make a great deal of noise about it either.—From "Letters From a Self Made Merchant to His Son," by George Horace Lorimer.

CAR CREW IS ACCUSED OF ROBBING AGED MAN

COMPELLED BY THREATS TO GIVE UP CASH

Alfred Burrows, aged 61, a well known brick layer, who has been a resident of this city for the past 14 years, and who during that period has made numerous friends and proved himself to be an honorable and upright man, has made information at police headquarters of an alleged robbery committed on last Wednesday evening between the hours of 9 and 10 o'clock, while he was riding to his home in the East End on a street car. Mr. Burrows lives on Dry Run, in the East End, with his daughter, Mrs. Heckathorn. A News Review reporter saw him there today and he related the following story:

"You can see by my general appearance that I am a man of advanced age. I am not the man I once was and it is due to my failing in strength that the story which I am about to tell you is not different. I am a brick layer by trade and as strong a union man as lives. Last Wednesday evening I was not feeling well, but had been informed that a meeting of my union was to be held and decided to go down town and attend. I was at the meeting and paid my monthly dues. At its conclusion I walked down to Second street with several of my friends and when a car came along I bade them good night and stepped aboard.

"Usually I carry but a small amount of money in my pockets. I generally try to have loose change when I get on a street car, and thought I had a dime when I got on at this particular time, but when the conductor came for my fare I reached for the dime and discovered that it was a penny. I then reached for a leather wallet in my inside vest pocket and took from it a $5 bill. This I handed to the conductor and he gave me my change.

"Instead of replacing the change in my wallet I put it into my trousers pocket and thought nothing of the transaction. There were quite a number on the car when I was seated, but they dropped off at intervals all along

INTEREST GROWS FROM DAY TO DAY

OVER 20,000 VOTES CAST

The close of the first week of the News Review's organized labor coupon contest has shown that a wonderful interest has been taken in it from the start, and that this interest has been increasing from day to day. When the count was made for the announcement of the vote today more than 20,000 had been cast, and there are thousands of the "series A" ballots yet in the hands of the contestants and their friends.

The number of actual workers for the contestants is increasing every day. Every night they carry on the work of gathering up the coupons, which are to be filled out and voted for their favorite. These workers are inspired by friendship or the ties of close kinship with the contestants. "Save your coupons for me" is an expression heard on all sides.

The coupons are being saved in nearly every home in the city and even in the neighboring towns the interest is general and the coupons are being stored up. The two out-of-town candidates so far announced have received quite a large vote. There is not the slightest feeling of animosity between the contestants in spite of the fact that there is considerable rivalry, and the friendly feeling promises to exist throughout.

That the News Review is the popular paper of this city and neighborhood is clearly shown by the wide interest taken in its voting contest. Commendations of its plan to give two people of the city connected with organized labor pleasant summer trips can be heard on every side.

The contest is open to all who can comply with the conditions printed upon another page, and those who wish to contest can enter at any time. Save the coupons from each and every paper and vote early and often.

This is the way the votes stand:

That there is something more than mere talk for speculative purposes behind the Lake & River road is clearly proved by the fact that Cleveland banks have underwritten bonds of the French railway lines for about $2,000,000. It is said that about $3,000,000 of Cleveland money will be invested in this road, and it is expected that it will be applied at once towards constructing the road from Sandusky toward the Ohio river. Rights of way are now being secured along that route.

"The line is to proceed from Sandusky Harbor southward through Ohio to East Liverpool, and then on to Beaver, where connection will be made with the Pittsburg & Lake Erie for the desired entrance into Pittsburg. This will at once put the French lines in position to handle lake and river coal, and also ore from the lakes to the furnaces of the Mahoning valley and the Pittsburg district.

"After the line from Sandusky to Beaver has been completed plans will be made to connect up the French lines east and west with the Nickel Plate and the Pitfsburg & Lake Erie, thus forming another road from Pittsburg to Chicago. It is said this will not interfere in any way with the existing contract between the Pittsburg & Lake Erie and the Erie railroad."

THE BOAT SUNK AND CREW DROWNED

A Collision in the Fog on the Delaware River Costs Five Lives.

Philadelphia, March 21.—(Special.)—The tug Pilot was sunk by the steamer Winifred in the Delaware river today, five members of the crew were drowned.

Fog was the cause of the collision.

Engine Was Moving Slowly Or He Would Probably Have Been Killed.

Orville McKinnon, a potter living in the East End, was seriously injured yesterday evening about 5 o'clock by being hit with a freight train near the Globe pottery. The freight was just leaving the switch and was proceeding slowly, which probably accounts for the fact that he was not killed.

McKinnon came near being struck by the passenger train going east and compelled the train to stop to get him off the track. The whistle was blown repeatedly, but he failed to hear it. As soon as the passenger train was past him, McKinnon again stepped on the track, but was caught in a few moments by the freight and thrown in the air. He landed to one side of the track and a number of bystanders rushed to him and carried him into the office of the Globe pottery. The patrol wagon was summoned and McKinnon was taken to the office of Dr. Marshall, where an examination revealed the fact that he was not seriously inured. The patrol wagon then took him to his home in Dixonville, ust beyond the city limits. When he left the patrol he was able to walk into the house with the assistance of two friends. It is thought he will be out again as usual in a few days.

NOTICE IS SERVED UPON THE RAILROAD

C. & P. Agrees to Suspend Work on the City's West End Property.

Mayor Davidson has served notice on the C. & P. railroad that all work on the two unnamed alleys and Washington street in the west end of the city must cease until it is determined whether or not the railroad company is encroaching upon city property.

City Engineer Kelly, on behalf of the mayor, made a communication by telephone to Engineer of Maintenance of Way Wood, Wellsville. Engineer Wood stated that the work would be ordered stopped at once, but it is doubtful whether this will be done. It is the usual rule of railroad companies to go ahead with such work and listen to orders afterward. Then the location of the two unnamed alleys is so obscure that an officer in serving an injunction would need the services of the engineer in determining if the railroad company had been encroaching upon a city highway.

There is some doubt as to the authority of the mayor to take action upon an injunction from the common pleas court.

STRIKE COMMISSION REPORT PUBLISHED

Washington, March 21.—(Special)—The report of the anthrocite coal strike commission made public today, recommends a general increase in wages of ten per cent and some decreases of time; fixes the mirimum wage and sliding scales; suggests settlement of all disputes by arbitration; provides against discrimination by either operators or miners on account of membership or nonmembership in unions, and provides awards made shall continue in force until March 31, 1906.

The commission declined to make an award in the matter of recognition of the union.

Lisbon Democratic Ticket.

Deep Interest in Politics.

Salineville, March 21.—(Special.)—Interest concerning the county primaries is the all-absorbing topic in Salineville. The prosecutor fight is being watched with interest. Both candidates have an organization here and are working hard.

THE LATEST LIFE ELIXIR

Sometimes He May Survive After the Heart Has Ceased to Beat—Dr. Crile Writes of His Series of Experiments.

Cleveland, March 21.—The application of Dr. George W. Crile's discovery of adrenalin as a modern "elixir of life," is attracting wide attention in the east, where it is believed it will be the means of saving the lives of countless persons who die from what is known as "heart failure."

This phase of the situation has not been discussed up to the present time by physicians and surgeons of this city, but according to eastern newspapers there is every possibility that Dr. Crile's discovery may be applied to cover cases of this character.

The announcement of Dr. Crile's discovery was made some weeks ago when it was shown that he had successfully experimented on dogs, and had kept a dog that had been decapitated, alive for ten hours and thirty minutes by injecting systematically solutions of adrenalin into the veins of the animal. It was contended at this time that what could be accomplished with a dog could be accomplished with a human being, and that the discovery meant that in the future, surgeons would be able to deal effectively with cases of surgical shock, suffocation, and shock by electricity. It was stated that practically the only case that could not be successfully treated would be where tissues were either diseased or destroyed.

The discovery renewed the discussion regarding the spark of human life. "Is a man dead when the heart ceases to beat?" was a most pertinent question asked of a number of physicians. In each case they replied that in view of Dr. Crile's experiments indicated that in some cases the spark of life must be present in the body even after the heart had ceased to beat. This, they said, was especially true in cases where death had apparently come as the result of suffocation or from electrical or surgical shock.

In the east, the newspapers have gone a step farther. They have obtained statements which couple Dr. Crile's discovery with that of Dr. Sajous, of Philadelphia. The latter made the startling statement that a person need never be ill if he kept the pituitary body in its normal condition. He pointed out that elixir of life was in certain ductless glands just above the kidneys, and that so long as these performed their functions properly, such things as tuberculosis, heart disease, etc., would be out of the question. It was further intimated that Dr. Crile's discovery, together with that of Dr. Sajous, meant that in time, death could only come through a destruction of tissue. It was also declared that Drs. Crile and Sajous were the successors of Dr. Brown-Sequard, of Paris, who startled the world a few years ago with his announcement that he had discovered the elixir of life. This discovery failed to come up to expectations, but it is believed that Dr. Crile and Dr. Sajous have been working on the same general principle.

"In shock the essential phenomenon is a diminution of the blood pressure. Since there are no demonstrable lesions (or burstings of the sac) in fatal cases, and no later effects in those that recover, we will assume exhaustion, rather than structural lesions, to be the cause of this fall in vitality.

"It must, then, be an exhaustion of the cardiac muscle, of the cardiac centers, of the blood vessels, of the vasomotor system, those sympathetic nerves which are spread out over the vital organs and have so much to do with the heart and the stomach and 'the way we feel.' Their center is, of course, the medulla oblongata, that little part of the spinal cord above the cord proper leading to and connecting it with the brain.

"The heart cannot be at fault, for the heart as an organ it noted for the large amount of labor it can perform without fatigue. In shock, on account of the diminished blood pressure, there is even less work for the heart muscle to do than in the normal state. In a series of experiments after the animal had been reduced to a degree of shock presumably fatal, the blood pressure was, by special means, raised much higher than normal. The heart then performed its normal function. There was then no material fatigue of the heart muscle."

BRUTAL ASSAULT BY THREE MEN

Refusal to Sell Liquor to Another the Supposed Cause of Attack.

Lisbon, March 21. — (Special.) — William Geller, a bartender at the East End saloon, in this town, was brutally assaulted by three men last night and badly used up. One of his assailants was since arrested and the extent of Geller's injuries are not known, but a large pool of blood in the street at the scene of the fracas indicates that it was a vicious affair.

The story is that Tommy Griffith is the man who committed the assault and that he had two companions, Eddie Garwood and Frank Downer. Geller seems to have offended Griffith by refusing to sell him whisky when intoxicated. One of these occasions was said to have been but yesterday afternoon and last night Griffith and his companions laid in wait for Geller at North Beaver street. They were seen during the evening at the electric light plant and later were seen going up the street in a shadow near the place of assault. They met Geller and asked him why he wouldn't sell them anything. Then he struck Geller, who fell in a heap in the street and his assailants are said to have jumped on him and kicked him. When they thought they had inflicted severe enough punishment Griffith and his companions started to leave the scene when Geller drew a revolver and fired.

Griffith picked up a couple of brick bats and started with the avowed intention of finishing his victim, when Mack Reed happened along and restrained him. The four men left. Neighbors were aroused by the altercation. Geller's condition is not regarded as serious this morning, although he was badly cut and bruised, especially about the head and face.

MAYOR DOES NOT PROPOSE TO ACT AS THE JUDGE

The Railroad, if Working Sunday, Does So on Its Own Responsibility.

Application has been made to Mayor Davidson by the C. & P. contractors for permission to work tomorrow on the railroad bridge that spans Dry Run in the East End. The recent high water got in behind the stone retaining walls and the entire structure is threatened with collapse unless the damage is repaired before heavy rains set in. The contractors have had a large force of men doing this repair work for a number of days, but it is impossible for them to get the bridge in shape to withstand the elements before the arrival of Sunday.

The law is very stringent against doing work of this nature on Sunday unless absolutely necessary. Mayor Davidson does not propose to be the judge on this point, although he will not interfere with the work, believing it to be necessary. The contractors must take the responsibility.

Last Sunday a resident of the East End made complaint about Sunday work on railroad construction.

THE DATE FIXED

Wheeling, March 21.—A man in the employ of the Wheeling Traction company as a minor official made the statement in Bridgeport last night that the company would start April 1 on the construction of the St. Clairsville line. They operate from Wheeling Creek to Pasco under the name of the Wheeling and Western and so far they have never announced what route they would take from Pasco to the county seat.

A party of surveyors have been at work on the survey for several days and the man who made the statement quoted above said they were getting ready to commence work. It is pretty generally believed that they will go via Barton rather than over the route of the National pike over the Big hill. Barton people will petition the county commissioners to give them the new right of way.

AN INTERESTING FIGHT FOR TROLLEY FRANCHISE OVER IN HANCOCK COUNTY

County Court Hears the Rival Applicants and Refuses to Sanction the Plans of Either.

In refusing to grant a charter to either of the applying concerns for an electric railway to Congo the county court at New Cumberland yesterday deprived the residents of the county of one of the greatest improvements that could be added to the neighboring district.

Propositions galore have been made to the county by different projecting companies and in all preceding cases the action taken was in substance the same as that of yesterday, differing only in the fact that the former applications upon being turned down were responded to with an explanation. Those who applied yesterday were all of East Liverpool, C. A. Smith and J. E. McDonald, representing a company, wanted a franchise from Chester to Congo, and Joseph G. Lee and W. E. Wells, representing another company of capitalists, asked for a franchise from a point opposite the west end of Fourth street, this city, to the land known as the Newell tract.

This latter application it can be seen was for but little more than a mile. Both applications were unceremoniously rejected.

The Smith and McDonald people agreed to furnish a bona fide bond securing the building of the road within 18 months and the application was made without asking for an exclusive grant. They expressed themselves as being favorable to a competing line, and were willing to construct the line along any route that might be designed by the court. Why this proposition was rejected can be accounted for only by conjecture. The attorneys for the applicants asked for a reason for the refusal, but no answer was made. In like manner the Lee and Wells application was refused. They also wanted some reason, but the court evaded answering, and both combinations were compelled to return home without the knowledge of where they had fallen short.

FUND FOR MRS. LAIRD IS AGAIN INCREASED

Substantial Donations Received Swell the Total to $279, With More to Come.

A substantial boost was given the fund for Mrs. Neil Laird today and the total amount now reaches $279.40. The cash contributions reported since last published are as follows:

Cash	$ 1 00
Old end K., T. & K. pottery employes	3 25
Standard pottery employes	19 50

It is expected that tonight the total will reach nearly or quite $300, as several potteries have not yet reported anything where it was said that money would be raised.

AACCINATION WAR ON

Superintendent Charged With Permitting Pupils to Attend School Who Ignored Health Law.

Warren, March 21.—Superintendent of Schools W. L. Macowan appeared before Magistrate Meacham yesterday to answer a charge preferred by anti-vaccipationists of permitting Howard Trusler, a high school student to attend school without holding a certificate of vaccination. The vaccination question has been before the public for several months and considerable bad feeling has been engendered by a strict construction of the law on the part of the board of education.

This was a test case and every point was bitterly contested. T. L. Hampson represented the prosecution and D. L. Ball and W. E. Rice the defendant. The decision of the magistrate was reserved until tonight, but an appeal will be taken no matter what the decision may be.

Fell Dead While Laughing.

Upper Sandusky, March 21.—Nicholas Kettle and his son-in-law, Henry Thomas, were setting fence posts. While they were working they laughed and joked. Without warning Thomas fell over dead in the midst of a laugh. He had never been troubled with any heart affection.

A YOUNG MAN'S HALLUCINATIONS

HIS CASE A VERY SAD ONE

Barney Carr, a well known young potter, has been causing his friends and the police no end of uneasiness in the past few days owing to his queer actions and it is feared that unless he is taken into custody some harm will befall him. Since the first of the year the young man has been showing signs of insanity, and the dread malady has been growing worse of late.

Young Carr has a hallucination that he is a brakeman and has been spending a great deal of time along the railroad track. Every time a freight train passes he runs along beside the cars, catching at the steps as if trying to climb aboard. After the train has passed he pursues the caboose for quite a distance. Some of the freight trains travel through the city at a high rate of speed and the hallucination is likely to cause fatal results.

An officer came across him late in the night a short time ago and asked him why he did not go to bed. "I must go," he replied, "for I have to take out my run in the morning." Several small boys have been teasing him, a dangerous undertaking, with his mind in its present condition. It is stated that he threatened to strike with bricks two lads who had been tormenting him.

Carr was sent to the infirmary about two weeks ago by the township trustees, but was released from that institution the early part of this week. Upon his return to this city he told that he had been confined in the Lisbon jail and had made his escape by assaulting the turnkey with a poker. Bloodhounds that were placed upon his trail were killed after a desperate encounter. Since his return he has been roaming about the street and his friends have noticed that his condition has grown steadily worse. Carr was a popular young fellow before seized with this mental derangement and his friends will probably ask that he be taken into custody before some harm comes to him. It is thought that a few months of the proper sort of treatment would cure the malady whereas if he is permitted to run at large he may become a complete maniac.

WITH THE WORKMEN IN THE CLAY PLANTS

SCARCITY OF HOUSES.

The situation in Salineville concerning homes for the workmen is not improving, says the Salineville Banner. As soon as the building season opens up it is thought that many new dwellings will be erected. Local contractors have closed but few contracts yet, but say that conditions warrant the belief that many new homes will be built this summer, providing water can be placed on the new additions. Grandview would rapidly build up if lot owners were supplied with city water, but they do not care to take the risk of erecting a dwelling on the hill if no guarantee can be given that water will be supplied. Exactly the same conditions exist in the Ottumwa addition and unless water is placed to the convenience of prospective users but little building will be done. Not a single day passes that some one does not inquire about a dwelling and on every hand can be heard the one complaint, why don't some one build homes for the incoming workmen. The situation has assumed a serious aspect and unless some one comes to the relief the town cannot go forward as it should.

PEORIA NOTES.

Peoria, March 21.—The pottery here is running along about the same, the clay hands loafing half time on account of the slip house. Almost every day there is a new crew that don't understand the work and we believe the firm would make out better if they would try and get an experienced hand to take hold of the clay making.

Rob Mitchell is also working out his notice to take charge of the dipping and placing at Monmouth, Ill.

Joe Kutch, the other printer, is putting in his time printing and running the tinting machine.

W. W. Rhoads, for seven years secretary of local No. 27, is a candidate for alderman on the Republican ticket and we wish him success.

CARROLLTON NOTES.

The contract for the lumber work on the Carrollton plant was to be let yesterday, but the successful bidder could not be learned. Charles Albright, of Sebring, one of the promoters of the plant, was at Carrollton to see what progress had been made on the building. Fifteen men are now employed on the work and this number will be doubled within a short time. The five kilns have been marked out and the bricklayers are to commence work Monday. The Carrollton Brick company is to furnish the brick to be used in the building work and 60 carloads, or 400,000, will be required. A certificate of incorporation has been filed in Delaware for the Carrollton Pottery company, the capital stock being $125.000.

TWO KILNS DRAWN.

Two bisque kilns have been drawn at the Derry plant and it is expected to be in full swing by the first of May. The dippers will start to work next Tuesday and John Boulton, who is to have charge of this department, will report for work on the 24th. It is expected to draw the first glost kiln about the first of April. A. L. Young, who is to be the art director of the plant, has been hard at work on the preliminary measures necessary to get his department in operation, although he still has some time to spare before he will have the ware to work on. He is now engaging operatives from among the best in the business and will go to Derry again soon to consult with the owners.

THREE REINSTATED.

Packers' local No. 25 held another interesting and important meeting last night. The matter of clearing up the present difficulty among the packers and the adoption of the piece scale is one of grave moment and is occupying the attention of nearly every member. The delegates from the local to the Trades and Labor Council reported that the council had referred the matter to the grievance committee, to report at the next meeting. Three members were reinstated last night and two were obligated.

NO. 9'S MEETING.

The proposition to take stock in the co-operative store was acted upon favorably last evening by Kilnmen's local No. 9. Three shares of $10 each were taken, this being the limit for any individual or local. The kilnmen had a very interesting meeting, and it was well attended. This is the fourth local to subscribe to the co-operative stock.

MR. NEAL ILL.

Thomas Neal, president of No. 9, and one of the leading contestants in the News Review's organized labor coupon contest, was taken suddenly ill last night with an attack of grip. His condition is not regarded as serious, but he will be compelled to remain indoors for several days.

AMONG THE WORKMEN.

Sam Leighton, the dishmaker, has returned to the Dresden.

A new jigger, to be used for the present on nut bowls, has been installed at the Dresden.

D. F. Bowman, engineer at the Oliver, Sebring, has returned from a three weeks' visit in Indiana cities.

Frank Pumphrey has resigned as night watchman at the Salineville plant and James Robbins has succeeded him.

Owing to repairs that are being made to the kilns at the Sebring eight jiggermen have been laid off until Monday.

Fred Pennington, the well known packer, has the offer of the shed at Crooksville, but it is not likely that he will accept.

Thomas Manypenny, jiggerman at the Sebring, was called to Wellsville a few days ago by the serious illness of his father, Alexander Manypenny.

Harry Farmer, packer at McNicol's, who has been in ill-health for some time, has taken a situation at Akron, in the hope that the change will benefit him.

Isaac Phillips, engineer at the Salineville plant, has been off duty the past week owing to the illness of two of his sisters, and John Burgett has been running his engine.

PAINFULLY INJURED AT A SERENADE

Father of a Young Groom Victim of An Exploding Shot Gun.

Salem, March 21.—While inspecting the progress of a "belling" at his home Thursday night, Frank Harris, who resides three miles south of Salem, was struck in the leg by a piece of metal which flew from a shot gun, and was painfully injured.

A few days ago Harris' son, Harvey, was married. The young man took his bride to his father's home Thursday and in the evening a reception was held. The affair was largely attended. While part of the crowd was in the house the balance remained outside and made "night hideous' with all sorts of infernal noises.

One of the noise producing devices, extensively employed during the progress of the outside demonstration, was a shotgun. This weapon had been frequently fired with heavy charges. Frank Harris, the father, went to the door to see how the boys were getting along. Just as he appeared the shot gun exploded and pieces of the metal flew in all directions, one striking him.

MONEY IN A RAT HOLE

Thieves Hid the Old Man's Cash There, But It Has Been Recovered.

Moundsville, W. Va., March 21.—Eighty dollars was found hidden in a rat hole in the county jail by Marshal Lutes, of McMechen, who had received a tip that the money had been secreted there by two chicken thieves who are serving time.

A week ago John Groves was placed in jail on the charge of drunkenness and he had on his person $80. When he sobered up and looked for the money in his pocket with which to pay the fine it was not there. The chicken thieves were suspected of robbing him and were searched, but nothing discovered. A confederate gave the thing away and the old man's coin was returned.

ADD SCHOOL.. .. ..

Sixth Street School.

Miss Effie Knowles, teacher of the first grade, is gratified with the improvement in attendance which has been made during the last week in her school. Yesterday afternoon Miss Knowles gave the children some paper cutting work to do, and some of the designs which were made in blue and yellow paper are very pretty and will make a striking decoration.

Miss Martha Caliebe's second grade pupils are doing remarkably well in their music. They are taking up the two part music, the boys singing the alto and the girls the soprano, and this work, which is often difficult for children so young, is made a source of pleasure to the girls and boys of this room. Miss Caleibe has very good spelling work in all of her classes, for a friendly rivalry and contest is going on among the children. Each pupil who succeeds in getting 100 four times, is given a gold heart, and each one is now striving to see who will get the largest number of hearts.

Friday afternoon always finds the children in Miss Caliebe's school doing some kind of special work which is instructive and at the same time a pleasure and diversion for them. Last Friday the children were given paper cutting, and each Friday afternoon Miss Cadiebe plans something of this kind of work for the little ones.

The scholars of Miss Croft's fifth grade have been doing some clay modeling which is a credit to any school. Some of the children made grapes, some leaves, or apples. Several of the children displayed their originality and ingenuity in the making of the clay into a calendar for the month of March. Another unique model is that of a tiny wash tub and wash board.

Miss Roach has been giving the pupils of her sixth grade an excellent review in all of the branches which she teaches in her school. After the examinations are over Miss Roach is planning to have the pupils of her school do some extra drawing work. The attendance in this room is always excellent, averaging about 90 per cent, but the children are working still harder to have their average approach as far as possible the 100 per cent mark this month.

West End School.

Miss Faulk, who teaches the first grade, is very much pleased with the reading and spelling work which the children of her school are doing. Recently they have been having some special work in reading, and with this work are doing quite a little drawing. Very often the time on Friday afternoon is devoted to a general review, except when there is other special work planned.

In the third grade, which is taught by Miss Lowrie, the pupils are manifesting great interest in their language work. They have been reproducing stories taken from the readers.

A contest in spelling between the classes of the school, in which the average grade of the entire class is taken to determine which class has the leadership, and other methods are bringing good results in work.

Prof. Herbert Johnson, principal of the West End building, has been spending the time during the past week having review work preparatory to the examinations. This review is always a great help to the children and much appreciated by them.

STRONGEST EVIDENCE OF FAITH

Will Reed Guarantees That Hyomei Will Cure the Worst Case of Catarrh in East Liverpool.

When one of the most reputable concerns in East Liverpool guarantees that a medicine will effect a cure or he will refund the money, it speaks volumes as to the merit of that remedy. It is in this way that Will Reed is selling Hyomei, the treatment that has made so many remarkable cures of both acute and chronic cases of catarrh in East Liverpool and vicinity.

Hyomei is not a pill nor is it a liquid that has to be taken with a tablespoon or wineglass. Just breathe it by the aid of an inhaler that comes in every outfit and benefit will be seen from the first treatment.

It destroys all germ life in the air passages and lungs and enriches and purifies the blood with additional ozone. It cures catarrh of the head and throat, or of the stomach, liver and kidneys. Wherever mucous membrane contains catarrhal germs, there Hyomei will do its work of healing. When using this treatment, the air you breathe will be found like that on the mountains high above the sea level, where grow balsamic trees and plants which make the air pure by giving off volatile antiseptic fragrance that is healing to the respiratory organs.

Remember that if Hyomei does not cure you, Will Reed will refund your money. This is a good time to cure catarrh by this natural method and prevent catarrhal colds that are so common at this season.

NOTICE TO CLEAN UP

By authority of and in compliance with the requirements of Section 107 of the Codified Ordinances of the City of East Liverpool, Ohio, I, Frank Dickey, City Commissioner, hereby give notice to the owners or occupants of lots to remove all filth, rubbish and other obstructions from the sidewalks, gutters, and one-half the width of the street or alley adjoining his or her premises, on or before

THURSDAY, THE 16th DAY OF APRIL, 1903.

If any owner or occupant of any lot of premises shall neglect or refuse to remove such rubbish or obstructions within the time specified, the City Commissioner will proceed to remove the same at the cost and expense of the owner or occupant of the property.

EAST END

AN EARLIER CAR

A number of the employes of the potteries and other industries in the upper end of town would like very much to see an earlier car put on in the morning. The first car to arrive at Dry Run does not get there until 7 o'clock. The men would like exceedingly well to be at their benches at that time, and a movement is on foot among them to request the management of the East Liverpool line to give a service of at least half an hour earlier.

The movement will also meet with the mechanics engaged in the construction of the many houses about Dry Run. It is thought the street car company will act promptly on the request when it puts its new schedule in effect.

Ben Hur Social.

A large crowd gathered at the social meeting of Pan American Court, Tribe of Ben Hur, last night. The evening was one of much enjoyment and the supper which was partaken of by those present was pronounced excellent. A large number were in attendance from other courts, and Chief Hall, of Crockery City Court, was awarded the prize for being the greatest eater.

Brick Works Resume.

The East Liverpool brick works, near the power house, has resumed work after the enforced idleness resulting from the two bad landslides which recently occurred. The large quantity of earth and rock has been removed and the hillside has been placed in a condition that guarantees a repetition of the trouble not happening again.

EAST END AFFAIRS.

Miss Della Richmond, of High street, who has been ill with typhoid fever, is much improved.

Extensive preparations are being made by Hoyt court in the East End for their trip tonight to Sappho court at Toronto.

Samuel Calhoon has laid off work on account of a sprained wrist, which resulted from engaging in a friendly boxing contest.

M. F. Howard and family, of Jamestown, has returned to their home, after visiting at the home of his brother, R. C. Howard, of the East End.

Rev. D. W. McQuiston will preach in the Second U. P. church tomorrow morning. The subject will be "Reason Insufficient to Account for the Word of God."

A Prisoner in Her House.

Mrs. W. H. Layha, of 1001 Agnes avenue, Kansas City, Mo., has for several years been troubled with severe hoarseness and at times a hard cough, which she says, "Would keep me in doors for days. I was prescribed for by physicians with no noticeable results. A friend gave me a part of a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy with instructions to closely follow the directions and I wish to state that after the first day I could notice a decided change for the better, and at this time after using it for two weeks, have no hesitation in saying I realize that I am entirely cured. From this time on Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will be in my house constantly." This remedy is for sale by Alvin H. Bulger.

WANTED—In every town in Western Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia; experienced solicitors or agents; from $30 to $90 per month can be made by hustlers; business legitimate and endorsed by the most conservative business men. Call or address 910 Times Building, Pittsburg, Pa. 68-b

MARIETTA TEAM NOT IN THE GAME

Y. M. C. A. Basket Ball Five Downed the Collegians With Ease and Dispatch.

The Marietta basket ball team may know the game, and it was generaly supposed that they did after the local Y. M. C. A. boys returned from their city several weeks ago chalked up with two defeats, but there is not one of the 300 who saw the game last evening that will labor under the deception longer. It was a runaway from the start. At no time did the visitors have a possible chance for victory, and had it not been for a referee calling numerous fouls on technical points, the boys from the college town would have gone to their little beds last night with a score corresponding with the number in the team.

In the history of the Y. M. C. A. as large a crowd has never witnessed a game. Not only was every seat in the two galleries filled, but the aisles were crowded and the corridor leading out to the street was packed. A merry bunch of youngsters with fog horns and cow bells caused a din that grated on the ears, but the boys were there to help their champions on to victory, and no objection was made.

The first half resulted in a score of 17 to 4, and in it the locals did some of the best playing of their lives. Some of the goals were sensational, and though it might be credited to luck they made such plays quite regularly. In the second half the visitors succeeded in landing two goals and four fouls, but little good it did them. The score:

Y. M. C. A.—Allison and Bloor, forwards; Rigby, center; Watkin and Pope, guards.

August Herrman's Stand.

President August Herrman, of the Cincinnati club, says that the Reds will not pla yin New York if the National League club insists on playing either George Davis or Ed. Delehanty. On this statement a great story of trouble in the National League and between the two leagues has been builded, but President Herrman does not believe that there will be any trouble.

Eddie Poole Goes South.

Eddie Poole, the base ball player, left Malvern, Ohio, for Augusta, Ga., where he will train for the season with the Cincinnati Reds. Poole has been taking care of himself this winter and should start on the regular spring training in fair condition. Before he started Poole and his wife were entertained at the Lewton house by a number of their neighbors.

Parade of Turf Kings.

Star Pointer, king of pacers, and John A. McKerron, king of cup trotters, in a road parade, fours-in-hand and other pageantry, is the Program for Decoration that Secretary George Schneider, of the Cleveland Road Drivers' association, has mapped out. An annual parade is one of the fixtures of the association.

SIMPLE WAY TO CURE DYSPEPSIA

"Take a Mi-o-na Tablet After Each Meal," Says Druggist Will Reed.

With Mi-o-na there is no bother of guessing at the dose or using so many spoonfuls or anything of that kind. This valuable remedy for the cure of dyspepsia is in tablet form and is the simplest way to cure the disease.

"Just take one Mi-o-na tablet after each meal," says Druggist Will Reed. This remarkable remedy is not a mere digestive; it mingles with the food, and is readily assimilated to the system. It aids digestion and regulates and strengthens the whole digestive tract, so that after its use for a short time healthy and natural action is restored to the stomach and bowels.

Mi-o-na may properly be termed a flesh-forming food, as when it is used, every part of the body fills out with solid flesh and all the outlines become beautiful and symmetrical.

Mi-o-na is not an ordinary pepsin preparation to simply aid digestion, weakening the organs, but it is a scientific remedy that gives health and strength, firm muscle and pure blood.

No one runs the slightest risk in purchasing it, for Druggist Will Reed will give his personal guarantee with every package he sells to refund the money if it does not cure.

THE POPULAR COUNTY CLERK OF THE CITY OF SAN FRANCISCO.

HON. WILLIAM A. DEANE, OF SAN FRANCISCO.

Hon. Wm. A. Deane, Clerk of the city and county of San Francisco, was Chief Deputy in the office of his predecessor during the latter part of his term. He is a Native Son, having been born and raised in the city of San Francisco, and has for many years been prominently identified with the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, as well as other fraternal organizations. He is an exceptionally popular young man, socially and politically also, as evidenced by the ballots cast at the late election, he having defeated his opponent for the office of County Clerk by nearly 8,000 votes.

In a letter written January 28, 1899, from San Francisco, to Dr. Hartman, Mr. Deane has the following to say of Peruna:

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Gentlemen:—"I would not be without Peruna, as I have found it to be the best remedy for catarrhal complaints that I have ever used. I have tried most all of the so-called catarrh remedies advertised, and can conscientiously say that of all the remedies for catarrhal complaints recommended to me none have been so beneficial as Peruna."—WILLIAM A. DEANE.

CATARRH assumes different phases in different seasons of the year. There is, therefore, four quite well-marked varieties of catarrh. Winter catarrh, spring catarrh, summer catarrh, and autumn catarrh. In each of these varieties different organs seem to be the principal seat of the catarrh.

In the winter the catarrh is more frequent in the head, throat and respiratory organs. In the spring the catarrh seems to chiefly affect the stomach and nervous system. In the summer the bowels suffer the oftenest; while in the autumn the liver and kidneys seem to be particularly subject to the ravages of catarrh.

Of course it is not meant by this that catarrh is absolutely confined to these parts of the body during the season to which we have assigned them. Catarrh may attack any organ in any season of the year, but the liabilities are so much greater for catarrh to attack particulr organs in certain seasons that these four distinct varieties have become recognized.

Mr. Robert Douglas, Homeopathic Specialist, cor. 6th and F Sts., N. W., Washington, D. C., in a recent letter to the Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, O., has the following to say concerning their noted catarrh remedy, Peruna:

"I have been a practicing physician for some years, during which time I have administered Peruna to a number of my patients for colds, catarrh and general debility with great benefit to them. I have paid particular attention to its effects, and I have absolute confidence in its curative qualities, and have no hesitation in giving it a most emphatic endorsement."

Hon. Clement M. Hammond is one of the best known newspaper men in New York City. He was for years editor of one of the principal papers in Hartford, Conn., later was prominently connected with the New York Recorder and New York World. He has traveled extensively and is known all over the United States for his talent as a newspaper man. Writing to The Peruna Medicine Co., he says:

Hon. C. M. Hammond

"For about six years I have had trouble every fall and winter with my voice. At times it has extended to my bronchial tubes and lungs. I think all this trouble came from whooping cough, which I had when I was about twelve years old, and which left me with catarrh. Since I have taken Peruna, my voice has been clearer than in over two years, all of which I am willing to testify to." Mr. Hammond's address is "The Arlington," 64 Montague street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Peruna is an internal remedy—a scientific remedy for catarrh. It cures catarrh wherever located. Its cures last. Peruna gives strength by stopping waste. By saving the mucus it enriches the blood. By cleansing the mucous membranes it preserves the vital forces.

No remedy can possibly supply the place of Peruna. Insist upon having Peruna. Take no other remedy. There is no substitute for this catarrh medicine. Send for a free book on catarrh. Address the Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Steubenville council has yet failed to settle the salary question. It is proposed to let the mayor's salary remain at $1,000 a year.

The building of a new trolley line from Martin's Ferry to Steubenville has caused a boom in real estate. L. A. Rolf, of Wheeling, has optioned a tract at Steubenville on which it is proposed to lay out a new town.

George E. Sebring is leasing a number of sections in Smith township, Mahoning county, for a term of five years for the exclusive right to hunt, shoot and kill game. He stocks the leased land each year with Kansas quail.

A private car containing General Manager Robert Blickensdorfer, of the W. & L. E., and Chief Engineer J. W. Patterson, of the Wabash, ran away on the W. & L. E. track at Steubenville and did considerable damage before it was stopped by the bumper.

Don't fool with a cold, no one can tell what the end may be. Pneumonia, catarrh, chronic bronchitis and consumption invariably result from neglected colds. Nothing can be compared with Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as a quick cure for colds and influenza, and by its use these diseases may be avoided. For sale by Alvin H. Bulger.

SATURDAY, MARCH 21, 1903.

TWELVE PAGES.

For more than half a century the construction of an isthmian waterway has been one of the aspirations of the American people. This desire has now become fact. The work will be taken up where the French company left it, and it will be pursued with a vigor unknown in the days of that corporation and with resources far beyond those at that company's command. As a national enterprise, it will be prosecuted with all practicable speed to the end. No possible lack of funds can stand in the way of the finishing of the task, for there will be no such lack. All the science and skill which money can enlist will be at the service of the builders of the canal. To the whole world and to America especially the canal will be of immeasurable benefit.

The consensus of all opinion worth having is that to make a thorough test of the municipal code passed by Republicans, Republicans should be elected to office.

It now depends on Colombia when Uncle Sam's men shall begin digging the ditch for the isthmian canal. If Colombia were as shrewd in looking after her own interests as her northern neighbors the delay would be short. Unfortunately she isn't; still, the inception of the great work cannot be postponed long.

The Hancock county court is in such a state of hesitation over the question of granting a franchise for a street railway from Chester down the river as to suggest the possibility that its members are afraid of the cars.

In just one week the Republicans of Columbiana county will nominate the ticket that will be elected. The party was never more united and earnest or in better shape for a sweeping victory.

"How to Make Money" is the title of a new book. The writer of it may not be able to draw a check for 30 cents, but that is no argument that the volume is not interesting reading, just the same.

It must pain David Hill to notice how frequently he is being overlooked by Democrats who get to discussing the question of a candidate in 1904.

The prudent business man advertises in the paper whose circulation is a known quantity. The News Review never hides its circulation figures.

Ex-Mayor Ames, of Minneapolis, says the newspapers are to blame for his present troubles. This is quite a compliment to the press.

Bryan still finds it easier to talk than to get listeners.

March still has time to make a lion-like exit.

OBITUARY

Peter Sweeney.

Salineville, March 21.—(Special.)—At his home this morning Peter Sweeney, aged 28, died. Tuesday he underwent an operation for appendicitis and never fully rallied from the shock. For several days past he had suffered from inflammation of the parts affected. He was born and lived all his life in Salineville, where he had a host of friends. He was prominent in Catholic circles and also was a member of the Nulli Secundus club. Last evening his fever was high and a period of restlessness began and continued until he lapsed into unconsciousness, in which condition he remained to the end. He was a faithful member of St. Patrick's church and was a regular attendant. The arrangements for the funeral have not yet been completed, but it will probably take place Monday morning. Interment will be made in St. Patrick's cemetery.

Mrs. William Davison.

Mary, the wife of William Davison, of 214 Thompson avenue, died yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock, after an illness of one week, from typhoid fever. The body will be taken to Hamilton, Canada, this afternoon, where the funeral services will be held and the interment made. Mrs. Davison was born in Hamilton 30 years ago and came to this city just one year ago with her husband, who was employed at the Thompson pottery as a sticker-up. Besides her husband, two children, Doris, aged 6 years, and Dorothy, aged four weeks, survive her. She was a devout member of the Catholic church and the funeral services will be held in St. Joseph church in Hamilton.

William Stuckman.

TWO PRIZES GIVEN TO DOCTOR MAX

R. L. EDMONSTON'S ANIMAL CARRIED OFF PROUD HONORS.

R. L. Edmonston's dog, Dr. Max, known and admired by nearly every man, woman and child in the city, has demonstrated that he is most worthy of any admiration and the fond caresses that are awarded him. In the dog show at Uhrichsville yesterday he was awarded two first prizes, and considering the fact that he was up against the best dogs in the country, his owner certainly has room for pride.

Dr. Max is six years old. In color he is black, white and ticked. His present owner purchased him from Dr. G. B. Smith, of Wooster, four years ago, and though he knew that the animal was superior in many ways, he was not of the opinion that he was the best in the country. When the dog was entered in the show at Pittsburg a few weeks ago it was by the earnest solicitation of Mr. Edmonston's friends. At this show the dog won first prize in the novice and second in the limit.

Had it not been that Mr. Edmonston did not know how to show his dog Dr. Max would have carried off first prize in both. The judge stated at the time that had the dog been shown properly that he would have won over the victorious animal, Canadian Dexter. On the following week in the show at Coshocton Dr. Max could not enter the novice and that he received second in limit and open was due to the fact that the same judge that had presided in Pittsburg was there and he could not very well differ in his decision. At Uhrichsville another judge was in charge and he without hesitation gave Dr. Max first place, turning down Canadian Dexter.

The many friends of Mr. Edmonston are elated over the success of the favorite animal, and the members of the East Liverpool Gun club are arranging to give a stag social in honor of the victor. Dr. Max arrived home this morning, looking fine.

THE MINING SCALE AT SALINEVILLE

Salineville, March 21.—(Special)—Committeemen representing the miners of the different mines in the vicinity of Salineville met the operators of mines in convention yesterday to arrange the scale in this district for the ensuing year. The circumstances demand that a separate scale be signed for each sub-district. The miners sent committeemen from each department of the mines. Representatives of the Sterling Mining company, the O. & P. coal company, the Big Vein Coal company, Strabley's mine and Kirk & Vassey met the miners and Vice President Tetlow here.

It is not thought that any trouble will be had in having the operators sign the scale, although the O. & P. Coal company refused to sign the scale with the miners at its mines at Amsterdam a few days ago. The Slope mine, which has been suspended from the union for some time, was invited to meet with the rest of the miners at the convention.

Three sessions were held before an agreement could be reached. In the evening sssion the scale was agreed upon and will be signed soon. All the mines operated in this district was represented except the Big Vein Coal company. The miners are well pleased to have the scale made up. It is now thought that work will be better that it has been for the past two months.

RUMMAGE SALE

The ladies of the Hospital association, who are interested in a spring rummage sale have delayed opening because they were unable to secure a suitable place. Yesterday Dr. G. P. Ikirt donated the use of a store room in the block on Sixth street, where it was held for several weeks about a year ago. The room has been given to the ladies for a week and perhaps longer. They have a number of things to start with and expect to open for business this afternoon.

All those who have anything either useful or ornamental to contribute will greatly aid this commendable enterprise by sending at once to the salesroom on Sixth street.

PECULIAR BURIAL CAUSE OF TALK

Men Engaged Said They Were Burying a Do, But a Witness Saw a Man's Foot.

Pittsburg, March 21.—The residents of Kennedy township, near McKee's Rocks, are discussing a somewhat peculiar burial that took place yesterday afternoon.

According to the statement of an eyewitness, about 12:30 yesterday an undertaker's wagon, accompanied by four men, went up the Pine Hollow road, stopping at the distance of about 1,000 feet from the property of Andrew Clever. The men took from the wagon an undertaker's basket, carrying it to one of the fields, where they began to dig a hole.

Mrs. Sarah McCartney, who resides near, and her son Thomas saw the wagon stop and wondered at its presence in that particular place. Thomas went to the men and inquired their reason for making the hole. He states the reply he received was that they were about to bury a dog. A hole about five feet in length and about two feet in depth was excavated, and the contents of the basket interred.

According to Mrs. McCartney's son, it was not a dog, but what had the appearance of a man's body, that was interred, and Thomas states that although the body appeared to be wrapped in a brown cloth or coat, yet he saw one of the feet which happened to become exposed.

Mrs. McCartney about the same time states she went down to the wagon to see whose it was, and ascertained that it belonged to R. H. Clever, McKee's Rocks, who is a relative of the owner of the field. When Mr. Clever was seen this morning, however, he denied that he had been in the vicinity yesterday or that he had interred any one yesterday.

A TEACHER'S SUIT FOR HIS SALARY

He Was Engaged For Five Years and Discharged At the End of One.

Canton March 21.—Judge Donahue, in a rather extended opinion, reversed the lower court in its finding upon the case of Rolandus G. Walker against the board of education of Canton. Walker's attorneys, Welty & Albaugh, had interposed a demurrer to the answer of the board of education, and in the principal features of it the common pleas court overruled the demurrer. The circuit court reversed the lower court and ordered the demurrer sustained. The principal point in dispute was as to whether or not the board of education had a right to hire a teacher for two years, and the circuit judges were of the opinion that it could.

Prof. Walker, some years ago, was hired by the board of education for a term of two years. A number of other teachers had similar contracts. A new board being elected, it repudiated these contracts and several teachers were let go at the end of the first year. Walker brought suit for the second year's salary and the case has been in court ever since. It is understood that if Walker is successful, others will also bring suit.

NEW TRACTION LINE IN SOUTHERN OHIO

Winmington, Del., March 21.—The Marietta, Woodsfield & Barnesville Railway company was incorporated here yesterday. It is capitalized at $200,000. Incorporators are: R. Merydith, F. M. Robinson, and M. H. Halt, all of Marietta. The railway, which is to be operated by electricity, is to run through Washington, Monroe and Belmont counties, connecting with the Bellaire, Zanesville & Cincinnati at Woodsfield, the Baltimore & Ohio at Barnesville, and the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern at Marietta.

It will open up new territory in the Ohio valley.

BIG COAL OPERATIONS NEAR WELLSBURG

Wellsburg, W. Va., March 21.—The Beech Bottom Coal company started operations at Beech Bottom yesterday afternoon. The little village situated near Wellsburg already contains three coal companies that are working in fierce opposition. The names of these companies are the Wiota Coal company, the Wellsburg Coal company and the Beech Bottom Coal company.

At present there are four engineers on the ground, and the contracts have been let for the erection of about 50 tenement houses. Negotiations are under way for the building of a $55,000 coal tipple, and when it is done it will be one of the most improved and up-to-date in this section of the country.

These mines are to be opened on the ground fomerly owned by the Dairy people, that is situated just above the Bayne farm. Up to this time 2,220 acres of the best coal land in that vicinity has been taken up by the Beech Bottom Coal people, and it is thought that before long there will be many more acres purchased for this company to operate on.

The Beech Bottom Coal company is a new one that has been formed in Wellsburg, and that is where the main offices will be located. The company has been chartered with a capital of $250,000, with Messrs. Hough and Erbeck at the head of it. Many capitalists of Wellsburg and other towns of that vicinity are interested in the scheme.

The Wiota and Wellsburg Coal companies have been in operation for years and have been doing a very good business. The Beech Bottom company has been formed for quite a while, but yesterday was the first day that any active work was done on the opening up of the mines. It is the intention to have everything as modern and as up-to-date in the way of machinery as possible. Railroad switches have been connected up with the Pewiky and a competent corps of engineers are on the ground already with surveyors and others making arrangements for the tipple and other parts of the outside gearing that goes with mining.

Under Southern Skies.

William A. Brady's production, "Under Southern Skies," the coming attraction under the auspices of the opera house ushers, promises to be the best production of the season. The company is an excellent one and a thoroughly enjoyable performance may be looked for.

The stage hands will donate a nice percentage of the gross receipts for the benefit of the Thomas Jefferson memorial fund. The performance has received high praise in other cities. The Salem News says: "A large crowd witnessed the performance given by the "Under Southern Skies" company at the opera house last night. The play gave good satisfaction. The scenery and costuming were fine. A special feature was the singing of old plantation melodies, with some new up-to-date medleys by the Imperial quartet of colored people."

TEN PIECES OF SHEET MUSIC FOR $1.00.

Is This Old Music?
NO!

10 pieces of copyright music, latest popular pieces of the day, for $1.00.

Why, you ask, do we make this offer, do we buy this music so cheap that we can afford to sell it 10 pieces for $1.00.

NO!

The reason, in order to keep up to date we have standing orders with the leading publishers for from 1 to 10 copies of each new issue. These are sent us soon as they are off the press. In 10 years we have accumulated more music than our limited space will allow, our shelves are running over. We must make more room or reduce our stock. We decide to sell 10 pieces for $1.00, or sent prepaid to any address for $1.10.

This music we have in stock and will not include the last copy of any one piece. Our clerks will not be allowed to play over music in this offer. We will, however, allow you to select three pieces that we have in stock, we will give you seven more either instrumental or vocal of our own selection, copyright music Ordinarily these 10 pieces would cost you at least $2.50.

While this offer is not something for nothing it is very close to it. Offer for 30 days only.

WELLSVILLE

From present indications the West End of Wellsville in the near future will be the scene of a warmly contested battle between the officials of the C. & P. road and the residents of the western side of Nevada street. The railroad company has bought up all the property on the eastern side of this street for the purpose of laying more tracks for switching purposes. It does not mean, it is said, to move the buildings, but take most of the back yards. It will rent all the houses much cheaper than they have heretofore been rented. The people on the other side of the street are very indignant over the matter, as they claim, if these additional tracks are permitted to be laid, their property will not be worth more than one-half of its present value. All the property holders are thinking seriously of making up a purse sufficient to engage legal advisers and have this matter fought to a finish.

Should the railroad company begin work without a settlement of some kind being made it will find that these people are in earnest. The crossing at Eighteenth street will be guarded day and night and when the company tries to cross this street operations will have to be suspended until the Nevada residents can, in a measure be satisfied. The company has been very quiet in all its movements in that vicinity and no doubt meant to get the work started before anything was said, but the people learned of it and are ready to fight the company to a standstill.

AN IMPORTANT DEAL

A real estate deal was consummated a few days ago in which the property of Joshua Holliday, at Third and Coal streets, was sold to Aattorney Frank L. Wells. It is stated upon the best authority that this deal was made in the interests of E. E. Whitacre, who now owns a large business block in the same square and only a few feet away. It is known that Mr. Wells acts as attorney for Mr. Whitacre, and it is also known that Mr. Whitacre is particularly interested in this property. It is stated that Mr. Whitacre will erect a three-story brick business block of the most modern style on the land in question.

Neither Mr. Whitacre nor Mr. Wells when approached upon the subject had anything to say. If this report proves correct Third street will have two of the finest buildings in Wellsville, as the one now occupied by Mr. Whitacre and other offices is one of the most modern in this city.

Twentieth Cetury Club Affairs.

The Twentieth Century club held a business meeting yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. G. L. Howe, for the purpose of selecting officers for the coming year. The following offiers were elected: Mrs. J. C. Catlett president; Mrs. L. F. Laverty, first vice president; Miss Mary Cope, second vice president; Jane Denham, recording secretary, and Miss Viola Whitten, treasurer. The program committee was also appointed, which is as follows: Mrs. Howe, Mrs. Laverty, Mrs. Glasgow and Mrs. Catlett. It was the unanimous vote of the members to study the country of Greece next year. The program will be made out as soon as possible.

CHESTER COUNCIL ACTS ON BOND ISSUE QUESTION.

Other Matters Of Interest Taken Up and Considered Last Night.

Chester council last evening took up as its first business the reports of committees. Chairman Cunningham, of the street committee, reported that the culvert on Fairview street and the approach to the bridge at Second street had been repaired, also that a storm sewer had been put in on Sixth street, and that the household goods that had been declared an obstruction on Railroad street had been removed.

A representative of Risinger Bros. was present and submitted a proposal for taking care of the street lamps of the town. The proposition was that his concern would take care of the lamps to the number of 25, at a rate of $3 per month and give the lamps daily attendance. They also proposed to furnish 10 additional lights at the same price as the first 15 had been furnished. The price asked for the care of the lights was considered too high by the members of council, and the town may possibly assume the responsibility of the street lighting. On motion the matter was deferred until the next meeting.

The bonds of the town sergeant and the street commissioner have not yet been filed, and Sergeant Allison stated that he would file a bond as requested at the next meeting. Street Commissioner Allison informed council that he would file a personal bond, but would not file a trust company's surety, and a motion was made in effect that in case the street commissioner did not comply with the requirements of council, that his office be declared vacant by the next meeting, which carried. The bond ordinance, which was deferred from the previous meeting, was brought up, and on call of roll was adopted.

The amount of the bonds is to be $22,000, in denominations of $1,000 each to be numbered consecutively from 1 to 22, and run with 5 per cent interest per annum until 1937, made payable at the First National bank of East Liverpool. The bonds can be redeemed at any period after the year 1913. A certificate of $200 must accompany all bids for the bonds. The date of the election was also set, which will be on Tuesday, April 7.

The city property committee was instructed to fix up the town hall at an expense not to exceed $30, after which the council adjourned.

A SURPRISE IS SPRUNG

Regarding the construction of the proposed steel bridge at First street, some peculiar developments have been brought to light. Mr. Maxwell reported to council that the county court having decided not to join in any appropriation for that purpose, that the only proposition now before the council was that of the Pennsylvania Railroad company. It came as a surprise when the members of council were made aware of the fact, that they had all along been making arrangements for the construction of a bridge on private property. The approaches to the bridge and the bridge itself belonging to John Shrader.

The dangerous condition of the floor of the bridge has made it necessary for some immediate action in regard to placing it in safer condition. The heavy traffic from out the country in different directions has made the use of the bridge very essential, and it is thought that after the meeting which will be arranged between the committee, which has been appointed, and Mr. Shrader, that a new floor will be put down, as the foundation and upright timbers of the structure are in good condition.

CHARGED WITH THEFT

Sheridan Reese, aged 15, living at Congo, was arrested this morning by Constable Allison, who went there and brought the boy before Justice A. G. Pugh. The boy was charged with stealing a skiff from the beach in front of the residence of Allen E. McDonald, and belonging to him. The boy admitted taking the skiff, in company with his sister, but stated that he had asked for the loan of the boat from the lady of the house.

When the lad became aware that proceedings would be instituted against him he returned the boat to where it had formerly been left. Mr. McDonald has been frequently annoyed by parties purloining different articles, and was apparently satisfied when his property was returned. He was lenient in prosecuting the case. At the request of Mr. McDonald the case was dismissed, after the boy received a reprimand from the Justice.

SETTLED WITHOUT TRIAL

The suit for damages which was entered in the circuit court and set for hearing on next Monday was amicably adjusted at New Cumberland. The case was that of Jennie M. Conkle and Samuel M. Conkle for damages sustained on the evening of August 13, 1902, when the phaeton in which the Conkle family of Hookstown were returning to their home, was struck by a Rock Springs car, Mr. Conkle was thrown from the phaeton and Miss Conkle slightly injured. The vehicle was badly wrecked.

The case was settled by the attorneys in the case, Mr. Conkle and daughter being recompensed in a satisfactory manner.

A Panhandle Presbytery.

A movement is on foot for the formation of a Wheeling presbytery of the Presbyterian church. The presbytery will include the Panhandle district, which now belongs to the Washington presbytery. At a meeting of the Presbyterian ministers of northern West Virginia in Wheeling this week, a committee was appointed to draft an overture to be presented at the meeting of the Washington presbytery at Washington, Pa., April 13. It is argued that there are enough Presbyterian churches and communicants in the territory proposed to be embraced for a new presbytery.

Strike Nearing a Crisis.

Pittsburg, March 21.—The situation in the strike at the new Wabash bridge is nearing a crisis. Officers of the bridge company state that they will speedily start work on the contract and the members of the union who are invoking the strike declare that they will win a victory. In the company's temporary boarding house more than 50 non-union workmen are quartered, under the protection of the police. With these men and additional recruits the company expects to begin operations. Around the camp representatives of the strikers hold constant vigil and are using the utmost means to induce the non-union workers to desert.

Schwab Arrives in Pittsburg.

CAR CREW IS ACCUSED OF ROBBING AGED MAN

the line and by the time Columbian park was reached I was the only passenger aboard. When the car reached a rather dark point on the long stretch above the park, the motorman turned off the power and he and the conductor simultaneously started toward me. The motorman carried the handle of the controller and while he had it raised above my head the conductor said, in a voice full of determination: 'Shell out, old man, or we will shell it for you.'

"What was I to do? There they were, two big, stout and healthy men against me, an old man who in his younger years was an athlete, but now, as is the case with all men of my age, growing weak. I could do nothing but take the money from my pocket and hand it over to them. After I had done this they grabbed me by the shoulders and threw me off the car. I then started to walk home and reached there after a hard trip through the muddy bottom. I got my shoes covered with mud when I crossed the valley over which there is a trestle.

"When I arrived home I did not say anything to my daughter or her husband about the experience until the following morning. I studied over the matter during the night and the first thing in the morning I went down town to tell my son, who is a plumber at Washington and Third streets, the particulars. He thought it was one of the most cowardly deeds ever perpetrated, and at once advised me to report it at central police station. I did so, and was advised to have a talk with the superintendent of the railway. I then went up to the power house but could not find Mr. Healy and have not been able to talk with him since.

"There is one thing that I am positively going to do. I have an attorney and he will push the matter as I direct. The money that was taken from me must be refunded, every cent of it, and if it is possible for me to have the motorman and conductor apprehended, I will insist that the laws of Ohio be invoked. I know that I can identify the men if they are brought before me, especially the motorman, who threatened to strike me with the heavy brass instrument."

Superintendent Thomas of the street railway, when questioned in regard to the story of Mr. Burrows, made the following statement: "Mr. Burrows has not seen any official around the power house. If he will substantiate his tale and give us any line on which to work, so that we can run down the case, we will put forth our best efforts to land the men. The company would not tolerate such actions for a moment and would be only too glad to apprehend the guilty parties. As the case now stands we have absolutely nothing to work on and connot do a thing."

DOCTOR'S REVOLVER PUT THEM TO FLIGHT

Dr. J. H. Davis has reported another unsuccessful attempt on the part of two men to hold him up and secure his valuables. Yesterday evening he received a telephone call from Smith's Ferry and went there to see a patient. He remained until after 9 o'clock and started to walk to the terminus of the street car line in the East End. When he reached a lonely spot near the end of the street car tracks he was confronted by two men who demanded that he give them money, at the same time threatening to beat his brains out. The footpads were armed with heavy pick handles.

As soon as their demand was uttered Dr. Davis pulled a revolver from his pocket and threatened to shoot if they did not make tracks at once. Both men fled in the darkness without further parley. A car was approaching at that time and the doctor boarded it and came down town in safety. Dr. Davis had several dollars on his person, as well as a handsome gold watch and other valuables. The men, who were evidently tramps, were above the ordinary height and were rather stout. The one who did the talking wore a black slouch hat and a badly torn overcoat.

CREMATED IN BAD HOTEL FIRE

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 21.—By the careless throwing down of a lighted match by a guest in his room a fire was started which practically destroyed the Clarenden hotel, at Canal and Bridge streets, with its contents, entailing a total loss estimated at between $75,000 and $100,000 and causing the loss of one life and the more or less serious injury of several persons.

The dead: William G. Hawkins, traveling man of Bay City, Mich.; body discovered after the fire had been extinguished.

Peter Sternberg went to his room on the second floor and after igniting the gas threw the lighted match among a lot of his silk goods, which immediately took fire. He made a desperate effort to extinguish the flames, being severely burned, before he rushed out and gave the alarm. The flames spread through the four story brick building with great rapidity, and by the time the fire department got to work flames were bursting from nearly every window. A panic ensued among those in the upper stories and a number of thrilling rescues were made by the firemen. After about an hour's work the firemen gained control of the flames, but the big building had been badly gutted.

Pick out from the list the person you want to see win and then vote for him or her at every opportunity. Send in coupons often; don't wait until a large bunch has accumulated.

Mr. Raeburn's house was on that day to be closed by the police, and this afforded a pretext for his departure. He cheerfully prepared his baggage, transported it to King's Cross, where he left it in the cloakroom, and returned to the club to while away the afternoon and dine.

"If you dine here today, Rolles," observed an acquaintance, "you may see two of the most remarkable men in England—Prince Florizel of Bohemia and old Jack Vandeleur."

"I have heard of the prince," replied Mr. Rolles, "and General Vandeleur I have even met in society."

"General Vandeleur is an ass!" returned the other. "This is his brother John, the biggest adventurer, the best judge of precious stones and one of the most acute diplomatists in Europe. Have you never heard of his duel with the Duc de Val d'Orge, of his exploits and atrocities when he was dictator of Paraguay, of his dexterity in recovering Sir Samuel Levi's jewelry, or of his services in the Indian mutiny—services by which the government profited, but which the government dared not recognize? You make me wonder what we mean by fame or even by infamy, for Jack Vandeleur has prodigious claims to both. Run downstairs," he continued, "take a table near them and keep your ears open. You will hear some strange talk or I am much misled."

"But how shall I know them?" inquired the clergyman.

"Know them!" cried his friend. "Why, the prince is the finest gentleman in Europe, the only living creature who looks like a king, and as for Jack Vandeleur, if you can imagine Ulysses at seventy years of age and with a saber cut across his face you have the man before you! Know them, indeed! Why, you could pick either of them out of a Derby day!"

Rolles eagerly hurried to the dining room. It was as his friend had asserted—it was impossible to mistake the pair in question. Old John Vandeleur was of a remarkable force of body and obviously broken to the most difficult exercises. He had neither the carriage of a swordsman nor of a sailor nor yet of one much inured to the saddle, but something made up of all these and the result and expression of many different habits and dexterities. His features were bold and aquiline, his expression arrogant and predatory, his whole appearance that of a swift, violent, unscrupulous man of action, and his copious white hair and the deep saber cut that traversed his nose and temple added a note of savagery to a head already remarkable and menacing in itself.

In his companion, the Prince of Bohemia, Mr. Rolles was astonished to recognize the gentleman who had recommended him the study of Gaborian. Doubtless Prince Florizel, who rarely visited the club, of which, as of most others, he was an honorary member, had been waiting for John Vandeleur when Simon accosted him on the previous evening.

The other diners had modestly retired into the angles of the room and left the distinguished pair in a certain isolation, but the young clergyman was unrestrained by any sentiment of awe and, marching boldly up, took his place at the nearest table.

The conversation was indeed new to the student's ears. The ex-dictator of Paraguay stated many extraordinary experiences in different quarters of the world, and the prince supplied a commentary which, to a man of thought, was even more interesting than the events themselves. Two forms of experience were thus brought together and laid before the young clergyman, and he did not know which to admire the most—the desperate actor or the skilled expert in life; the man who spoke boldly of his own deeds and perils or the man who seemed, like a god, to know all things and to have suffered nothing. The manner of each aptly fitted with his part in the discourse. The dictator indulged in brutalities alike of speech and gesture. His hand opened and shut and fell roughly on the table, and his voice was loud and heady. The prince, on the other hand, seemed the very type of urbane docility and quiet. The least movement, the least inflection, had with him a weightier significance than all the shouts and pantomime of his companion, and if ever, as must frequently have been the case, he described some experience personal to himself, it was so aptly dissimulated as to pass unnoticed with the rest.

At length the talk wandered on to the late robberies and the rajah's diamond.

"I speak on grounds of public policy," pursued the prince. "Jewels so valuable should be reserved for the collection of a prince or the treasury of a great nation. To hand them about among the common sort of men is to set a price on virtue's head, and if the rajah of Kashgar—a prince, I understand, of great enlightenment—desired vengeance upon the men of Europe he could hardly have gone more efficaciously about his purpose than by sending us this apple of discord. There is no honesty too robust for such a trial. I myself, who have many duties and many privileges of my own—I myself, Mr. Vandeleur, could scarce handle the intoxicating crystal and be safe. As for you, who are a diamond hunter by taste and profession, I do not believe there is a crime in the calendar you would not perpetrate—I do not believe you have a friend in the world whom you would not eagerly betray. I do not know if you have a family, but if you have I declare you would sacrifice your children. And all this for what? Not to be richer nor to have more comforts or more respect, but simply to call this diamond yours for a year or two until you die and now and again to open a safe and look at it as one looks at a picture."

"It is true," replied Vandeleur. "I have hunted most things from men and women down to mosquitoes. I have dived for coral, I have followed both whales and tigers, and a diamond is the tallest quarry of the lot. It has beauty and worth; it alone can properly reward the ardors of the chase. At this moment, as your highness may fancy, I am upon the trail. I have a sure knack, a wide experience. I know every stone of price in my brother's collection as a shepherd knows his sheep, and I wish I may die if I do not recover them every one."

"Sir Thomas Vandeleur will have great cause to thank you," said the prince.

"I am not so sure," returned the dictator, with a laugh. "One of the Vandeleurs will—Thomas or John—Peter or Paul; we are all apostles."

"I did not catch your observation," said the prince, with some disgust.

Mr. Rolles glanced at the clock and saw that he also must be moving, and the coincidence struck him sharply and unpleasantly, for he desired to see no more of the diamond hunter.

Much study having somewhat shaken the young man's nerves, he was in the habit of traveling in the most luxurious manner, and for the present journey he had taken a sofa in the sleeping carriage.

"You will be very comfortable," said the guard. "There is no one in your compartment and only one old gentleman in the other end."

It was close upon the hour and the tickets were being examined when Mr. Rolles beheld this other fellow passenger ushered by several porters into his place. Certainly there was not another man in the world whom he would not have preferred, for it was old John Vandeleur, the ex-dictator.

The sleeping carriages on the Great Northern line were divided into three compartments, one at each end for travelers and one in the center fitted with the conveniences of a lavatory. A door running in grooves separated each of the others from the lavatory, but as there were neither bolts nor locks the whole suit was practically common ground.

When Mr. Rolles had studied his position, he perceived himself without defense. If the dictator chose to pay him a visit in the course of the night, he could do no less than receive it. He had no means of fortification and lay open to attack as if he had been lying in the fields. This situation caused him some agony of mind. He recalled with alarm the boastful statements of his fellow traveler across the dining table and the professions of immorality which he had heard him offering to the disgusted prince. Some persons, he remembered to have read, are endowed with a singular quickness of perception for the neighborhood of precious metals. Through walls and even at considerable distances they are said to divine the presence of gold. Might it not be the same with diamonds? he wondered, and, if so, who was more likely to enjoy this transcendental sense than the person who gloried in the appellation of the diamond hunter? From such a man he recognized that he had everything to fear, and longed eagerly for the arrival of day.

In the meantime he neglected no precaution, concealed his diamond in the most internal pocket of a system of greatcoats and devoutly recommended himself to the care of Providence.

The train pursued its usual even and rapid course, and nearly half the journey had been accomplished before slumber began to triumph over uneasiness in the breast of Mr. Rolles. For some time he resisted its influence, but it grew upon him more and more, and a little before York he was fain to stretch himself upon one of the couches and suffer his eyes to close, and almost at the same instant consciousness deserted the young clergyman. His last thought was of his terrifying neighbor.

When he awoke it was still pitch dark except for the flicker of the veiled lamp, and the continual roaring and oscillation testified to the unrelaxed velocity of the train. He sat upright in a panic, for he had been tormented by the most uneasy dreams. It was some seconds before he recovered his self command, and even after he had resumed a recumbent attitude sleep continued to flee him, and he lay awake with his brain in a state of violent agitation and his eyes fixed upon the lavatory door. He pulled his clerical felt hat over his brow still farther to shield him from the light, and he adopted the usual expedients, such as counting a thousand or banishing thought, by which experienced invalids are accustomed to woo the approach of sleep. In the case of Mr. Rolles they proved one and all vain. He was harassed by a dozen different anxieties—the old man in the other end of the carriage haunted him in the most alarming shapes, and in whatever attitude he chose to lie the diamond in his pocket occasioned him a sensible physical distress. It burned, it was too large, it bruised his ribs, and there were infinitesimal fractions of a second in which he had half a mind to throw it from the window.

The sliding door into the lavatory stirred a little, and then a little more, and was finally drawn back for the space of about twenty inches. The lamp in the lavatory was unshaded, and in the lighted aperture thus disclosed Mr. Rolles could see the head of Mr. Vandeleur in an attitude of deep attention. He was conscious that the gaze of the dictator rested intently on his own face, and the instinct of self preservation moved him to hold his breath, to refrain from the least movement and, keeping his eyes lowered, to watch his visitor from underneath the lashes. After about a moment the head was withdrawn and the door of the lavatory replaced.

The dictator had not come to attack but to observe. His action was not that of a man threatening another, but that of a man who was himself threatened. If Mr. Rolles was afraid of him, it appeared that he in his turn was not quite easy on the score of Mr. Rolles. He had come, it would seem, to make sure that his only fellow traveler was asleep, and, when satisfied on that point, he had at once withdrawn.

The clergyman leaped to his feet. The extreme of terror had given place to a reaction of foolhardy daring. He reflected that the rattle of the flying train concealed all other sounds and determined, come what might, to return the visit he had just received. Divesting himself of his cloak, which might have interfered with the freedom of his action, he entered the lavatory and paused to listen. As he had expected, there was nothing to be heard above the roar of the train's progress, and, laying his hand on the door at the farther side, he proceeded cautiously to draw it back for about six inches. Then he stopped and could not contain an ejaculation of surprise.

John Vandeleur wore a fur traveling cap with lappets to protect his ears, and this may have combined with the sound of the express to keep him in ignorance of what was going forward. It is certain, at least, that he did not raise his head, but continued without interruption to pursue his strange employment. Between his feet stood an open hatbox. In one hand he held the sleeve of his sealskin greatcoat, in the other a formidable knife, with which he had just slit up the lining of the sleeve. Mr. Rolles had read of persons carrying money in a belt, and, as he had no acquaintance with any but cricket belts, he had never been able rightly to conceive how this was managed. But here was a stranger thing before his eyes, for John Vandeleur, it appeared, carried diamonds in the lining of his sleeve, and even as the young clergyman gazed he could see one glittering brilliant drop after another into the hatbox.

He stood riveted to the spot, following this unusual business with his eyes. The diamonds were, for the most part, small and not easily distinguishable either in shape or fire. Suddenly the dictator appeared to find a difficulty. He employed both hands and stooped over his task, but it was not until after considerable maneuvering that he extricated a large tiara of diamonds from the lining and held it up for some seconds' examination before he placed it with the others in the hatbox. The tiara was a ray of light to Mr. Rolles. He immediately recognized it for a part of the treasure stolen from Harry Hartley by the loiterer. There was no room for mistake; it was exactly as the detective had described it. There were the ruby stars, with a great emerald in the center; there were the interlacing crescents, and there were the pear shaped pendants, each a single stone, which gave a special value to Lady Vandeleur's tiara.

Mr. Rolles was hugely relieved. The dictator was as deeply in the affair as he was. Neither could tell tales upon the other. In the first glow of happiness the clergyman suffered a deep sigh to escape him, and, as his bosom had become choked and his throat dry during his previous suspense, the sigh was followed by a cough.

Mr. Vandeleur looked up. His face contracted with the blackest and most deadly poison, his eyes opened widely and his under jaw dropped in an astonishment that was upon the brink of fury. By an instinctive movement he had covered the hatbox with the coat. For half a minute the two men stared upon each other in silence. It was not a long interval, but it sufficed for Mr. Rolles. He was one of those who think swiftly on dangerous occasions. He decided on a course of action of a singularly daring nature, and, although he felt he was setting his life upon the hazard, he was the first to break silence.

"I beg your pardon," said he.

The dictator shivered slightly, and when he spoke his voice was hoarse.

"What do you want here?" he asked.

"I take a particular interest in diamonds," replied Mr. Rolles, with an air of perfect self possession. "Two connoisseurs should be acquainted. I have here a trifle of my own which may perhaps serve for an introduction."

And, so saying, he quietly took the case from his pocket, showed the rajah's diamond to the dictator for an instant and replaced it in security.

"It was once your brother's," he added.

"I was pleased to observe," resumed the young man, "that we have gems from the same collection."

The dictator's surprise overpowered him.

"I beg your pardon," he said. "I begin to perceive that I am growing old, and I am positively not prepared for little incidents like this. But set my mind at rest upon one point: Do my eyes deceive me, or are you indeed a parson?"

"I am in holy orders," answered Mr. Rolles.

"Well," cried the other, "as long as I live I will never hear another word against the cloth!"

"You flatter me," said Mr. Rolles.

"Pardon me," replied Vandeleur—"pardon me, young man. You are no coward, but it still remains to be seen whether you are not the worst of fools. Perhaps," he continued, leaning back upon his seat—"perhaps you would oblige me with a few particulars. I must suppose you had some object in the stupefying impudence of your proceedings, and I confess I have a curiosity to know it."

"It is very simple," replied the clergyman. "It proceeds from my great inexperience of life."

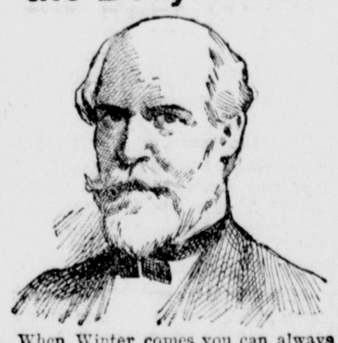
Blood Wine Keeps the Body Warm



When Winter comes you can always tell the man with thin, watery blood. He goes around all bent over; his head drawn down in his collar, his nose red, face blue, teeth chattering, and his feet and hands like cakes of ice. With a little attention paid to his blood his Winters would be a pleasure. It's the blood that keeps us warm, that produces the natural heat. "Blood Wine" will cure a person of the "shivers" no matter how long he has suffered with the cold. It will keep the hands and feet warm instead of "clammy," because it enriches and improves the blood and circulation. People who are indoors a great deal, as in the case of Prof. J. H. Newton, Lowell, Mass., suffer more or less with the cold. To these people we suggest following Prof. Newton's advice:

"I consider 'Blood Wine' the finest blood medicine to rejuvenate a worn-out and run-down system I ever saw. It improves the condition of the blood so that one doesn't notice the cold. Since taking 'Blood Wine' I have never been troubled with cold feet or hands, and have not minded the most severe Winter weather."

Bad Harvest Anticipated.

Madrid, March 21.—The absence of rain for two months over the greater part of Spain has caused apprehension of a bad harvest, which will necessitate large importations of wheat.

A Word to Women.

The peculiar organism of women is such that an extraordinary demand on the supply of blood is made in order to keep healthy and vigorous the female organs. If the blood is impure or lacking in sufficient nutrition, the muscles and tisues supporting the womb, and other female organs become weak, the womb falls causing much pain and distress.

There is no way to reach the cause of female trouble but through the blood. It must be supplied with healthy nutrition which is carried to the weakened organs to build them up and make them strong. Life Plant insures perfect digestion that the blood may be supplied with healthy nutrition to build up the weakened organs and stimulate the organs of excretion that the impurities may all be thrown off. The blood then purified goes on its mission laden with life-giving properties, permeates every organ, giving to each its vital element that makes it strong and perfect. Life Plant Refiews Life. It not only purifies the blood, but supplies the vital element in the blood.

Life Plant is truly a wonder in medicine. Not because it accomplishes the apparently impossible, but because of the common sense manner of making cures. Try it now.

Female Trouble.

Mrs. L. M. Knisely, New Philadelphia, Ohio, writes:

I had lost my health and many of my friends believed me to be fast running into consumption. I used various remedies with very little benefit. My family became much alarmed about my condition. My husband hearing of the wonderful curative properties of Life Plant, prevailed on me to try it. I have used it with marked beneficial results, and am only too happy to recommend it to my sister women in affliction.

PACKING COMPANIES ARE FINED

Jefferson City, Mo., March 21.—The Missouri supreme court found five large beef packing companies guilty of maintaining an unlawful combination to control prices of meat in the state of Missouri, and issued an order of ouster prohibiting them from doing business in the state and to pay a fine of $5,000 each and to bear the costs of the proceedings. The companies are given 30 days in which to pay the fine imposed, and if during that time they shall accept the judgment and pay the fine the ouster will be held in abeyance and the companies will be permitted to continue their business in Missouri.

SO DECEPTIVE

Many East Liverpool People Fail to Realize the Seriousness.

Backache is so deceptive.

It comes and goes—keeps you guessing.

Learn the cause—then cure it.

Nine times out of ten it comes from the kidneys.

That's why Doan's Kidney Pills cure it.

Here's an East Liverpool case to prove it:

Mr. C. S. Hill, of Esther, Pa., carpenter, says: "For a year I suffered from pain across the back, difficulty with the kidney secretions and was naturally anxious to procure some treatment which would check it if not radically cure the trouble. Advised by a friend, I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at the W. & W. Pharmacy and I want East Liverpool people to thoroughly grasp this fact; before I used the entire contents of the box I was cured. To prove that my convictions were laid on solid foundation, I have since purchased for a neighbor of mine three boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills. They cured him. Now when a preparation which cured me in the condition I was in and also my neighbor, a preparation which is held in such estimation in and around East Liverpool, that an acquaintance of mine advised me through a newspaper statement to obtain it—when that preparation performs exactly what it promises what can be expected—or any resident of East Liverpool suffering from kidney complaint who will not take advantage of his neighbor's experience and profit by his opinions."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Letters from Women

Cured by the use of Kodol are received daily. Their troubles nearly all begin with indigestion or other stomach disorder.

If the food you eat fails to give strength to your body, it is because the juices secreted by the stomach and digestive organs are inadequate to transform the nutrient properties of the food into blood. That is indigestion. The system is deprived of the amount of nourishment required to keep up the strength, and the result is that one or more of the delicate organs gradually grows weak, and then weaker, until finally it is diseased. Here a great mistake is made. That of treating the diseased organ. The best doctors in the land make this very mistake. Why should they? It is so easy to see that the trouble is not there.

Kodol Cures

This famous remedy puts the stomach and digestive organs in a healthy condition so that rich, red blood is sent coursing through the veins and arteries of every muscle, tissue and fiber throughout every organ of the entire body, and by Nature's law of health, full strength and vigor is soon restored to each.

I have taken Kodol for nearly two months after each meal and it is the only remedy that gave relief from the terrible pains I endured. After a time I would take it but once a day, and now, while I keep a bottle handy, I seldom need it, as it has cured me. MRS. J. W. COOLBAUGH, Milo Center, N. Y.

HOME AFFAIRS.

Brief Notes of a Personal Nature And of Matters About Town.

Chose Election Officers—The Democratic central committee met at city hall last evening and filled the list of election officers.

The Lost Found—Mrs. Seanor, the lady who last month advertised for a lost article, can find it at the News Review office, where it has awaited a claimant for some days.

Opening Delayed—The Co-operative store will not be opened today as announced on account of the room not being in readiness yet for the opening. It will be opened Tuesday and by that time it is thought that all the stock will be here and everything will be in readiness for the event.

Dr. Pratt's Lecture — Dr. M. B. Pratt will address the men's meeting at the opera house tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., on the theme "The Tenth Legion." Dr. Pratt will draw an interesting lesson from the lives and deeds of the veterans of that famous legion. A large attendance is assured.

Meeting of Teamsters' Local—Teamsters local union held an open meeting last night in Fowler hall, which was attended by quite a number of people prominent in local labor affairs. Some questions of importance were discussed and President Criss McConnell, of Trades council, delivered an address. The teamsters are gaining in strength every day and are increasing in numbers.

Windows Broken—The heavy wind storm last evening did but little damage in the city. The only place where damage resulted was at the Central school building, where a telephone pole was blown through one of the windows in the lower floor. The frame of the window and wainscoting were carried with it and it required considerable work on the part of the janitor and several members of the fire department to clear away the rubbish.

Along the River—The river is about stationary today and not much more of a decline is expected. From this time on until well in June there has been for the past six years a good stage for the packets and the same conditions are expected this year. Business has been somewhat duller than usual at the wharf, but all the packets have been doing a fair business. The Virginia and the Lorena are the down boats tonight, due at 8 o'clock. The Keystone State, Kanawha and Ben Hur will be up tomorrow afternoon.

SAVINGS FUND CROWING

Secretary S. B. Liggitt, of the Pennsylvania lines west, in charge of the savings fund department, reports a rapid increase in the membership of the new association. The number of employes who have up to this time joined the new department is upward of 1,000, and it is expected that within the next six months at least half of the total number of men eligible to memberships will have added their names to the list.

The fund was started on February 1, according to the action taken at the January meeting of the board of directors. It is operated under the same system as that of the Pennsylvania railroad company (lines east) which now has a total membership of nearly 85 per cent of the railroad company's employes.

Everybody reads the News Review. Its 3,100 circulation shows that the East Liverpool reading public appreciates a good thing.

If You Are a Customer of Ours

We wish to state that we are in a position to give better goods at cheaper prices for the following reasons. In the first place we have adopted the cash system which enables us to sell considerable cheaper than we could on the credit plan. We have enlarged our store over one half, enabling us to handle more trade. We are doing considerable more business at a comparatively small additional expense. Any merchant can afford to sell his goods cheaper for cash.

Try the cash shoe store and be convinced of the above facts. Our long list of customers are acquainted with them.

A LAWN MOWER WITH MANY NOVEL FEATURES.

The Invention of W. Harry Williams, Who Has Patented Several Devices.

Its advantages are at once apparent to one acquainted with the deficiences of the lawn mower now in use. The rotary cutting knives, which are set so far back on the frame of the old machine that it is impossible to reach the grass along a wall or other obstruction, are done away with. With the new machine there will be no more trimming the edges with the scythe, shears or sickle, for it reaches the most obstructed spots. Its cutting blades precede the frame work; they are horizontal and what is called technically "double reciprocating." The power is furnished by cams, the most positive known in mechanics.

The old machine will not cut grass above a certain height and its swath is narrower than its frame. The new machine will cut any height and its swith is wider than its frame, and wider also than that of the old machine. In construction the new machine is much simpler, requiring fewer pieces, thus making it possible to manufacture at less expense.

Mr. Williams is a former resident of the city, having lived here for a number of years before going west. At one time he was a member of the city council. The invention has been the work of several years, the greater part of it having been done near South Bend., and at Cleveland.

Mr. Williams has patented a number of devices, the control of which has passed to other hands.

THE HUMANE SOCIETY

To the Editor of the News Review:

Has East Liverpool a Humane Society? To those who have had occasion to pass up or down on the C. & P. track in the neighborhood of the East End flint mill, during the last week, it would seem that the above question could be answered most truthfully in the negative. Or if such a society existed it surely could not be aware of the cruelty and criminal carelessness exhibited by the workmen engaged in making the fill directly east of the flint mill.

We do not know whether the society representative down town has been an eye witness to the treatment these poor horses are daily and hourly subjected, but we sincerely hope not. But on one point we are positive, that he has been notified by 'phone at least three times and it is to put the residents of this neighborhood and the employes of the flint mill in the proper light before the people that attention is called to the subject. We have protested against this inhuman business, feeling sure there was more than substantial grounds for action. The society it appears will not act. What is a Humane Society for? If it is only for a name, then no doubt these gentlemen are fulfilling their mission. But if, as the public believe, it is to protect the weak and helpless, the East Liverpool Humane Society is a total failure, and the sooner it is reconstructed by putting men in who are not afraid to do their duty, the better for all concerned.

SOCIAL EVENTS

Entertained Their Friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Heber H. Blythe last evening delightfully entertained a number of their friends at progressive peanuts. The event was one of the most enjoyable social functions for some time. Covers were laid for nine table and prizes were won by Mrs. Dr. Toot and Mrs. Fred Cartwright. Among the guests of which Mr. and Mrs. Blythe had the honor of being host and hostess, were Mr. and Mrs. John I. Hodson, who have recently returned from their wedding trip.

Salmagundi Party.

Miss Marie Boyce will entertain a large number of her friends next Friday evening at 8 o'clock. This entertainment will be a Salmagundi party and will be greatly enjoyed by the guests. On Thursday afternoon Miss Boyce will receive a large number of her friends and will entertain at progressive peanuts.

Married in Indiana.

Word was received here last night that J. O. B. Beatty, formerly of this city, but now a traveling salesman for the Ohio China company, of East Palestine, and Miss Gertrude Barnes, of Frankford, Ind., were married at Frankford on Thursday.

Entertained Her Class.

Mrs. E. L. Henderson, McKinnon avenue, agreeably entertained her First M. E. Sunday school class last evening. Nineteen young men were present and the evening was one of enjoyment.

Merger Case Goes to Judges.

St. Louis, March 21.—Arguments in defense of the Northern Securities company on trial here before the United States circuit court for the district of Minnesota have closed and the case will be placed finally in the hands of the four judges. During the three days of argument the attorneys for the defendants have occupied nine hours, and up to adjournment the government has taken five hours for presentation of arguments. C. W. Bunn, of St. Paul, counsel for the Northern Pacific Railroad company, opened the session and former Attorney General Griggs closed the case for the Northern Securities company. The last hour of the session was occupied by Special Counsel T. D. Watson, of Pittsburg, who closed the case for the government.

NATIONAL CAPITAL NOTES.

President Roosevelt said that he had no intention of changing the itinerary of his western trip by not visiting Chicago. It is his purpose to spend April 2 there.

The navy department has been advised that American interests in the Dominican republic and Haiti may be in need of protection and the cruiser Atlanta was ordered to proceed thence from Pensacola.

Former Governor Atkinson, of West Virginia, now United States attorney for the southern district of that state, laid before the president the findings of the grand jury in the case of the recent conflict between the miners and deputy marshals at Staniford, Raleigh county, W. Va.

LEVEE BREAKS IN TWO PLACES.

Situation More Grave Than Any Time During Flood—Both Crevasses Serious.

Memphis, Tenn., March 21.—The feeling of hope produced by the Mississippi river coming to a stand at this point, with 40.1 feet on the gauge, was dispelled by two new breaks in the St. Francis levees, north of the first crevasse at Trice's landing, Ark., by grave reports from Mississippi points, as well as by a rise of .1 here.

The St. Frances levee gave way at Random Shot and Shawnee village, Ark., the first about 42 miles from Memphis and the second about 35 miles away. Both crevasses are reported to be serious. The situation in Arkansas is more grave than at any time during the flood. Relief measures have been and must be for several days entirely inadequate.

The most encouraging feature is the fact that the river has remained stationary all day and that a falling state is reported from St. Louis, Cairo and other points on the Mississippi and its tributaries. The stage is 40.1 feet, a rise of .1 in 12 hours.

Refugees continue to arrive in large numbers and the facilities for relief are too limited.

Railroaders Get Increase.

San Francisco, March 21.—After a long conference between the trainmen of the western division of the Southern Pacific and the officials of the company a settlement was reached on a basis of 15 per cent increase in the wages of the freight trainmen and 12 per cent in the pay of the passenger trainmen. These increases will affect between 3,500 and 4,000 employes of the division. Some minor details remain to be adjusted, including the questions of abolishing "double-header" trains and of the hours of labor. Another point settled is that of the wages of the yardmen. Some time ago the company advanced the wages of operators in the larger yards from 5 to 17 per cent and in the smaller yards an increase of 10 per cent was made. Later it was realized that the apportionments were not equitably made and arrangements were made whereby the smaller yards will get a 4 per cent increase.

SENTIMENT AT TRENTON

Seems to Be in Favor of Standing By the Pressers—A Proposition to Change Percentage of Votes Necessary to Declare a Strike.

Trenton, N. J., March 21.—The sanitary manufacturers have recovered for the present at least from the scare accorded them a few days ago when 530 sanitary pressers wrestled with the question of whether they would declare a strike in support of their demands to be relieved of the responsibility of "dunted" ware.

All of the potteries have resumed work and the men are anxiously awaiting the result of the referendum vote of the entire trade as to whether their demands will be supported.

In view of the overwhelming vote in favor of a strike, the members of Sanitary Pressers' local No. 45 feel that the other branches of the trade will not be respecting their interests if they abide by the policy of the 63 members who voted against the strike, thus preventing them from obtaining the necessary nine-tenths vote which is required by the constitution. The men who held out are largely those who are employed in shops where "dunts" in ware have not been experienced to any great degree or those who voted according to the promptings of their own personal interests and not from principle.

Each man who voted against the strike is known to the entire trade and is not being treated, as the result of his action, in the same friendly manner as before last Wednesday's meeting. Thursday morning on the benches of each of the opponents of the strike was found advertisements of a correspondence school, bearing the inscription "Education needed." There is considerable feeling as a result of the meeting and the members who comprise the majority boast that it will not be long before they will get even with the others for their failure to support them in their efforts to strike.

It is more than likely as the result of Wednesday's meeting that the delegates to the national convention of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters, which will be held in Wheeling in May, will receive instructions from the sanitary pressers' local to introduce a resolution changing the percentage of votes necessary to declare a strike.

According to some opinion, the vote necessary to call a strike should only be three-fourths of the entire membership of the local, as such a percentage would be sufficient to warrant the belief that such action was warranted.

Notices asking that a vote be taken among the different locals of the Brotherhood will be sent out from the national headquarters within a few days, but it is likely that it will be all of three weeks before the result is announced.

SERVICE PENSION BILL

What Is Proposed for Civil War Veterans And Their Widows.

The National Tribune, the organ of the civil war veterans, has the following to say about the proposed service pension:

There is plenty of work to be done by all veterans and friends of veterans between now and the next meeting of congress in the way of pushing the $12 a month service pension. We must make sure of its passage by that congress, for time is now infinitely precious to the veterans and their widows, and every week of delay sees a full thousand of them mustered out of life's army and beyond the reach of the nation's gratitude and the nation's sense of justice.

It is all-important that every means be employed to arouse public sentiment in favor of the speedy passage of the measure, and to convince members of congress of the desire of their constituents for this. Every veteran should enlist in this work, and do his utmost. The newspapers in every community should be supplied with abundant reasons drawn from examples in the neighborhood, why the circumlocution in the pension bureau should be abolished, the expensive and aggravating boards of examining surgeons be discontinued, and the corps of special examiners set at some other work, by the simple plan of giving every veteran and every veteran's widow a modest allowance as a matter of justice and right.

A straight pension of $12 a month, or $3 a week, will strike every one as fair and reasonable, and require no argument to induce him to favor it. Every paper in the north, east and west ought to actively favor the measure, and doubtless can be brought to do so by a little effort properly directed. All the editors require is to be properly approached by veterans in whom they have confidence, and be assured that the service pension is earnestly desired by the veterans as a body. Let every group of veterans see that this is done by the right kind of comrades. They need not go abroad for arguments to present to their editors. Their own neighborhoods will furnish plenty of instances of the most convincing kind.

CAPT. GORDON GREEN'S BIG NEW PACKET

The Boat Will Be a Sidewheeler and Will Enter the Kanawha River Trade.

Captain Gordon Green, the owner of the Green line of steamboats and one of the best known rivermen on the upper waters, has let the contract for the construction of a new packet, the successful bidders being the M. G. Knox company, of Marietta. Captain Green reached the city by rail Thursday, having left the steamer Greenwood at Marietta for the purpose of consulting with the Knox company.

The new craft is to be a sidewheeler, 205 feet long and 31½ feet beam. There will be 52 cabin staterooms, the appointments and furnishings throughout to be of the best. With the exception of the steamer City of Pittsburg, Captain Green's boat will be the first sidewheeler built in years for the upper trade. She will be the only one in the trade above Pomeroy. Rivermen in the past few years conceded the superiority of single wheel boats, but now, when greater speed is necessary, they are turning to the sidewheeler again.

The new boat is to be completed by the 4th of July and will be entered in the trade between Charleston, on the Kanawha river, and Pittsburg, taking the place of the Greenwood. Captain Green has made the Greenwood a success as an independent packet and has built up a trade until it has reached such proportions that the present steamer is not large enough to handle.

NO PLACE TO BUY STEEL BILLETS

The United States Steel Corporation Seems to Have Independent Tin Plants at Its Mercy.

The purchase of the Clairton plant of the Crucible Steel company of America by the United States Steel corporation, announced yesterday, sounded the death knell of the independent tin plate manufacturers of the country, says the Pittsburg Gazette. Where they will buy billets to make black plates from is the question that now confronts them. The Crucible Steel company was their only hope and now that that is gone over to the steel corporation the independent people feel that they might as well close up shop and seek other means of making a livelihood.

For some time past the independent tin plate manufacturers have been buying the surplus billet product of the Crucible company, amounting to about 1,200 tons per day. This went a long way toward making hot competition for the American Tin Plate company. To the steel corporation there seemed but one way to shut out the independents and that was to stop the source of the billet supply, which has been accomplished by the purchase of the Clairtown plant.

The Jones & Laughlins Steel company is still outside the fold of the steel corporation. It is known to inner circles that the Jones & Laughlin people have been offered $80,000,000 in 5 per cent gold bonds for their plant, but they feel that it is worth more, and until the price is raised by the steel corporation there will be no further negotiations.

CRADERS AT WORK

On Pennsylvania Company's Proposed Low Grade Rochester-Kenwood Extension.

Rochester, Pa., March 21.—The rumor that the Pennsylvania company will run two additional tracks from Conway yards to Rochester, and thence by the low grade up the Beaver to Kenwood, was given strong coloring yesterday when a large force of men with carts and wheelbarrows began grading the hillside above the Ft. Wayne tracks at McKinley's run undergrade crossing for dirt for a fill on the low grade.

Another force is also engaged at grading on the low grade just above the point where Whistler's run empties into the Big Beaver. This is the same grading outfit which earlier in the week began grading in the cut at the overhead bridge in Maine avenue, Rochester.

PLANNING FOR A LONG STRIKE

Massillon Miners Preparing to Stop Work—Blow for Merchants.

Massillon, March 21.—At the meetings of the local unions of the Mine Workers of the Massillon district, since the adjournment of the joint conference, the action of the delegates in holding out for the four-foot low coal standard has been unanimously indorsed.

Both sides are making every preparation for a long fight. Mines are being put in the best possible condition for a suspension and hundreds of miners will depart for other fields, where they will remain until work here is resumed.

Massillon merchants will be serfously affected by the strike, as this is the general trading place for the mines within a radius of 10 miles. The miners, however, say they were never in a better condition for a long strike.

NEW PRESIDENT OF CHAUTAUQUA

Dr. W. H. Hickman Will Succeed to the Place Made Vacant By Death.

Jamestown, N. Y., March 21.—Dr. W. H. Hickman, chancellor of De Pauw University, will sever his connection with that institution in June, to assume the presidency of the board of truetees of Chautauqua institution. The formal election will take place in August, confirming an arrangement ratified by letters from all trustees.

Dr. Hickman brings to Chautauqua a high type of administrative ability and a successful experience in connection with the building of the De Pauw. He fills a position which has been vacant since the death of Hon. Clem Studebaker in November, 1901. There will be no change in the educational policy of Chautauqua, George E. Vincent, while Mr. Scott Brown, as general director, will continue to be responsible for the business administration.

PAUPERS TO BREAK STONE

Columbus Infirmary Directors Hit Upon Plan to Keep Them Busy in Winter.

Columbus, March 21.—If the present plans are carried out the paupers at the infirmary will break stone for their board next winter. The infirmary directors are bothered a great deal in the winter months by bums, who go into the institution till spring opens again and then depart. They work till fall, blow in all their money for drink and then come onto the county to be kept till nice weather reappears.

"We are losing about six a day now," said Director Johnson Thursday. "I think we ought to have a stone yard and make these fellows who are able-bodied earn their board during the winter. The stone could be used to make good roads and they could do lots of work. Of course, the sick and infirm men would not be asked to break stone, but we always have a lot of bums who are strong and could do it. Now we have nothing for them to do. I am in favor of getting the stone yard in shape to start next winter."

Director McKinley is also in favor of the plan and it will probably be taken up this summer.

DROWNING CHARGED

By Guernsey County's Coroner to the Temperance Element of a "Dry" Town.

Zanesville, March 21.—The coroner of Guernsey county, Cambridge, a "dry" town, has just rendered a remarkable verdict based on the finding of the body of Daniel Shultyce, who died of drowning. The verdict of Coroner E. E. Voorhees in part is as follows:

"After having heard the evidence and examined the body I find that the said deceased came to his death by accidental drowning while in the state of intoxication, and that the liquor that intoxicated the said Daniel Schultyce was purchased at the so-called 'substitute saloons' located in Cambridge, Ohio.

"Furthermore, I find that the 'substitute saloons' are responsible for the said accidental drowning, but I more especially hold the leaders of the temperance cause responsible for not enforcing the law, and for permitting said saloons to run openly and to sell intoxicants in violation of the laws of the state of Ohio governing such local option municipalities as Cambridge, Ohio."

A nervous, irritable mother, often on the verge of hysterics, is unfit to care for children; it ruins a child's disposition and reacts upon herself. The trouble between children and their mothers too often is due to the fact that the mother has some female weakness, and she is entirely unfit to bear the strain upon her nerves that governing a child involves; it is impossible for her to do anything calmly. She cannot help it, as her condition is due to suffering and shattered nerves caused by some derangement of the uterine system with backache, headache, and all kinds of pain, and she is on the verge of nervous prostration.

When a mother finds that she cannot be calm and quiet with her children, she may be sure that her condition needs attention, and she cannot do better than to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. This medicine will build up her system, strengthen her nerves, and enable her to calmly handle a disobedient child without a scene. The children will soon realize the difference, and seeing their mother quiet, will themselves become quiet.

Mrs. May Brown, of Chicago, Ill., says:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—'Honor to whom honor is due,' and you deserve both the thanks and honor of the mothers of America whom you have so blessedly helped and benefited. I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when I would feel run-down, nervous and irritable, or have any of the aches and pains which but few women escape, and I have found that it relieved me at once and gave me new strength. Several ladies, members of our Literary Union, speak in the highest praise of your Vegetable Compound, as they have been cured from serious female troubles. One lady, who thought she must submit to an operation, was cured without using anything in the world but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash. You have hosts of friends in Chicago, and if you came to visit our city we would delight to do you honor. Gratefully yours,—MRS. MAY BROWN, 57 Grant Place, Chicago, Ill.

How Mrs. Pinkham Helped Mrs. McKinny.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I feel it my duty to write and let you know the good you and your Vegetable Compound are doing. I had been sick ever since my first baby was born, and at the birth of my second, my doctor, as well as myself thought I should never live through it. After that menstruation never came regular, and when it came I suffered terribly. I also had womb and ovarian trouble. A friend of my husband's advised him to get Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me. At first I had no faith in it, but now nothing could induce me to be without it. Menstruation has become regular, and I feel like a new woman. Your medicine is a God-send to suffering women. I hope this letter will lead others to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Yours truly, MRS. MILDRED MCKINNY, 28 Pearl St., San Francisco, Cal." (March 16, 1901).

Mormon Church Will Not Intercede.

Salt Lake, Utah, March 21.—"If any movement is being made toward securing the release of Hooper Young from Sing Sing," said Secretary Gibbs, of the first presidency of the Mormon church, "it is from outside the church. No such move has been taken or is even contemplated by the first presidency. Even if he were a member of the church this action would not be taken, but Hooper Young was severed from the church years ago for immorality."

American Explorers Heard From.

Marseilles, France, March 21.—A mail steamer from African ports brings word of the arrival at Jibutil Abyssinia, of a party of American explorers, Messrs. McMillan, Brown and Marlow, accompanied by a number of Englishmen. Emperor Menelik accorded the party a hearty welcome and placed an escort of 50 soldiers at their disposal and gave authority to the expedition to proceed to Lake Tsana. Later the party expects to descend the Blue Nile.

Baby

Restless, Cried Day and Night.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Did Wonders, Cured Her.

A little over two years ago I had a little, nervous baby who weighed only five pounds at birth. At first she was restless and cross and after she was four weeks old she cried day and night, and would not sleep without narcotics. She was so nervous that we did not dare to move when she did sleep a short time, as she would wake screaming as though she was going to have a fit. We called a doctor; he called it infantile colic; said he could relieve her, could not cure her. After a short time the effect of his medicine wore off and I was in despair. I tried all known home remedies and innumerable patent medicines. At last I gave her Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and she was easy and slept without narcotics. Since that time I have used a dozen bottles and would not be without it. I am now giving it to another baby and it has the same effect, immediate relief always."—Mrs. Vincent Zidek, Verona, N. D.

"Three years ago I was taken with nervous prostration, which brought on heart trouble, and my heart would palpitate at every little noise. I had smothering spells so that at times I would nearly sink away. I got one bottle each of Dr. Miles' Nervine and Heart Cure and I could feel good results from the first few doses. They have since effected a permanent cure. I recommend Dr. Miles' Remedies to all who suffer as I did."—Mrs. G. C. James, Fairmont, Nebraska.

"The Frisky Mrs. Johnson"
"The Bold Soger Boy"

THREE NEW PLAYS

THERE are many fields in the line of work yet unexplored by women, but it is gratifying to see new efforts in these new fields attended with success. As a manager Amelia Bingham has proved herself fully capable. She undertakes to give value received for the money the public pays to enjoy her productions. Her selections are from the best authors, her players are high class and her mounting and costumes leave nothing to be desired. As an actress Miss Bingham is good, but there are still many steps on the ladder of fame before she will reach the top. Clyde Fitch has reached that point in his career as a playwright where he must be careful or there will come a time when his name will not be noticed. He is dangerously near descent, and he will find that his name alone will not draw large houses. In "The Bird In the Cage" Mr. Fitch met a blow from the critics. The play could not be taken seriously, and now he gives us "The Frisky Mrs. Johnson." Much that is good and many bright lines are there, but much, too, is commonplace, and many lines are unnecessarily coarse and vulgar. The first act is almost hopless, and the well wishers of Miss Bingham must have deplored her choice of a vehicle at this point. The second act showed some admirable situations and caused the audience to sit up and wait for something good. It came, and by the time the last curtain fell the verdict was favorable. The cast could not be improved, and each person, almost without exception, played the role assigned without a flaw. The frisky Mrs. Johnson (Miss Bingham) is really the only woman on the stage except her maid who is above reproach. Her "friskiness" makes people talk, but she is "all right." The three other women, real married ladies, are types one would not care to copy, and even the adored little sister, Mrs. Frank Morley (Minnie Dupree), is a fallen angel. To shield this sister Mrs. Johnson assumes guilt which is disclosed to the husband through a letter intended for his wife and which he insists upon seeing. The letter is not addressed, but has been received by Mrs. Morley, and the climax is averted by the accidental entrance of the loving but frisky Mrs. Johnson. It is not hard to believe evil of this unselfish woman, and the sacrifice is made before the erring wife quite grasps the situation. An empty headed idiot, Lord Bertie Heathcote, has been the panacea for ennui used by the young wife while her busy husband is out, and his letter telling her of a new flat he has furnished is the missive which causes the trouble. Jim Morley (Wilton Lackaye) is in love with the gay little widow, and when he hears it all puts on his thinking cap and guesses not far from the truth. The sinning little wife clears the matter up by making a clean breast of the whole and gains the future happiness of her devoted sister. The wronged husband uses tickets for the Canary islands and tells his wife to "go home and get it for desertion." The main idea is as old as Adam, but the handling is where Clyde Fitch shows his skill. He has done so in some places, and then the play rises to a high grade of merit. In others it falls and becomes weak and almost like farce. It is needless to mention individuals, all were so good, if I except Allison Skipworth, but the best in the cast was Ferdinand Gottschalk. As Lord Bertie Heathcote he could not be improved upon. It is amazing how many actors can play the fool well. There are four different kinds of fool in this play, and all were well done. That is a little too much sugar in the coffee.

"The Earl of Pawtucket."

That best of modern playwrights, Augustus Thomas, has given us another very excellent comedy called "The Earl of Pawtucket," and its success at the Madison Square theater is assured. Englishmen as portrayed on the American stage are usually such silly idiots it would appear there are no sensible men in England, and, this being false, it is a pleasure to at last see one who is both sensible and a gentleman. Augustus Thomas wrote his play with Lawrence D'Orsay as his model for Lord Cardington, the earl of Pawtucket, and the actor has only to be himself, and the hit is made. Slow to see our American jokes, the points of all those in the play being directed against himself, many roaringly funny moments are afforded. His determined way of persisting in his use of an alias, which mixes him up in the leader's family affairs and his tangle before he understands it all are side splitting, and one continuous laugh is enjoyed the entire evening. The best criticism of the play as to its intrinsic merit is that when a laugh causes the loss of a line the feeling that something good has been missed is unavoidable. The author is to be congratulated that his work is in the hands of such a capable exponent. Elizabeth Tyree as Harriet Fordyce, the divorced wife of Montgomery Putnam, is very pleasing, and, while for her the opportunity is not as good as her role in "Gretna Green," the play is good, and she will have a success to add to her future, and not a miserable mistake, as was "Gretna Green." Lord Cardington while in a hotel in Paris saves a young lady from fright of fire while both are dressing for dinner. Two months after they meet in a Ferris wheel and are in the same car. The loyal valet, knowing his master's desire to further his acquaintance with the unknown, drops a jackknife into the machinery of the wheel, and it is stopped for twenty-four hours. After another lapse of time they meet in the Waldorf-Astoria, where he is stopping in the hope of learning something of her. He pointed her out in Paris to a friend, who seemed amused, and when told that the earl intended following her to America, but with an alias, suggested his own name, saying that many knew him by name, but he had been away for years and would not be recognized. As Montgomery Putnam, then, this English earl masquerades in America, falling in love and paying court to his borrowed name's divorced wife. She and a young man friend, formerly met in England, are the only ones who know he is not the American, and she, wishing to see the fun out, does not tell either of them whom she really is, as now she uses her maiden name, Harriet Fordyce. When he is forced to assume family troubles and finally pay alimony, the net closes so tightly around him that unraveling is necessary. All ends happily, and the whole is so full of spice, repartee and stolid English stupidity that the audience is dismissed delighted. Senator Barker, played by Robert McWade, and Arthur Weatherbee, by John W. Dean, were lifelike, and the rest of the cast was good. The setting of the palm room in the first act and the Turkish room in the last were miniature copies of the same apartments in the famous hotel.

"The Bold Soger Boy."

Andrew Mack, the sweet singer and fair actor, is again at the Fourteenth Street theater. This time he is playing "The Bold Soger Boy," by Theodore Burt Sayre. There is enough of the Irishman in the character of Gerald Adair to please those who always associate Andrew Mack with such parts, but this young soldier is Desmond Clair from Ireland, who has by his bravery won the position of lieutenant in the regular army of this country, and the scene is laid at Fort Wadsworth, near New York. Some sweet songs are given by the star in his usual agreeable way, with the accompaniment of children and a pretty sweetheart. There are no less than four of these—I mean children, not sweethearts—and two of them are quite bright. The little girl who is made to utter the sentiments on love suitable to a woman is cute and acts well the lovesick girl, who at last wins the man of her heart when she becomes engaged to Gerald Adair. Little Vivian Martin plays this role of Millicent Bassett. Gerald Adair in Wyoming several years before the opening of the play loses heavily at a game of cards with a sharp known as "Honest Isaac" and gets into a quarrel when he discovers that the cards are marked. In the struggle the card sharp is killed by the accidental discharge of his own pistol while he is attempting to kill Desmond Clair. There are no witnesses, but at the moment of the shot a man enters who afterward proves to be an accomplice, and the charge of murder is placed on the young Irishman. Knowing himself defenseless in this strange section of the country, he escapes and gets later into the army under the name of Gerald Adair, and is loved and admired by all. Captain Fitzgerald has a daughter who is loved by Adair, also by a rascal, Captain Thorndyke. Her father is too fond of cards and liquor, and one Van Nahm's unscrupulousness is used by Thorndyke to attain his end, which is to win the girl. Van Nahm is the western witness to Clair's crime, and he has recognized Gerald as the one he saw in Wyoming. At the same time he is a German sort of official who is trying to get the plans of a gun used in America, and each villain helps the other. The garrison knows of the love of their colonel's wife for Adair, while he is ignorant of this, and at a ball given at the house of Colonel Bassett the rascals of the play get the half drunk Captain Fitzgerald to win heavily from them in a card game. Then they show him the marked pack and threaten to disgrace him if he does not sign a paper admitting his cheating and promise never to play again. This is used to win the daughter's consent to wed Thorndyke. Meantime Gerald has seen this German and realized that trouble is brewing for him. Here a young lawyer arrives to turn over a legacy of $8,000 to Fitzgerald left him by his cousin, Gerald Clair's father, if Desmond cannot be found. The old chum recognizes the man and learns his story. Through the attempted robbery of the colonel's desk during his absence and the exposure by Gerald the plans for the gun are saved. "Honest Isaac" is later found to be alive, and the German is exposed as the expert card sharp who caused both troubles. The denouement is happy. Gerald wins Helen Fitzgerald as his wife. The dialogue is crisp and witty, and the situations and curtains are excellent. As a whole the play will please Fourteenth street for as long as it is kept on, but it is a sorry successor to "Tom Moore," in which Andrew Mack delighted audiences two seasons ago.

REBECCA OTTOLENGUI.

New York.

OUR NEW CUP DEFENDER.

It now looks as if the statement that the new America's cup defender would be launched at a very early date is worthy of credence. In fact, the story is that by the middle of March she will be put overboard and in early April will be ready to go into commission. This done, she will have quite as much time to get into shape as Shamrock III., and while the latter is being towed across the Atlantic the new boat, under the black and red fighting flag of Mr. C. Oliver Iselin, will be in the thickest of the battle, in which Columbia, Constitution and she will be engaged.

Mr. Iselin will probably have as his quarter deck companions the same capable amateurs who sailed with him on the Defender and the Columbia, and these friends are quite as experienced as any in the country in the matter of international matches.

As Lem Miller, the old mate of the Columbia, has now been appointed her skipper, Captain Charley Barr will have as his first officer in the new yacht Chris Christenson, who has sailed with him in all his cup trials and races as second mate. The crew of the new boat will be mostly Scandinavians, many of them having served for seasons with Barr.

BARRY A "HAS BEEN."

To those people who know Jimmy Barry, the former bantamweight champion of America, the following article that has been traveling the rounds will appear extremely humorous: "Since 1899 Barry has been making his home in San Francisco and is training in anticipation of a match with some first class bantamweight. He now weighs 122 pounds, and he expects to have no trouble in getting down to 115 pounds with a few weeks' hard work."

The fact is the little fellow is a physical wreck. He is now stopping at Blanken's roadhouse, in the suburbs of San Francisco, and weighs 100 pounds or less.

Fournier, Auto Racing Demon

By Frederick R. Toombs

There is no limit to the speed of automobiles.
Autos will soon go a mile in half a minute.
Manufacturers can make autos of almost any strength and horse power; therefore the speed is "up to the man behind the lever."
—HENRY FOURNIER.

HENRY FOURNIER, the world's champion automobile racer, is determined that no rival competitor for international speeding honors shall seize his laurels, and with the new machine he is now having built in Paris he expects to be able to maintain his supremacy. Fournier directed the drawing of the plans of the new auto, and, to say the least, the machine will be unique. More than anything else it will resemble a gigantic metal cigar on wheels, with the pointed end forward, so as to give it peculiarly effective wind cutting properties, reducing the air resistance to a minimum.

The elongated auto is to be used by the daring Frenchman in the races to be held during the spring and summer, and he will bring it to the United States when in July he comes over to participate in a match contest with Alexander Winton, the noted racer of Cleveland. Winton hopes to defeat Fournier, and rivalry between the two experts is very intense. The race will probably occur on the splendid Empire City trotting track, built by the late W. H. Clark, at Yonkers, N. Y.

One Man Only on Fournier's New Auto.

Fournier's machine is being built of aluminium and steel, and with it he expects to lower to forty seconds the present mark for a mile of forty-six seconds, made near Paris last year by himself. It is a Mors auto and will cost about $12,000. One of the novelties in its construction is the fact that it provides seating room for but a single man. Fournier, therefore, will have no assistant when he endeavors to chop down the seconds. The seat is perched over the rear axle and is so arranged down in the very heart of the controlling apparatus that only the head and shoulders of the occupant will be visible.

"No Limit to Auto Speed."

I had a talk with the Gallic speed demon recently before he returned to Paris, and he spoke enthusiastically of his coming match races and trials against time. In reply to a question he said: "There really is no limit to the future speed of the automobile. I fully expect to see the mile covered in half a minute inside of another year. As for forty seconds—well, I am sure to go a mile that fast before I am four months older. The manufacturers can turn out autos of practically any strength and horsepower; therefore the speed attained is 'up to the man at the lever.'

"I have done the mile in forty-six seconds several times recently," Fournier continued after lighting a cigarette, "and I hold the official record at just a fraction more than that time.

"A Mile In Forty Seconds."

"I have no hesitation in telling you that I have often traveled at the rate of a mile in forty seconds, though not for a long distance.

"So far as the ultimate speed of the auto is concerned I will not undertake to predict." Here Fournier shrugged his shoulders and added, "Only when I am about to die shall I be prepared to admit that I shall not see the world's record lowered still further."

"Record Speed Feels Like Flying."

"How does it feel to run an automobile a mile in forty-six seconds? How do you keep the machine under the necessary perfect control?" I asked the Parisian, who spoke of his sensational exploits in the cool manner of a man discussing the present price of gorgonzola cheese in Rome or the latest methods of exterminating potato bugs.

"It is like flying," replied Fournier. "But as I have never flown, perhaps I am wrong. No railroad train or ice-boat has ever gone at such a terrific pace.

"I suppose if it were possible for a man to sit astride one of the thirteen inch shells they use down at Sandy Hook he would feel as I and my companion did not long ago when we made our record trip. You look straight ahead, intent only on the road that stretches away before, yet somehow your eyes manage to take in the general effect of the country through which you are passing. You are very, very cold from piercing air at so great a speed, and hungry—oh, my, how hungry! I wonder how much it would cost to satisfy the appetite of a gormand after a ride with me.

The Official French Course.

"The machine with which I made the world's record is of seventy-two horsepower, a Mors, with a long wheel base. The run was made on the official trial route between Ablis and St. Arnoult, near Dourdan, about fifty miles from Paris. No better piece of road for the purpose can be found in the world. So smooth, so straight is it that at a distance of four miles you can readily distinguish the slight figure of a man and at the same time see every intervening foot of the thoroughfare. It has been especially prepared by the French auto and government officials and is just as carefully cared for as any horse racing course in America."

Fournier—who spells his first name Henry, not Henri—is very unassuming and possesses the unfailing French courtesy and mobility of features. When you grasp his hand, you find it is as soft as a baby's, and it is hard to realize that this bowing, smiling, soft skinned man standing before you in faultless evening dress is the king of daredevils and premier of chauffeurs, with nerves and muscle when put to the test like unto the fire hardened steel of a battleship's armor plates. All this is Fournier.

With the Gunners.

Trap shooters in many parts of the country are showing considerable activity at present, and there is no doubt that in spite of the prohibition of live bird shooting in some states sport at the traps is not on the wane. After all, there is something unusually fascinating about gunning, and whether in field or forest, at the traps with animate or inanimate targets as the mark, or whether it be in a rifle range, the enthusiast finds pleasure that he would exchange for no other.

There are many persons who would be greatly surprised to hear shooting in its various forms described as one of America's national pastimes, yet such is the case, and few and far between indeed are the cities and towns throughout the length and breadth of the land that do not possess organizations for promoting the interests of rifle and shotgun.

Where Trap Shooting Thrives.

Just now, so far as trap shooting is concerned, the centers of activity appear to be St. Louis, Cincinnati, Kansas City and Philadelphia. In and about the Quaker City the Keystone Shooting league is leading the procession. The league held its annual meeting recently at Holmesburg Junction, and a splendid turnout resulted. During the meeting it developed that last year 16,000 live birds had been trapped as against 21,000 in 1901. The decrease was due, of course, to agitation by the antipigeon shooting fraternity. Letters read to the members by Secretary Van Loon showed widespread opposition to the bill which has been presented to the legislature prohibiting the trapping of live birds. S. J. Hothersal was elected president.

The Cleveland Gun club also held its annual meeting recently and elected F. G. Hogen president, A. M. Allyn secretary and S. C. Payne treasurer.

BEANTOWN MOTOR SHOW.

Boston is to have an automobile show on March 16, to be held under the auspices of the Massachusetts association. Invitations to the exhibition will probably be general.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

Mrs. Mary O. Hahn, No. 3633 Michigan Ave. Chicago, Ill., writes: "For two years I have been troubled with biliousness caused by inactivity of the liver. I had dizzy spells at times, pains across my back and a tired, heavy feeling with loss of appetite and nervousness. Our family physician prescribed some liver tablets which certainly did not help me in the least. I took Apollinaris and other mineral waters, but my complexion became more yellow and my general health worse. Reading one of your little books, I decided to give Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin a trial and am so glad I did. One bottle did more for me than ten dollars' worth of other remedies. I knew at once I had the right remedy. I kept taking it for several weeks, when I considered myself completely cured. My skin is white and smooth as a baby's and I feel in excellent health and spirits, thanks to your remedy."

Practical Politics

..By..
WILLIAM H. HINRICHSEN

IV.—Taking a Poll.

THE next work to be taken up is that of taking a census of the voting district in which you live, or making a poll, as it is usually called.

If you have studied thoroughly the preceding lessons, you are well equipped for the work now before you.

A poll is not a mere list of voters, with the party label of each person opposite his name. To be of value to the student and to the organization it must contain practically a full description and history of each voter. No one must be omitted from the list, and the data must be accurate. A single error casts discredit on the poll and makes it almost valueless to the committee.

Taking a poll is regarded as the most important mechanical work of the campaign and should never be intrusted to any but the most reliable persons.

It is possible that the party organization may prefer not to trust the poll of the student, but no objection can be made to his taking it on his own account, and its accuracy can be tested by comparing it with that taken by the regular agent of the committee. If it proves to be all right, it will be used.

You should make careful preparations for taking this poll. Consult the chairman of your committee as to the data he requires and then make a note of every other item of information regarding each voter which you may think will be of any use to you or to the committee.

You should not use the ordinary book furnished by the committee for your field work, but procure a blank book, of a size to be conveniently carried in your pocket, in which to make your first notes, which may be neatly transcribed into the regular poll book.

This book should be large enough to give each voter a page instead of a line, as is customary. This page should contain at the top the name and number or location of the voter. Then should come his occupation, place of business, et cetera; then his politics, religion, nationality, former political affiliations and views on special issues in the campaign. All these, expressed by abbreviations, will take up another line. This will conform to the regular requirements of the committee, but you should not stop there.

You should fill the page assigned to each voter with all the information you can obtain concerning him, most of which can be expressed in abbreviations. The following data should be obtained: Married or single or widower; number of boys and ages; number of girls and ages; number at home; whereabouts of others; if married, to whom; politics of wife's family; relatives of wife or of the voter holding office or public contracts, full account; habits, age and financial condition; if tenant, who is landlord; if employee, who is employer; if employer, how many men. Is he against any one on his ticket? Is he a kicker? What newspaper does he read? Is he ambitious to hold office? Is he enthusiastic or indifferent? Was he a soldier? Does he draw a pension? Does he always vote? Does he ever split his ticket? Does any one control him? Whom does he influence in politics? To what secret societies does he belong? Has he hobbies? And many other things of the kind that will occur to the student in special cases should be noted.

Of course, in the case of a well known man, much of the above may be omitted, but in general it will be found convenient to have all such information regarding every one at hand.

Having prepared your book, you should personally visit every house. If you find no one at home or find no one who can give you the information you desire, note the fact and call again.

Be careful to get the name of every voter in each house and full information concerning him. Be particular to make such inquiries as will elicit the fact of his being a legal voter and make careful note of the fact. If the head of the family is at home, tell him your name and try to get well enough acquainted so that he will remember you, and you must prepare to remember him. Do the same with the members of his family and try to create a good impression upon all. You will, as a rule, find this easy to do.

If any voter living in the house is absent, call on him again or see him at his place of business. Be sure that you personally meet every voter and study his face, form and manner so that you can address him by name whenever you may meet him. Do the same, so far as it is possible, by the members of his family.

You will be asked many political questions, and your previous studies will enable you to answer them correctly and intelligently, and you should always do so.

Pick up, so far as you can, the tastes of his family, for you may be able to gratify them by sending them literature, seeds, etc., which you may be able to obtain. In short, make every effort to get well acquainted and on pleasant terms with every voter and the members of his family.

Make a special list as you go along of all aliens not naturalized, of all boys who will be voters within four years, of all men of the voting age who for any reason are not entitled to the franchise.

Do not attempt to visit too many houses in a day and go over your book frequently so as to fix your information firmly in your mind.

Pay special attention to first voters and endeavor to interest them in the work you are doing. Secure their cooperation if possible.

Make no statements that are not absolutely true and make no promises you cannot fulfill.

While doing this work you may be able to do people small favors, and you should be on the lookout for such opportunities. Your territory may contain people of all conditions. For instance, a family may be looking for a servant, and you learn the fact. Another family may contain a young woman looking for a situation of this kind. It will prove easy to bring them together, and you will confer a favor on each.

A man may have a horse to sell. Another may wish to buy such an animal. You may learn of the desires of each and thus promote a trade, and so on.

Be careful while in this work to avoid all controversies, political or otherwise. Keep your objects in view and steer clear of neighborhood quarrels and factional feuds. Learn to suppress expressions that will give offense and, above all, practice patience and forbearance.

In some places you will meet with rebuffs and discourtesy, and no doubt some people will absolutely refuse to answer your questions. In such cases you will have to get your information from the neighbors, but this will not be necessary very often.

Correcting the Poll.

Having completed your poll, the next step is to revise, correct and transcribe it for use, and in doing this it will be well to put in practice some of the things you have learned so as to produce political results.

You have while making your poll become acquainted with several—perhaps a number of—young men of your own political faith who are interested in politics or in whom you may have succeeded in exciting an interest. Call them together, being sure to include all first voters. State frankly your objects and ask their co-operation. Show them the benefits that will accrue to the people, the party and to themselves, and if you have so far learned your lessons well and make a good presentation of facts you will find most of them ready to join you. You can, if you wish, form a regular organization or club. The advisability of this depends upon circumstances.

We will suppose that a dozen are willing to co-operate with you. The first thing to be done is to divide your precinct or district into as many parts as you have helpers, each division to include, if possible, the residence of a helper and to be known as his subdistrict.

He should be directed to make at once a poll, such as you have made, of his subdistrict. Each should be carefully instructed as to his work.

Suppose that the district contains 400 voters. This will give an average of about thirty-four to each subdistrict. The polls of these subdistricts will soon be completed, and they should be carefully compared with the poll you have made. Where they agree it may be taken for granted that they are correct. Where they fail to agree variations should be accounted for.

The poll should then be carefully copied in a book properly ruled for the purpose. No scrap of information should be omitted. A copy should also be made for the committee in the book furnished for the purpose.

It is as well to say at this point that the boundary lines of voting districts or precincts are sometimes changed, and this may occur between the time of completing the poll and election day. In such case you may have to revise your work.

Time of Taking the Poll.

A political party usually makes its poll at a certain fixed period, governed by the election laws of the state.

For instance, if the laws require a man to be a resident of the county ninety days before becoming a voter the poll is taken ninety days before the election, and if a thirty days' residence in the voting district or precinct is required the poll is corrected thirty days before the election.

When a student of politics takes a poll, as shown above, the date is of less importance, provided it be early enough. I would advise making it at least eight months before the election or even a year. It should, of course, be revised and corrected at the usual time of taking the poll.

When the Tenderfoot Was "It."

"Several years ago I was down in the Indian Territory on a trip," said the dancing man, "and some of my friends got up a dance for me. I asked my most particular friend what I should wear. He informed me full dress. I went that way and was the only one at the dance with even a white shirt on and was the target for all the eyes in the hall. Naturally I felt very uncomfortable. The girls, however, were taken with me at once, and any one of them was mine for the asking. In fact, for awhile I forgot there were any other men present. The cowboys stood around like a lot of 'has beens.' I was 'it' for once in my life.

"Eight months later I made a return visit to this little town, eighty miles from a railroad, and happened to strike the place on the eve of a dance by a club that had been formed that season. I received an invitation from my friend and, remembering my previous experience, attended the dance in my traveling clothes. No dress suit again for Willie. To my surprise, when I emerged from the dressing room I found all the men in full dress, and a more evenly balanced lot of dressy fellows I never saw, all being dressed exactly alike. I was the only 'has been' in the hall. I learned that the club had engaged a tailor to come in there and fix them all up correctly."—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Old Man Voglestein Pays Him a Visit

[Copyright, 1902, by Alfred Gates.]

DER old man Voglestein comes in my shop to see me der odder day vhen I vhas busy putting on a feefteen cent patch for 10 cents.

"Hans," says he after he smokes his pipe a good while, "for twenty long years I haf been thinking about fly screens, und I haf made oop my mind."

"Vhell, how it vhas?" I says.

"I haf made oop my mind dot fly screens vhas two ways—dey keep der flies in, und dey keep der flies out."

I look oop at him und don't smile or say nottings, und for ten minutes he vhas hurt in his feelings. Den he fills oop his pipe und says:

"Hans, do you know der deeference between beer und water?"

"Of course," I says.

"Vhat vhas it?"

"It vhas in der taste."

"I vhill tell you der difference. Three weeks ago six men come to my house

one eafenings. Dey vhas a committee. Der chairman stands oop in my parlor und says to me:

"'Mr. Voglestein, you vhas a man of brains und honesty und peesness. Dis committee vhas here to ask you to run for aldermans of de Seventeenth ward. If you vhill consent, we shall see dot you vhas elected by 500 majority.'

"Dot vhas a surprise to me, Hans, und for two minutes I can't speak back. Den I pulls myself together und says:

"'Shentlemens, it vhas some awful honors you offer me, und I vhill accept und be your candidate. If I vhas elected, I shall try to make you der best aldermans you ever had.'

"My speech vhas received mit cheers, und I have my wife bring oop a pitcher of ice water. It vhas passed around, und den dot chairman stands oop und says:

"'Vhas dis all, Mr. Voglestein?'

"'Dis vhas all.'

"'No.'

"'Den it gifs me pleasure to inform you dot if you ever run for aldermans of de Seventeenth ward we shall see dot you vhas defeated by fife million majority, und be hanged to you!'

"Mit dot dey all get up und march out, und dot vhas der reason I don't run for aldermans, und dot vhas der deeference between beer und water. Vhat you think of dot, Hans?"

I think a good deal, but I haf a half sole to put on a shoe und don't say nottings. Mr. Voglestein walks around und kicks things oafer und den says:

"Hans, somepody make a fool of me in church der odder Soonday, und I vhas mad about it. I don't go to church pefore for thirty years, und I vhas like some greenhorns. I keep awful still und don't say nottings to nopody, und by und by a man comes along mit a box full of money. Vhen he hands it out to me, I pelief he means dot I shall take a dollar for my wages in coming to church, but I vhas no hog. If I take a quarter, dot vhas enough. Vhen I put it in my pocket, dot man gets red und white und mad, und after church vhas out he comes to me und says:

"'Vhell, of all der blamed old scoundrels I ever saw you take der cake!'

"'How vhas dot?' I says.

"'Why, you steal a quarter from der contribution box of der Lord.'

"'Of course, but it vhas to put money in instead of taking money out. Gif me back dot quarter or I vhill raise some rows.'

"Vhas I to know how it vhas?" says Mr. Voglestein to me as he pounds on his knee. "If dot man vhants money, vhy don't he say so? If he vhants to pay me, vhy don't he say so? How vhas it dot folks can make some fools of me und not gif me a show?

Next to the difficulty of comprehending the wonderful senses of the deer is that of understanding how one looks in the woods. Your ideas are necessarily taken from pictures or from stuffed deer or tame ones in a park. You are almost certain to be looking for a deer, whereas you might better be looking for anything else. In the woods you seldom see half of a deer and generally much less, often only a part of the shoulder, or only an ear over a log or a leg under it, a bit of rump projecting from a bush or a head and bit of the neck reaching up for leaves. The arcade of maple lit up by the scarlet of the ginseng and bush cranberry, the little arbor where the wild hop is yellowing over the thorn apples on which half a dozen ruffed grouse are taking their breakfast, the edge of the pool where the trout flashes through the water over which the chelone is still nodding, or the darksome glade where the golden petals of the witch hazel are closing the floral march of the year would all make lovely frames for that charming artist's deer with individual hairs all glistening, the dark dewclaws shining, and even the split in the hoof flashing artistic light from its edges. But the glittering tines, the proud neck of the sculptured war horse, the shaggy chest and bulging rump with tail full of shining hairs are not there except at long intervals when you may rout an old fool out of bed and get him twisted as to the points of the compass.—T. Mrs. Laura S. Webb,

Vice-President of Women's Democratic Clubs of Northern Ohio.

Mrs. Laura S. Webb.

THERE ARE MANY sickly women between the ages of 45 and 55, but there are very few invalids over 55 and 60 years of age. The change of life coming to a woman near her forty-fourth year, either makes her an invalid or gives her a new lease on life. Those who meet this change in ill health seldom live ten years afterward, while a woman who lays aside the active duties of womanhood in health seldom fails to live on in happiness, years after she has passed 60. This is truly a critical time.

Mrs. Laura S. Webb, of Toledo, Ohio, recognizes the change of life as a dangerous period and she also has faith in Wine of Cardui. She writes:

"As I had always been troubled more or less at the menstrual period, I dreaded the change of life which was fast approaching. While visiting with a friend I noticed that she was taking your Wine of Cardui, and she was so enthusiastic about it that I decided to try a bottle. I experienced some relief the first month, so I kept on taking it for three months and now I menstruate with no pain and I shall take it off and on now until I have passed the climax. I do not dread it now, as I am sure that your Wine of Cardui will be of great benefit at this time."

Wine of Cardui is the remedy to re-inforce a woman against the shock that comes with the change of life. It re-establishes healthy functions after years of suffering. In doing this it has saved thousands of sufferers just in time. Do not wait until suffering is upon you. Thorough preparations should be made in advance. Begin the Wine of Cardui treatment today.

Butting Into Society

From "Letters From a Self Made Merchant to His Son," by George Horace Lorimer. By permission of Small, Maynard & Co., Publishers, Boston

I never see a fellow trying to crawl or to buy his way into society that I don't think of my old friend, Hank Smith, and his wife Kate—Kate Botts she was before he married her—and how they tried to butt their way through the upper crust.

Hank and I were boys together in Missouri, and he stayed along in the old town after I left. I heard of him on and off as tending store a little and farming a little and loafing a good deal. Then I forgot all about him until one day a few years ago when he turned up in the papers as Captain Henry Smith, the Klondike gold king, just back from Circle City with a million in dust and anything you please in claims. There's never any limit to what a miner may be worth in those, except his imagination.

I was a little puzzled when a week later my office boy brought me a card reading Colonel Henry Augustus Bottes-Smythe, but I supposed it was some distinguished foreigner who had come to size me up so that he could round out his roast on Chicago in his new book, and I told the boy to show the colonel in.

I've got a pretty good memory for faces, and I'd bought too much store plug of Hank in my time not to know him, even with a clean shave and a plug hat. Some men dry up with success, but it was just spouting out of Hank. Told me he'd made his pile and that he was tired of living on the slag heap; that he'd spent his whole life where money hardly whispered, let alone talked, and he was going now where it would shout. Wanted to know what was the use of being a nob if a fellow wasn't the nobbiest sort of a nob. Said he'd bought a house on Beacon Hill, in Boston, and that if I'd prick up my ears occasionally I'd hear something drop into the Back Bay. Handed me his new card four times and explained that it was the rawest sort of dog to carry a brace of names in your card holster; that it gave you the drop on the swells every time and that they just had to throw up both hands and pass you the pot when you showed down. Said that Bottes was old English for Botts and that Smythe was new American for Smith; the Augustus was just a fancy touch, a sort of high card kicker.

I didn't explain to Hank, because it was congratulations and not explanations that he wanted, and I make it a point to show a customer the line of goods that he's looking for. And I never heard the full particulars of his experiences in the east, though from what I learned afterward Hank struck Boston with a bang all right.

He located his claim on Beacon Hill between a Mayflower descendant and a Declaration signer's great-grandson, breeds which believe that when the Lord made them he was through and that the rest of us just happened. And he hadn't been in town two hours before he started in to make improvements. There was a high wrought iron railing in front of his house, and he had that gilded first thing, because, as he said, he wasn't running a receiving vault and he didn't want any mistakes. Then he bought a nice open barouche, had the wheels painted red, hired a nigger coachman and started out in style to be sociable and get acquainted. Left his card all the way down one side of Beacon street and then drove back, leaving it on the other. Everywhere he stopped he found that the whole family was out. Kept it up a week, on and off, but didn't seem to have any luck. Thought that the men must be hot sports and the women great gadders to keep on the jump so much. Allowed that they were the liveliest little lot of fleas that he had ever chased. Decided to quit trying to nail 'em one at a time and planned out something that he reckoned would round up the whole bunch.

Hank sent out a thousand invitations to his grand opening, as he called it; left one at every house within a mile. Had a brass band on the front steps and fireworks on the roof. Ordered forty kegs from the brewery and hired a fancy mixer to sling together mild snorts, as he called them, for the ladies. They tell me that when the band got to going good on the steps and the fireworks on the roof even Beacon street looked out the windows to see what was doing. There must have been 10,000 people in the street and not a soul but Hank and his wife and the mixer in the house. Some one yelled "Speech!" and then the whole crowd took it up, till Hank came out on the steps. He shut off the band with one hand and stopped the fireworks with the other. Said that speechmaking wasn't his strangle hold; that he'd been living on snowballs in the Klondike for so long that his gas pipe was frozen, but that this welcome started the ice, and he thought about three fingers of the plumber's favorite prescription would cut out the frost. Would the crowd join him? He had invited a few friends in for the evening, but there seemed to be some misunderstanding about the date, and he hated to have the good stuff curdle on his hands.

While this was going on the Mayflower descendant was telephoning for the police from one side and the signer's great-grandson from the other, and just as the crowd yelled and broke for the house two patrol wagons full of policemen got there. But they had to turn in a riot call and bring out the reserves before they could break up Hank's little Boston tea party.

After all, Hank did what he started out to do with his party—rounded up all his neighbors in a bunch, though not exactly according to schedule. For next morning there were so many descendants and great-grandsons in the police court to prefer charges that it looked like a reunion of the pilgrim fathers. The judge fined Hank on sixteen counts and bound him over to keep the peace for a hundred years. That afternoon he left for the west on a special, because the limited didn't get there quick enough. But before going he tacked on the front door of his house a sign which read:

Neighbors paying their party calls will please not heave rocks through windows to attract attention. Not in, and not going to be. Gone back to Circle City for a little quiet. Yours truly,

HANK SMITH.

N. B.—Too swift for your uncle.

Hank dropped by my office for a minute on his way to Frisco. Said he liked things lively, but there was altogether too much roughhouse on Beacon Hill for him. Judged that as the crowd which wasn't invited was so blamed sociable, the one which was invited would have stayed a week if it hadn't slipped up on the date. That might be the Boston idea, but he wanted a little more refinement in his. Said he was a pretty free spender and would hold his end up, but he hated a hog. Of course I told Hank that Boston wasn't all that it was cracked up to be in the school histories and that Circle City wasn't so tough as it read in the newspapers, for there was no way of making him understand that he might have lived in Boston for a hundred years without being invited to a strawberry sociable. Because a fellow cuts ice on the arctic circle it doesn't follow that he's going to be worth beans on the Back Bay.

"I was a total wreck—could not sleep or eat," writes Mr. J. C. Beers, of Berryman, Crawford Co., Mo. "For two years I tried medicine from doctors but received very little benefit. I lost flesh and strength, was not able to do a good day's work. I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and when I had taken one bottle I could sleep and my appetite was wonderfully improved. I have taken five bottles and am still improving."

The sole motive for substitution is to permit the dealer to make the little more profit paid by the sale of less meritorious medicines. He gains; you lose. Therefore, accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery."

WHEN YOU TALK

Have Something to Say, Say It, Then Stop

From "Letters From a Self Made Merchant to His Son," by George Horace Lorimer

Dear Pierrepont—Yours of the 4th has the right ring, and it says more to the number of words used than any letter that I have ever received from you. I remember reading once that some fellows use language to conceal thought, but it's been my experience that a good many more use it instead of thought.

A business man's conversation should be regulated by fewer and simpler rules than any other function of the human animal. They are:

Have something to say.

Say it.

Beginning before you know what you want to say and keeping on after you have said it lands a merchant in a lawsuit or the poorhouse, and the first is a short cut to the second. I maintain a legal department here, and it costs a lot of money, but it's to keep me from going to law.

It's all right when you are calling on a girl or talking with friends after dinner to run a conversation like a Sunday school excursion, with stops to pick flowers, but in the office your sentences should be the shortest distance possible between periods. Cut out the introduction and the peroration and stop before you get to secondly. You've got to preach short sermons to catch sinners, and deacons won't believe they need long ones themselves. Give fools the first and women the last word. The meat's always in the middle of the sandwich. Of course a little butter on either side of it doesn't do any harm if it's intended for a man who likes butter.

Remember, too, that it's easier to look wise than to talk wisdom. Say less than the other fellow and listen more than you talk, for when a man's listening he isn't telling on himself and he's flattering the fellow who is. Give most men a good listener and most women enough note paper and they'll tell all they know.

THE FOOL ROOSTER

He's Always Crowing, but It's the Hen That Lays the Egg

I've heard a good deal in my time about the foolishness of hens, but when it comes to right down, plum foolishness give me a rooster every time. He's always strutting and stretching and crowing and bragging about things with which he had nothing to do. When the sun rises, you'd think that he was making all the light instead of all the noise. When the farmer's wife throws the scraps in the henyard, he crows as if he was the provider for the whole farmyard and was asking a blessing on the food. When he meets another rooster, he crows, and when the other rooster licks him he crows. And so he keeps it up straight through the day. He even wakes up during the night and crows a little on general principles. But when you hear from a hen she's laid an egg, and she don't make a great deal of noise about it either.—From "Letters From a Self Made Merchant to His Son," by George Horace Lorimer.
